REVOLT CRUSHED CREEL DECLARES

TROOPS HOLD THE CITIES

Fighting at Torreon, Chihuahua, and Other Places Brings No Success to the Rebels.

MADERO ISSUES STATEMENT

To the Editor of The New York Times:

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—By permission of the Señor President I communicate to you, in answer to your telegram in regard to the political situation in Mexico, that it does not present any danger and the lives and interests of all strangers are absolutely secure.

The only thing that has occurred to disturb order are mutinies of little importance in Puebla, Gomez Palacio, Parral, and the City of Guerrero. These have been completely repressed. At this moment order is complete in the whole republic.

ENRIQUE CREEL,
Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Government Regaining Control.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 23.—Belief that the Government is rapidly gaining control of the situation in Northern Mexico seems well confirmed here to-night.

So far as can be ascertained the insurrectionists are not in actual control of a single important town. Messages of this assurance have been received from Parral, Torreon, Gomez Palacio, and Chihuahua. In each of those cities the Government forces and property owners are reported in full control.

The troops have recovered control of the Madera branch of the Mexico Northwestern Railroad, which was attacked and captured by the insurrectionists Monday night. Nine rurales, three Mexican women, and a child were killed in the attack on the soldiers.

Scores of telegrams were received to-day from American residents in Mexico asserting that the danger was practically over. Several hundred persons have arrived from interior points. All said they were in no actual danger, but some admitted they had feared for the future.

Hard Fighting at Torreon.

Wild scenes of disorder marked the night at Torreon. About 2,000 revolutionists took positions on the river front opposite the city and 600 soldiers engaged them from the city side. The Mexican Central right of way was kept cleared by soldiers and rurales. Many of the rebels were said to be unarmed.

Reports came over the wires late this afternoon that there had been desultory fighting near Torreon, but no general attack.

One estimate had it to-day that between 8,000 and 10,000 revolutionists were gathered between the City of Chihuahua and the plant of the American Smelting and Refining Company. All responsible citizens were armed and expecting to be attacked at any moment. Defenders occupied the tops of all the banks, churches, and large buildings.

Desultory fighting began on the outskirts of Chihuahua at midnight.

All the towns west of Chihuahua on the railway to Madera were said to have practically declared against Diaz. The line is owned by an English syndicate headed by Dr. F. S. Pearson. Wires are cut and little information can be secured.

The report that many soldiers had been killed by the dynamiting of a bridge and wrecking of a train on this railroad was confirmed. Reports state that a Captain was among the killed.

Gen. Trevine, commanding the troops of the northern military zone of Mexico, with headquarters at Monterey, left that city at 2 o'clock this afternoon with a large body of troops destined for Chihuahua.

Other reports received to-day were of further fighting at Parral and a riot at Zacatecas, which was quickly put down.

Apparently unfounded rumors were sent out of Eagle Pass this afternoon that a revolutionary force was marching on Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and that an attack was expected to-night.

Fail to Catch Madero.

Mexican soldiers late to-day raided the San Enrique ranch of Francisco I. Madero, leader of the uprising in Mexico, on the chance of surrounding him and capturing several thousand horses believed to be on the estate. They seized 250 horses, but Madero was not found.

Reports have had it that Madero was headed for the San Enrique property in the State of Coahuila. Furthermore, it was believed by the Mexican authorities that Madero had placed 2,000 horses there with which he intended to mount a force of cavalry.

Reports from Army Headquarters at Monterey declare a large number of Federal troops are en route to Monclova, Coahuila, to meet Madero, who is reported marching on that place, with about 1,000 well-equipped cavalry and several hundred infantry. This force is said to be gaining recruits all along the line of march.

Another report has it that Madero yesterday afternoon reached a point between Monterey and Torreon at the head of a considerable force. Telegraphers, supposed to be with him, cut in on the Mexican International Railroad wires and asked about the movement of Mexican Federal troops.

On the International Railway which runs from Monterey to Torreon, Monclova, and Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, wires are reported prostrated, having been cut. It is in the neighborhood of these cities that serious trouble is developing. That section generally bears the reputation of being a hotbed of revolutionists.

Train service on the Mexican International Railroad has been resumed, but schedules are uncertain. Telegraph communication has been restored between Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and Mexico City.

FROST FISH IN THE BAY

Being Caught by the Dozen, and a Fine Dinner They Make.

Many hundreds of the Thanksgiving dinners eaten to-day will consist of "frost fish," otherwise ling and whiting. For the last fortnight vast schools of these fish have been "breaking" off the beach along Coney Island and as soon as city folk who could not afford to buy turkeys for to-day's dinner, and many of those who could, heard of this, they went down to Coney Island with fish lines and angled diligently off the Dreamland, Steeplechase, and Iron Piers.

The schools are so large and they come so close in shore that both at day and night their fins can be seen cleaving the water within a dozen yards of the piers. Occasionally half a dozen of the fish at a time will leap clear of the water with a great flashing of silver.

Sometimes the fish seem to have crowded so close to the shore that they lack room to swim freely in. They found their way into Gravesend Bay last Monday night and since that time many city folks have been catching them from the coal docks and boat landings. The fish have also been dying in great numbers in the shallow water into which they are forced, and have been carted away in the wagons of fertilizing and phosphate-making concerns.

Every one who goes to Coney Island these days is met at the railroad and trolley stations by "barkers" selling minnows for bait. Only a few of these minnows are necessary, however, for the fishermen find that by cutting up the first fish, they get just as good bait.

The whiting come to the Coney Island shore every year to feed. Some folks think that bigger fish drive them in or that they are driven in by the coming of cold weather. They are good eating in almost every way they are cooked, but Coney Island connoisseurs say that the best way to cook them is to fry them in cracker crumbs.

More than five hundred people spent yesterday on the Dreamland pier fishing for them.

MRS. DAVIDSON SUES.

Says Household Goods Seized for Husband's Debts Were Hers.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Pearl Davidson filed a suit this afternoon to replevin from the Sheriff household goods in the Aberdeen apartments seized on attachment suits against her husband, A. J. Davidson, on the ground that they belonged to her, with the exception of the piano. Her claim includes, however, the wines and liquors in the apartment. As the suit is directed against the Sheriff, service on him must be had through the Coroner's office, according to the usual procedure.

The freedom with which Davidson and his wife spent his big salaries as President of the 'Frisco Railroad and Vice President of the American Creosoting Company in Chicago is said by their friends to be responsible for their present plight.

Davidson's liberality in St. Louis and Chicago hotels was the gossip of the bellboys and waiters. It was said that when he and his wife were stopping at the Hotel Jefferson here, Mrs. Davidson had thirty pairs of shoes, with hose to match each pair. The remainder of her wardrobe was on a corresponding scale of prodigality, and she was remarked as one of the most expensively gowned women in St. Louis.

When questioned at Fort Worth, Texas, where she now is, Mrs. Davidson betrayed no uneasiness over the situation in St. Louis. She declared that her relations with her husband were what they had always been, and said that all questions about her suits should be referred to him.

Davidson's last appearance in Chicago, so far as is known, was when he was guest at the Congress Hotel. He was known to attendants there as a "live wire." Not infrequently, according to news telegrams, his bills for wine and extras ran to $1,000 a week. His last visit to the cashier's window was Oct. 10, when he is said to have settled his indebtedness to the hotel with checks aggregating $3,000.

Davidson's lavish hospitality may have resulted in injury to him, his friends believe. They think he may have been the victim of some unscrupulous friends he had been entertaining, or may have been struck down by thugs, and will be found in some hospital.

TAFT'S TURKEY ARRIVES.

But Horace Vose Hearing It Hasn't, - Consternation Grips Rhode Island.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Taft's Thanksgiving Day turkey will, as usual, be from the farm of Horace Vose, near Westerly, R. I., which for a generation past has yearly supplied the biggest bird from its flock to tempt the appetite of successive Presidents.

This year's turkey, one of the finest which the Rhode Islander ever sent this way, arrived to-day. Fears were entertained yesterday that the White House would have to go to market and buy its own turkey for this Thanksgiving.

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 23.—There is consternation in the heart of Horace Vose and of all Rhode Island turkey growers over a report that the bird which maintains the reputation of this State on the President's Thanksgiving table has not yet arrived.

The turkey, "as fine a bird as I ever sent to Washington," says Mr. Vose, "was shipped from here on Monday and should have arrived at the White House by this time. The bird this year weighs 30 pounds and as usual was the pick of about a dozen of the finest which I selected as candidates."

Until a reassuring report comes from Washington that the turkey has arrived there will be much anxiety at the home of Mr. Vose and among his fellow poultry men.

ELY TO FLY TO SHIP.

Announces He Will Make the Attempt at San Diego in Two Months.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Willard Sullivan, daughter of the Rev. W. E. Evans, rector of the Church of the Advent of this city, is the first woman in the South to take a trip in an aeroplane. She went up at the fair grounds this afternoon with Eugene B. Ely in a remarkably successful flight. Ely and Ward of the Curtiss team have been making flights here at the Birmingham aviation meet.

Ely received a letter to-day from Secretary of the Navy Meyer congratulating him on his recent flight from the deck of the cruiser Birmingham, and asking him if he will attempt a flight from the deck of a war vessel and return, landing again on the deck.

Ely announced that he would make the trial at San Diego in about two months.

9,113,279 PEOPLE IN NEW YORK STATE

Gain of 1,844,385, or 25.4 Per Cent., Since 1900—City Has More Than Half.

LARGE VOTE IN CONGRESS

State Entitled to a Tenth of the House —Ohio Has 4,767,121 People, an Increase of 609,576.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—New York State has one-tenth of the population of the entire country, according to the statistics of the Thirteenth Census, made public to-day by Director Durand. The number of its inhabitants is given as 9,113,279, while the figures for the whole United States are not expected to reach 91,000,000. This means that the Congressional delegation from New York will be one-tenth of the entire House of Representatives. The present membership of that body is 391, of which 37 are from the Empire State, and to Congress in its next session will fall the duty of passing the twelfth apportionment bill.

For the first time in its history the population of New York City has outstripped that of the rest of the State, the figures for the metropolis having already been given out as 4,766,883. The city leads the rest of the State by some 420,487 inhabitants, whereas, in 1900, the balance was more than 300,000 the other way.

After each decennial census Congress passes an apportionment bill to define the number of members of the House to which the several States are entitled. Every State has at least one member. The first Constitution adopted by the original thirteen States fixed the number of members at 65 and the ratio of representation at 30,000. With the growth of the country that basis has increased from decade to decade, until in 1890 the basis was 173,901, and 193,175 in 1900.

There has been much comment of late on the unwieldy proportions of the lower House. It is thought that there will be a strong effort to so increase the basis of representation that the succeeding House will be no larger than the present one, despite the increase in population, and if possible to reduce its membership. Conflicting with this plan will be the obvious disinclination of any of the members to legislate themselves out of office, a motive so compelling that the probabilities are for a membership slightly larger than the present one.

At any rate, the proportional representation of New York State will be one-tenth. If the new basis of representation is so fixed as to increase the membership of the House, it will mean more Representatives from the Empire State, and the census figures indicate that most, if not all, the new members would come from New York City. Were the present basis renewed at the next session, New York would have ten new members in the House.

The State population has grown 25.4 per cent. in the last ten years, while the increase from 1890 to 1900 was only 21.1 per cent. The present increase is the largest the State has made in its history, with the exception of the years from 1840 to 1850, when the growth was 27.5 per cent. Since 1870 the State has doubled in population, a growth which the census officials attribute to the marked development of cities, with the expansion of manufacturing interests and the impetus of foreign immigration.

There are 1,844,385 more people in the State to-day than there were ten years ago, and of this advance 1,329,681 may be traced to the State's largest city.

Albany	173,666	Oneida	154,157

Director Durand also made public to-day the figures for the State of Ohio, which now has a population of 4,767,121. Gov. Harmon is thus the executive for just 238 more people than is Mayor Gaynor. Ohio has increased 609,576, or 14.7 per cent., since 1909, while the increase for the preceding decade was slightly less than that. Should the present basis of representation be retained, Ohio would gain three seats in the House.

The drift of population from the agricultural districts to the cities in the older States of the Union is clearly indicated in the census returns of the States of New York and Ohio.

MUTINY ON WARSHIPS AT BRAZIL'S CAPITAL

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Dispatches received here from Rio Janeiro show that a serious mutiny has occurred in the Brazilian fleet now in that harbor. At least one of the dreadnoughts recently built in England is in the possession of its crew, and the city seems to have suffered bombardment.

A private dispatch received at Barrow to-night says that the crews of Brazilian warships mutinied and fired on the capital. The dispatch gave no further details. Apparently it was sent to give information as to the safety of several Barrow engineers who accompanied the warships Minas Geraes and Sao Paulo from England to Brazil.

According to a private telegram from Rio Janiero all business has been suspended there, and the situation is critical. Negotiations between officers ashore and mutinous marines on board one or more of the warships have not yet been concluded.

The Brazilian Legation here has received a dispatch that the outbreak was not of a political nature. According to this dispatch the crew of a Dreadnought lying in the harbor mutinied against the officers. The Government has taken the necessary measures to restore order.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 23.—A dispatch received here from Rio Janeiro says that the crews of several warships of the Brazilian fleet revolted last evening. Their act appears to be merely a case of insubordination, having no political character. A rigorous censorship is being maintained by the Brazilian Government, which has prevented the sending out of further information.

A vague rumor was circulated late yesterday on the Coffee Exchange that a revolutionary outbreak had taken place in Brazil, but no details were obtainable, and the source of the report could not be traced. The battleship Sao Paulo, with President-elect Marshal Hermes Fonseca aboard, arrived at Rio Janeiro on Oct. 25 from Lisbon. At that time the whole Brazilian fleet was in the harbor.

The Minas Geraes was launched at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, on Sept. 9, 1908. She is one of the most powerful warships ever built for any navy. She has a displacement of about 20,000 tons and carries an armament of twelve 12-inch guns, arranged in such a way that ten of them can be fired simultaneously on either broadside, eight in a line with the keel ahead and eight in a line with the keel astern.

The Sao Paulo is a sister ship of the Minas Geraes. She was launched at Barrow-on-Furness in April, 1909.

RESCUE THREE AGED WOMEN.

Carried Down Ladders in Suspicious Brooklyn Fire—One Is 97 Years Old.

Firemen rescued three women, one of them 97 years old, yesterday at a fire in a four-story apartment house, at 299 Hancock Street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Mary Walker, who lives in the house adjoining, noticed smoke coming into her rooms through the front window, and caused an alarm to be rung.

When the firemen arrived Miss Mary Dunn informed them that Mrs. Mary Batty, 97 years old, and her daughters, Mrs. Orpha I. Cooks, 67 years, and Mrs. M. Azelia Budd, 75 years old, were trapped on the second floor. The halls were filled with smoke, so the firemen placed a ladder to the window and carried the women down them to the street. The women were almost overcome with smoke and fright.

The fire, which started in a rubbish pile in the cellar, was the third within two months in the building. The cellar door, which was locked by the janitor on Tuesday night, was still locked when the firemen arrived. Fire Marshal Beers has begun an investigation.

COL. WETMORE BADLY HURT.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23.—Col. Moses C. Wetmore, a wealthy retired tobacco manufacturer and Democratic National Committeeman from Missouri, was run down at Broadway and Olive Street this afternoon and dangerously injured by a delivery wagon. He sustained a fracture of the skull, a fracture of the right shoulder, and probably a fracture of the right hip.

The wheels of the wagon passed over Col. Wetmore before the driver could stop. Col. Wetmore lay in the street in a helpless condition until a patrolman picked him up and carried him to a private automobile, in which he was removed to the dispensary and then to his home.

Col. Wetmore has been in poor health for some months. He is 65 years old, and has been a figure in Democratic National politics for many years. He is one of the most intimate friends of W. J. Bryan. Col. Wetmore has been a large contributor to the Bryan campaigns, and in the last one took charge of the finances in the National Democratic headquarters in Chicago.

$50,000,000 CHARTER FILED.

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 23.—Articles of incorporation of the newly formed Washington-Oregon Railway & Navigation Company were filed here this afternoon. The charter provides for a corporation with a capitalization of $50,000,000 controlled by the Union Pacific.

The new corporation is authorized to absorb all present and prospective lines of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, the Oregon & Washington Railroad Company, the North Coast Railroad Company, and also many smaller lines in the Pacific Northwest.

It is estimated that the total mileage of the combination, when the lines are completed, will be about 4,000 miles, not including electric lines.

DREXEL WINS RECORD RISING 9,970 FEET

Recording Ink Apparently Ran Out and the Airman May Have Reached 10,000 Feet—Made Ill by Fast Descent.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—J. Armstrong Drexel of this city and London ascended to an altitude of 9,970 feet in a Blériot monoplane to-day, breaking the world's record of 9,714 feet made at the recent International meeting in New York by Ralph Johnstone, the aviator who fell to his death in Overland Park in Denver last week. Not only did he break the world's record, but he made a flight that in many respects has seldom been approached in daring, picturesqueness, and general expert handling of an aeroplane.

He ascended from Point Breeze at 3:22 o'clock this afternoon, soared 2,000 feet above the driving park, floated slowly from view over West Philadelphia, and, finally, when he could not longer force his machine upward, made a straight glide of seven miles and landed lightly in a field a half mile west of Oreland Station, on the Buffalo Branch of the Reading Railway, more than twenty-five miles from Point Breeze.

The barograph which recorded the marvelous flight was the one that recorded Johnstone's record. It was brought over to this city to-day by James King Duffy, Secretary of the National Council of the Associated Aero Clubs of America. The seal of the barograph was broken in Mr. Drexel's room in the Bellevue-Stratford to-night by Clifford B. Harmon, Chairman of the National Council, and the figures were announced at once as the official record.

It is possible that Drexel really ascended to 10,000 feet. The ink in the recording needle of the barograph gave out when 9,970 feet was reached, but a tiny and irregular scratch which followed seemed to show that Drexel perhaps had jumped his Blériot above the official figures.

After he reached the altitude of 9,000 feet Drexel found that the monoplane refused to mount further and he made the balance of flight in jumps. He lowered his machine a hundred feet and by suddenly throwing on all possible power literally hurled himself upward. This process he repeated until he found that he was merely bouncing up and down, unable to ascend above the 10,000-foot mark.

His engine did not miss an explosion. His mechanism did not fail him in the least degree, but he did not know where he was, nor had he any idea where he would land. He was unable to see beneath or around. The frigid atmosphere froze the tears that the cold brought streaming over his cheeks. He turned and shot his machine downward without so much as making a spiral or a sweep. He broke through the clouds at a height of 5,000 feet and slid into the valley of the Chelten Hills.

A farmer had been driving along the Fort Washington Road. He saw suddenly a great dragon fly alight in Harry Graber's valley meadow. A queerly garbed man climbed stiffly out of the craft, and gazed about him. He did not make a sound. The farmer called to a passing countryman, and together they ran across the field to find Drexel actually ill from his experience. The terrific descent had rendered the aviator almost speechless. He was deaf and his hands refused to clutch the sides of the monoplane so stiffened they were. He tottered on his feet. The countrymen stood aside, awed, and waited until Drexel recovered. Finally he regained control of his benumbed senses. He told then who he was and where he had come from.

"Where am I?" he asked. "Will you please take me to a place where I can telephone to my friends?"

But the farmers did not understand, and wanted to take Drexel to the doctor's house, three miles across country, in the little village where they lived. They led him up the side of the valley and he saw the tiny railroad station. He ran to it and called up the Bellevue-Stratford. The news was wired to the Aviation Field at Point Breeze and an automobile set out at once for Drexel.

Mr. Drexel announced to-night that he would fly the machine back to the Aviation Field to-morrow morning. He was greatly disappointed when he found that the barograph had failed to record an even ten thousand feet.

"The air was so light it was impossible to make the machine ascend another foot," he said. "The engine would not carry it any further, and I was up at the extreme altitude for more than fifteen minutes, jumping the machine in an effort to get greater height. The barograph record shows how I worked."

The aviator said that while it was very cold he did not suffer as he had done when he made his previous records of 6,750 feet at Lanark, Scotland, and 8,370 feet at Belmont Park, because he was more warmly clad. He wore a specially constructed canvas suit over lamb's wool underwear and three sweaters. His hands were encased in fur lined gloves, and he wore a woolen cap and a mask with goggles to protect his head and face.

McCURDY UP AT MOBILE.

Smashes Craft to Avoid Hitting Grand Stand, but Patches It and Flies Again.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 23.—Three flights by J. A. D. McCurdy, one of which terminated in a slight accident, before the largest crowd that has yet attended the flights, marked the third day of the week's aviation meet.

McCurdy after sailing for some time alighted, the machine running along the ground toward the grandstand. McCurdy saw that he would crash into the stand, so swerved the machine quickly. It turned to one side and tore away one of the planes. It was repaired, and in a short time McCurdy made another flight.

Augustus Post's engine went wrong and he never ascended.

GARROS UP OVER RICHMOND.

Frenchman Covers Nine Miles Above Broad Street in 7½ Minutes.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 23.—Roland Garros, a French aviator participating in the international aviation meet being held here this week, gave an exhibition flight over the city this morning just as the Presidential parade was leaving the Capitol.

He flew over Broad Street for its entire length, his total flight covering nine miles, which he covered in 7½ minutes. It was the second time Garros, who usually flies a tiny Demoiselle, had been aloft in a Blériot monoplane. It was John B. Moisant's Statue of Liberty flier.

Rene Simon made a flight over the city also. Both Garros and Simon flew at an altitude of 3,000 feet and their unfamiliarity with the appearance of the City Hall tower, their turning point, caused them to travel further than they had intended to fly.

Charles K. Hamilton and Rene Barrier gave a series of exhibition flights at the State Fair grounds.

EXCISE INCOME INCREASES.

Almost $900,000 Gain in Revenue for Last October Over 1909.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The revenue collected by the State Excise Department in October, the beginning of the fiscal year when liquor tax certificates are renewed, was $17,483,559.05. This includes moneys received from all sources, such as liquor tax certificates, all night permits, transfers, fines, penalties, and interest on deposits.

The amount collected from the same sources for the corresponding month last year was $16,620,272.73, making a net increase this year of $863,266.32.

NEAR-BEER HARD HIT.

Subject to Same Penalties as Genuine Article, Ohio Court Rules.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 23.—Near-beer is now on a par in Ohio with ordinary beer, according to a decision of the Supreme Court in a case from Fulton County. It was held in the original case that a malt liquor came within the provisions of the county option law regardless of the amount of alcohol in it, and whether it was intoxicating or not. The Circuit Court reversed the Common Pleas Court and the Supreme Court reversed the Circuit Court.

Dealers in near-beer are now liable for an annual saloon tax of $1,000, and for fines if they are located in dry territory.

INDIAN WOMAN DIVORCEE.

Disciple of Higher Education Makes New Record for Her Race in Nevada.

CARSON, Nev., Nov. 23.—For the first time under the laws of this State a full-blooded Indian woman received a decree of divorce from her Indian husband yesterday.

Minnie Gallbrath, a graduate of the Indian Training School, near this city, was the plaintiff. She charged cruelty and neglect, and received the custody of her son.

ROCK ISLAND CUTS FORCE.

Uncertain Trade Conditions Given as Reason for Unusual Reduction.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Announcement was made to-day by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway that the annual reduction of shop forces would be made immediately.

The cut this year will be a trifle further than to the usual Winter basis, it was added, in line with the road's announced policy of economy due to uncertain trade conditions of the immediate future.

CONTEST MRS. STELLE'S WILL

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Heirs of the late Mrs. Fannie Surdam Stelle, the widow who bequeathed $25,000 of her $350,000 fortune to Edgar H. Accetta, a young Italian, to-day asked the Probate Court to set aside the probating of the will. Accetta had sued her in New York for alleged breach of promise.

The petitioners assert they had no notice of the application for letters testamentary, and charge that former Judge Nash Rockwood of Saratoga, N. Y., executor under the will, "designedly neglected" to notify them. The greater part of the estate was willed to Elmer E. Earl of West Troy, N. Y.

HOT SPRINGS GAMBLER LOSES

O'Brien Sentenced to 60 Days in Jail and Fined $250.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 23.—A jury of Virginia mountaineers found Tom O'Brien of New York guilty of having conducted a gambling house here, and he was sentenced to-night to two months in jail and a $250 fine. All but a handful had left the courthouse when the jury, piloted by a little kerosene lamp, came filing in.

The jail designated is the county jail, five miles from Hot Springs, on a bleak hill, opposite The Oaks, a tea house that New York society people make a rendezvous in season. No work is provided for the occupants, and they are not in solitary confinement. Few men not negroes go to jail in Bath County.

O'Brien has sixty days' respite under bail, and there is possible escape in an appeal to the Court of Errors.

O'Brien was his own sole witness to-day and tried to show that he was not the proprietor of the Woodland Club.

RUEF LOSES ON APPEAL.

San Francisco Bribe-Giver's Fourteen-year Sentence Sustained Throughout.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The District Court of Appeals of the First District sustained to-day the conviction of Abraham Ruef, formerly political boss of this city, charged with having bribed Supervisors. The court denied him a new trial.

The decision is contained in forty-six pages written by Presiding Judge Cooper and affirms the lower court on all points. Ruef had been sentenced to fourteen years imprisonment and was at liberty on bail.

Ruef's attorneys have forty days in which to prepare an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Abraham Ruef was generally credited with being in control of the political situation in San Francisco in the incumbency of Mayor Eugene Schmitz. He was convicted of attempting to bribe John J. Furey, a member of the Schmitz Board of Supervisors, to vote for an overhead trolley franchise for the United Railroads, the President of which, Patrick Calhoun, is also under indictment. Calhoun has been tried twice, but the jury in each case was unable to agree.

YARINI, WHITE SLAVER, DEAD.

Mob at Bier of Notorious Havana Character Killed in Pistol Fight.

HAVANA, Nov. 23.—A strong force of mounted and foot police was required to-night to preserve order among the enormous crowd gathered to view the body of Alberto Yarini, who two years ago committed a murderous assault on J. Cornell Tarlar, Chargé d'Affaires of the American Legation in the absence of Minister Edwin V. Morgan. The body is lying in state at his late residence.

Yarini, who was a prominent Conservative and was recognized as the chief of the Cuban white slave traders, died yesterday from wounds received in a desperate pistol fight in one of Havana's notorious districts with a rival in the traffic, a Frenchman. Several others also engaged in the fight, and two Frenchmen were killed. Yarini's funeral will be held to-morrow, and will probably be made the occasion of a popular demonstration.

LET PRIVATE CAPITAL AID CITY'S CREDIT

$57,000,000 IS AVAILABLE

If Some Company Would Furnish Rest Construction Could Go On in All Boroughs—Perhaps Interborough Will.

Mayor William J. Gaynor made another contribution to the subway discussion last night in the form of a letter to President Henry R. Towne of the Merchants' Association. He expressed approval of the suggestion that the Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce appoint a joint committee to consider the various routes and plans of subway development, and a further expression of his opinion that many people who are talking about subways do not know much about them.

In particular, however, the Mayor pointed to what he considered a prospective increase of $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 in the city's margin of borrowing capacity over and above the $57,000,000 credit now available for subway construction. This extraordinary increase for 1911 results, according to his idea, from the equalization of land valuations throughout the city, in addition to the normal increase due to the annual appreciation of the city's taxable real estate. But there will be many demands on this new borrowing capacity, the Mayor added.

In view of this situation Mayor Gaynor says:

"If some company would put in all the capital needed over and above the $57,000,000, which the city has available, the subway difficulty would be solved, and the work of construction could go on in all the boroughs instead of piecemeal."

He asserts, by way of postscript to his letter, that no member of the Board of Estimate is pledged to any route, notwithstanding statements to the contrary.

New Interborough Offer Rumored.

The Mayor's letter stirred up a lot of new interest in the subway situation last night. A report was in circulation a day or two ago that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company intended making a bid on the operation of extensions of the present Subway from Forty-second Street north, up Lexington Avenue, and from Times Square south along Seventh Avenue, and certain extensions in the Boroughs of Brooklyn and the Bronx, provided that the city would contribute $30,000,000 toward the cost of construction in return for its own expenditure of a like sum. The report was not confirmed.

Last night, however, a further rumor was in circulation that the Interborough would, following the suggestion of the Mayor's letter, ask the city to use what subway building capacity it has at the present time in the construction of extensions, and then offer itself to complete the construction and to equip and operate a system put together much on the lines suggested by the Brooklyn Transit Conference.

That organization proposed that the Brooklyn extensions of the Triborough route be added to the Interborough's extensions in Manhattan and branches in the Bronx. In this suggestion, as well as in the correspondence exchanged between President Shonts of the Interborough, Mayor Gaynor, and Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission last Summer, Lexington Avenue above Forty-second Street was given over to the Interborough's extensions. That section of Lexington Avenue is also embraced in the Triborough route, as bid upon by William G. McAdoo of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company.

Mayor's Letter.

Office of the Mayor.
Nov. 23, 1910.

Dear Sir: I shall be most glad to see your suggestion carried out, that the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association appoint a joint committee to consider the various subway routes, plans, and offers, which have been and may hereafter be submitted, and assist the public authorities to a wise selection. As well as I can make out, there are very few persons in the city who have traced or studied on the map the routes which have been thus far proposed.

Many are loudly demanding one route or another without any precise knowledge of any route, much less of all the routes, and with only a vague notion on the subject. Some of our intelligent newspapers display in their editorials accurate knowledge of the various routes, and of the subject in all of its parts, including the financial one, as we have a right to expect, while other newspapers are manifestly ignorant in respect of all of these particulars.

No doubt a committee such as you propose could do much to make the intelligent mind of the city study and understand the various routes and the whole subway question.

Some are talking of an expenditure of $180,000,000 or $200,000,000 by the city in the building of subways immediately, or within five years, as glibly and nimbly as though the city actually had that much credit available. But the hard fact is that the city has now an available credit of only $57,000,000.

Extraordinary Credit Increase, $60,000,000.

It is only by a special effort in the equalizing of land values throughout the city by the Tax Commissioners this year, thereby raising some assessed values that were relatively too low, that we shall have in the coming year the extraordinary increase in assessed valuation of probably from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000, and thus an additional borrowing capacity or credit of from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000; but all of that, if not more, will be needed for ordinary purposes other than subways—for public buildings and improvements which may not be postponed any longer.

All of the city's credit cannot be devoted to subways. In the years following we shall not have the extraordinary increase in assessed values of this year, but only the ordinary increase, affording an additional yearly borrowing capacity which, after being diminished by the ordinary or regular needs of government, will leave only a comparatively small sum for subway construction.

It was with this in mind that I ventured to express the hope in January last that some company would come forward to build the subways, which are immediately necessary, with its own capital, or at least offering to put in one-half or a substantial part of the necessary capital, if the city would furnish the balance. If some company would put in all the capital needed over and above the $57,000,000 which the city has available, the subway difficulty would be solved and the work of construction could go on in all of the boroughs simultaneously instead of piecemeal.

City Will Own Subway in Any Case.

Some people cry out almost in tones of anger at this that the Subways must be built with the city's money exclusively, but only because they have the false notion in their heads that if a Subway be built by private capital it must be owned by the builder and not by the city, and they are justly opposed to such private ownership.

They do not know that under the provisions of the law applicable to the case the Subway would belong to the city from the start, whether built by city money or private money on the limited franchise term which the city gives. Some, again, are so prejudiced against the present Subway company on account of the crowded condition of the cars that they scorn any proposition of that company for the building of additional Subways to relieve the congestion. This sounds odd, but it is woefully true.

The committee you propose can do good work in dissipating all of these errors and prejudices and stop all bickering. To get opposing sides to listen to reason and agree, the first thing always is to allay all bitterness, which is very often the hardest job of all. Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

H. R. Towne, Esq., President Merchants' Association.

P. S.—I add that no member of the Board of Estimate is pledged to any route, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, but all are open to a full consideration of this great matter. W. J. G.

McADOO PREPARES NEW OFFER.

Operation of Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) Subway Will Be Considered in It.

William G. McAdoo and his associates in the executive management of the Hudson & Manhattan Railway Company are now devoting all their time to the preparations for bidding on the operation of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, extension of the triborough subway.

Yesterday, Mr. McAdoo, with Wilbur C. Fisk, Vice President of the Hudson & Manhattan, who represents Harvey Fisk & Co., the bankers for the McAdoo system, and J. V. Davies, chief engineer of the McAdoo companies, made a trip over the line of the Fourth Avenue subway, in Brooklyn, and put in the remainder of the day working on plans and estimates.

It is expected now that Mr. McAdoo will submit to the Public Service Commission early next week a supplemental proposal to the bid which he has already made for the operation of the triborough route with certain modifications. The supplemental proposal will probably suggest an operating basis for the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, subway and place the McAdoo people definitely on record as willing to operate the Bronx extensions, when they may be built.

It is understood that the attitude of the McAdoo interests in this respect coincides with the announced attitude of the Public Service Commission, namely, that it is essential to get under way that part of the work on the triborough route, which will require four or five years for construction, and not to waste time at this juncture in considering details relating to sections, which will not take more than a year and a half or two years to complete, when they are once put under way.

From what can be learned of Mr. McAdoo's recent conversations with Messrs. Prendergast and Mitchel of the Board of Estimate and with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, it is gathered, however, that the Hudson & Manhattan interests have left no doubt of their desire to operate the whole triborough, as modified in the proposal of last week, including the Fourth Avenue line in Brooklyn and the elevated extensions in the Bronx.

Mr. McAdoo talked over the telephone yesterday with both the Controller and President Mitchel of the Aldermen, and with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission. They all said that they had nothing to add to previous accounts of their talks together.

Meantime, in the Board of Estimate yesterday, a resolution was introduced by Controller Prendergast and adopted, which was intended to place the board in possession of complete information regarding the city's subway building ability. The resolution directed the Controller to prepare before the board's meeting of Dec. 2 an estimate of the city's margin of borrowing capacity on June 30, 1911; over and above the amount of corporate stock and other debt limit liabilities then outstanding.

It directed the Tax Department to prepare and submit to the board not later than Dec. 2 an estimate of the probable increase in assessed valuations of taxable real estate for the year 1911, and for subsequent years to 1915. The several city departments were also directed to prepare and send to the board, not later than Dec. 15, estimates of their prospective requirements in the matter of issuing corporate stock for the year 1911, and, as far as possible, for subsequent years down to 1915.

CRITICISES McADOO OFFER.

Mr. Rea of the Pennsylvania Finds No Comfort in It for That Road.

Samuel Rea, Second Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, made this statement in connection with the Subway situation.

"The only benefit of the Hudson Company's offer is that it will undoubtedly hasten the satisfactory solution of the rapid transit situation and terminate the neglect of the west side, but the Hudson Company's proposition would not provide real rapid transit for the west side of the city or for the Pennsylvania station. The Pennsylvania Railroad would not discourage any offer that would result in direct and convenient rapid transit, and especially so if proposed by the Hudson Company, with which it has always maintained a very friendly relation.

"However, no person with an intimate knowledge of the New York situation will believe that a two-track local line from Tenth Street under Broadway, to Thirty-third Street, and a transfer at that point to a moving platform for the Pennsylvania station, offers any more convenience for the west side and the Pennsylvania Station than do the existing lines. To the uptown passenger on either the east or west side the proposition does not offer any substantial attraction over the facilities which will be at his disposal when the present Hudson Company extensions are completed.

"Therefore, any final analysis of the situation which will consider impartially the necessities of the traffic and the engineering and financial problems involved, must result in the conviction that the only effective way of meeting the city's needs is a four-track subway on the west side and a four-track subway on the west side, extending directly into various points in Brooklyn and the Bronx, so that the passengers may travel between Manhattan and Brooklyn or the Bronx by continuous train service, and also have proper and convenient connections into the Borough of Queens.

"Such a subway system can be effected by means of extensions to the present Subway of the city, or by an independent and competitive route, and should prove sufficiently attractive to enlist private capital, in whole or in the larger part, for its construction and operation."

SUBWAYS TOO COSTLY, IT SAYS.

Congestion Commission Wants City to Build Surface and Elevated Lines.

The Congestion of Population Commission held an executive session yesterday on the transit situation and developed several new ideas. It was proposed that legislation be obtained to enable the city to take the initiative in constructing surface and elevated lines. It was argued that subways are too expensive for undeveloped territory, and, under the present conditions of building development, only tend to increase congestion.

Attention was also given to the New York Connecting Railroad in Queens, and it was decided to devote a great deal of attention in the Commission's report to the suggestions that have been made at its hearings for the further construction of suburban freight lines, as a means for bringing business into the suburbs and thus relieving congestion.

THANKSGIVING WAGE INCREASE ON B. R. T.

Company Adds 5 Per Cent. to the Pay of Its 10,000 Employes.

WILL COST $300,000 A YEAR

Bulletins Announcing the Raise Posted in Car Barns—Appreciation for the Men.

To-day will be a real Thanksgiving Day with 10,000 of the employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Announcement was made by the company yesterday that it would increase the pay of motormen, conductors, and guards on its surface and elevated roads 5 per cent. The advance will be made voluntarily by the company. It will go into effect in January.

The increase in wages will carry with it an advance in standing for all of the men with clear records. Each man in good standing will go up a grade on Jan. 6, and, accordingly, will receive, in addition to the 5 per cent. increase announced yesterday, a further increase which his new grade will entitle him to.

At the offices of the company it was said that most of the men affected were in good standing.

The advance will cost the company about $300,000 annually on its pay roll. Last April wages were increased close to 5 per cent. and assurance was given to the men of another increase of 2½ per cent. after the first of the year. Their expectations are thus doubled by yesterday's announcement and the putting forward of the first-class men's standing is an additional windfall.

Computing the average family or dependents of the 10,000 men affected at 5, the raise affects about 50,000 people in Brooklyn.

Bulletins announcing the increase were posted in the company's barns and yards yesterday afternoon, and the news was carried home to their families in time to add cheer to to-day's Thanksgiving festivities. Reduced to the individual basis, the increase means that conductors of surface lines who now get $14 a week will receive $14.70 a week after Jan. 6, and in addition the corresponding increase in pay which goes with the year's advance in standing.

Motormen who now receive $18 a week will get an additional 90 cents, and also the increase belonging to the advance in grade. The advances of the employes on the elevated lines are of corresponding sums.

The statement came from General Manager Calderwood, who said that the bulletins posted telling of the terms were the company's Thanksgiving offering to the men. It was said at the company's offices that the officials in charge of the operation of the road had been appreciative of the way in which the men had taken hold of the new and more complicated transfer system, although it was not admitted that the abolition of many transfer points on Oct. 15 and the consequent saving to the company had been the secret of the company's willingness to spend more on wages.

The Public Service Commission has already received complaints from the Board of Trade and other public bodies in Brooklyn of the decrease in transfers and the matter has yet to be passed upon.

TO BURN TOWN POORHOUSE.

Montclair Will Celebrate Shortly with a $5,000 Bonfire.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Nov. 23.—Citizens of this town will be entertained some time in the Christmas holidays by a $5,000 bonfire, the material for which will be provided by the town Poor House and its contents.

The Poor House, which stands on a knoll in the southern part of the town, near the Glen Ridge line, will be abandoned next week, when its thirteen inmates will be transferred to the Orange Poor House, near Livingston. The structure has stood for many years, and recently was subjected to severe condemnation by charity organizations of the town.

The building is on a park tract which the Essex County Park Commission desires to improve, and the commission recently requested the town to remove it. The town authorities, however, have decided that the best method of disposal is incineration, and the building and its furnishings will shortly be destroyed by fire. The town carried about $4,500 insurance on the building and contents until a few weeks ago.

The building and its contents could be sold, as only to-day Mayor Crawford received an offer for the structure from a man who intended to use the material for constructing a house in the poorer quarter of Montclair, but it was feared that the house, having long sheltered the sick and decrepit, might contribute to the spread of contagion.

The bonfire will be under the supervision of the Montclair Fire Department, which will have lines of hose stretched from near-by hydrants and manned to prevent the possible spread of the flames.

Free Dinners from Day Nursery.

The Little Missionary Day Nursery at 93 St. Marks Place announced last night that it had delivered 1,000 Thanksgiving dinners yesterday to destitute families in this city, and that many more would be sent out to-day. The baskets contain enough food for from three to eight persons.

SOLD CITY COLLEGE STUDY CERTIFICATES

False Ones Issued for Three Years and an Ex-Assistant Registrar Is Indicted.

MANY MAY BE CANCELLED

Certificates Disposed of to Anybody, Prices Ranging from $20 to $100 Each—Some of Them Forged.

Joshua Golubock of 840 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, who until two weeks ago was employed as an Assistant Registrar in City College, was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday on the charge of having sold false and forged certificates of study to young men wishing to take up the practice of law and medicine for sums ranging from $20 to $100 each. These certificates are given to students by the college when the students have taken a certain stipulated course of study set by the Board of Regents and show that they are prepared to take the Regents' examinations.

In the indictment it is charged that Golubock sold one false and one forged certificate to two young men who aspired to practice law and medicine, respectively, and that he had made a practice of doing this since 1907, when he first entered the employ of the City College.

The indictment was handed up to Judge Malone in General Sessions and is found under the Education law, which makes it a misdemeanor for any one to buy or sell any certificate or diploma, the penalty being one year in State's Prison, a fine of $500, or both. Judge Malone issued a bench warrant for the arrest of Golubock and detectives in the District Attorney's office were sent out to make the arrest.

The sleuths began looking for Golubock at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Late last night he had not returned to his home, 840 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, and had not been arrested.

The discovery of the alleged fraud was brought about in an odd way. One of the counterfeit certificates was sent to the office of the Secretary of State to be registered, and it was discovered that the date had been omitted. The Secretary of State at once sent the certificate back to the City College, and it was turned over to Registrar Arvid D. Anderson, whose name was signed to the certificate. He promptly pronounced the signature a forgery.

The matter was then called to the attention of President John H. Finley of the City College, who called a meeting of the Board of Trustees and appointed a committee headed by Charles Strouss to investigate the case. This committee found out that fully twenty false or forged certificates had been given out since last July. Suspicion fell on Golubock and he was discharged.

Further investigation showed that only two or three out of the twenty false and forged certificates have been given to students of the college. One holder of a certificate said he had paid Golubock $30 for it and that he had never been near the college in his life and didn't know where it was. Other young men who had bought certificates said they had paid Golubock from $20 to $100 each for them.

Mr. Anderson said that while some of the certificates had been forged he had signed some, all having been handed to him by his assistant, Golubock. He had no idea that any of the certificates he had signed were false and that he had taken Golubock's word for all of them.

The matter was brought to the attention of District Attorney Whitman who found that Golubock had been selling the certificates to aspiring young men for three years. He examined Mr. Anderson and then brought the matter to the attention of the Grand Jury.

The two certificates specified in the indictment were sold to young men by Golubock, one for $30 and the other for $50. One is a forgery and the other is a false certificate signed by Mr. Anderson, who says it was handed to him by Golubock. Witnesses testified that they had paid Golubock to get them the certificates and that he had been making a practice of doing so for three years.

Mr. Anderson and a member of the District Attorney's staff will go to Albany to-day to examine all the certificates showing that students from the City College are eligible to take the Regents' examinations for the bar or medicine dating back two years.

It was said last night that many young men who are now practicing law and medicine are likely to have their diplomas taken away from them. It is also rumored that the investigation will not stop at the City College, but will extend to other colleges in the country.

Since his dismissal from the City College Golubock has been working as a traveling salesman for a New York concern.

President Finley is in Europe. Prof. Adolph Werner, Acting President, said last night:

"Officially, I have nothing to say about the case. However, I may say that Golubock is in no way connected with the college. No professor or instructor in the college has at any time sold or given away a diploma or certificate of any kind, and any statement asserting such sales of diplomas or certificates by any authorized agent of the college is erroneous."

It was denied at the college last night that Golubock was the Assistant Registrar, it being said that there was no such office at the college. However, it was not denied that Golubock had been employed in the Registrar's office.

One of the professors said that Golubock was civil service clerk, and had been in the employ of the college until a few months ago, when he was transferred to a concern which is connected with the college. He left their employ two weeks ago, but for what reason the professor could not say.

MRS. SCHENK'S PLEAS FAIL.

Court Overrules All Technical Objections Raised by Her Counsel.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 23.—Six special pleas filed by attorneys for Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, charged with attempting to poison her husband, John O. Schenk, were refused in Criminal Court to-day. Judge J. S. Jordan sustained the motion of Prosecuting Attorney J. B. Handlan to refuse the pleas on the ground that they did not constitute a meritorious defense at law. In the matter which they asked to have filed counsel for the defense averred that the special Grand Jury was illegal, not being drawn in accordance with the State code; that the summons by the Clerk of the Court should have been issued twenty days before the calling of the special jury, that but two days instead of three elapsed before the session after the summons for the jurors had been issued by the Sheriff, and other technicalities including the jurisdiction of the court in calling a special Grand Jury while the regular term of court is being held.

The defense announced that demurrers would be filed, and the State insisted upon speedy arguments upon the demurrers. The date for the arguments was set for Saturday.

WANTED TO BEHEAD BABY.

Mother Said Spirits Had Been Prompting Her to Do It.

Carrying her thirteen-month-old baby Francis in her arms, Mrs. Margaret Reynolds of 301 Van Horn Street, Jersey City, walked into the office of the State Board of Guardians at 15 Exchange Place, and announced to the Superintendent, Miss Frances Bay:

"I'm going to cut the baby's head off. Spirits have been prompting me to do that and to kill myself for some time past."

Miss Bay humored the woman until she could summon assistance. Several assistants took charge of the baby, while Dr. Rector of the City Hospital spoke to the mother. She was committed to the Hudson County Jail for an examination into her sanity.

Criminal Court at Judge's Home.

The fashionable Heights neighborhood of Brooklyn heard with much interest yesterday that a session of a criminal court would be held in its "midst" tomorrow. In the library of his home, at 194 Columbia Heights, County Judge Norman S. Dike, who is recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis, will sentence two prisoners who were convicted before him prior to his illness. One was found guilty of arson and the other of grand larceny.

ADIRONDACK SABLE REAPPEAR

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The State Forest, Fish, and Game Commission has received reports of the reappearance of sable in the Adirondacks. The State officials believe that this valuable fur-bearing animal will reinhabit the woods now that the old race of Adirondack trappers has practically become extinct.

Mexican Secret Service agents say the wires are being "milked" by the revolutionists, who thus learn of the movements of Federal troops.

An American conductor reaching Eagle Pass to-day from Torreon said he counted twenty-one bodies of Mexican soldiers, police and rurales in Gomez Palacio on Monday. The revolutionists carried away their dead and wounded. A Mexican official of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz said twenty-two Americans were killed at Gomez Palacio.

Among the passengers passing through this city to-day en route north was Mr. Arnold Shanklin, American Consul-General in Mexico. Mr. Shanklin was bound for San Antonio, where he is to deliver a speech. He reports everything quiet along the line of the National Railways of Mexico between the capital and Laredo and says he has heard nothing of any unrest while en route north.

Mexican Capital Lacks News.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—The press still has no telegraph facilities and the censorship appears to have extended to Consular messages. The American Embassy is without reports for three days. The War Department announces that all places where there have been disorders are now tranquil and that the Government is in control everywhere except in Guerrero City, where the rebels are active. Troops are now proceeding to this point.

Late advices state that quiet prevails at Zacatecas, and that there have been no disorders there.

Foreign Minister Creel said that he had received no news this morning from the north to indicate that there had been further disturbances there.

Soldiers on a Mexican Northwestern train fired on a band of rebels at San Andres. In this fight a Colonel and four soldiers were killed, and it is believed that the rebels lost twenty dead. The latter included some women. The soldiers continued on foot to Guerrero, the train being sent back.

MADERO ISSUES MANIFESTO.

Proclaims Himself President of the Provisional Government of Mexico.

CIUDAD PORFIRIO DIAZ, Mexico, Nov. 23.—Francisco I. Madero has proclaimed himself "President of the Provisional Government of Mexico" and admonishes his followers not to commit overt acts against Americans nor to do damage to property of foreigners. Madero's proclamation is being generally circulated to-day throughout Northern Mexico.

It is especially stated that banks are not to be molested. "This movement is solely directed against the tyrant Diaz," says the proclamation, "and Americans, as well as other foreigners, can rest in safety. No foreign business house is to be touched and foreigners need not fear any attack. We are solely in opposition to the despot and are working to obtain our constitutional rights."

Particular attention is directed to the fact that Americans own a considerable part of the stock of the National Railways of Mexico, and all friends of the revolutionary cause are warned that damage to this property might result in the United States Government taking steps that would embarrass the provisional government.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 23.—Albino Flores, who acted as a guide to Madero, has been detained by general officers at Eagle Pass. Flores joined the Madero party at Carrizo Springs and rode with it until the Rio Grande was crossed at a point about fifteen miles below Guerrero, where a battle is reported to have occurred Sunday.

Flores related to H. W. Dowe, Collector of Customs at Eagle Pass, that Madero crossed the river Sunday morning and was met on the other side by a large band of his followers. They brought with them horses and an equipment for Madero and his four lieutenants. Flores also told Mr. Dowe that Madero made no efforts to conceal his identity on the journey to the border, and seemed to be sanguine of the success of the revolution.

It was learned that Madero completed his plans for the present outbreak after his arrival in this city on Oct. 7. He left here the night of Nov. 18 and crossed the Rio Grande to his own ranch in Mexico Sunday morning, Nov. 20, where he took command of 600 men, mounted and armed.

Immediately upon his arrival in San Antonio last month Madero was surrounded by revolutionary leaders, although he disclaimed warlike intentions until he left the city. He came from Mexico disguised as a peon, having forfeited bonds for his appearance on a charge of sedition growing out of a speech delivered at San Luis Potosi, May 29, prior to the election in which he was a candidate for the Presidency against Diaz.

Madero was met here by Juan Sanchez Azcona, former member of the Mexican Congress, who is also a brother-in-law of Juan D. Casasus, formerly Ambassador to the United States, and by Enrique Bordez Mangel, an orator for the anti-Diaz party in Mexico. Azcona is a graduate of Harvard and Madero of Ecole Centrale, Paris. Madero showed himself freely and was a good advertiser. His pretext was that he was opening his campaign for the Presidency six years hence. He has close friends here, and through them he was enabled to purchase large quantities of arms and ammunition, this fact not being known until after the revolution broke out. The arms were smuggled into Mexico largely by fording the Rio Grande southwest of this city in a remote ranch region. The Madero estate of Coahuila extends many miles along the Mexico side of the river at the point where the crossing was made.

During his operations here Madero talked freely of his opposition to the Diaz régime, but spoke of a peaceable revolution, and denied any complicity with the revolutionary junta that has existed here for two years. The Madero family is the wealthiest in Northern Mexico. It owns thousands of acres of good land in Coahuila and Nuevo Leon and carries considerable bank accounts in New York and Paris. The leading banks in the States named are controlled by the Maderos, and their ability to raise ready money is said to be great. The loyalty of other members of the family has never been questioned, with the exception of the father and brothers of Francisco. The vast resources of this branch of the family are supposed to be available for the use of the leader in the present outbreak.

During the more than forty days that Madero spent in this country he was in constant consultation at one of the leading family hotels here with visitors from all sections of Mexico who came and went, usually remaining only a few days. His family is still at the hotel.

Just before Madero left to join the insurrectionists in Mexico shipments of arms to a friend of his in this city were seized, and the fact became known that he was actively leading the revolutionary party.

TROOPS GUARD BORDER.

United States and Mexican Troops Both Patroling Rio Grande.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 23.—For the first time since the revolutionary movement against Mexico assumed definite form troops to-day moved along the United States side of the Rio Grande.

On the Mexican side everything is officially reported tranquil, the territory covered reaching from Matamoras to Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, a distance of about 800 miles.

Gen. Lauro Villar is in command of the Mexican forces from Matamoras to Nuevo Laredo, and Col. Ricardo Pena is in charge of the territory extending through the States of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila. The border patrol consists of more than 5,000 men. Both commanders report all quiet.

The border is well guarded on the American side also, a cordon of soldiers extending from Brownsville to Eagle Pass. There are detachments at Brownsville and Fort Ringgold, while four companies of infantry are stationed here.

In view of the rumors regarding the mobilization of an armed force of 200 insurrectionists at Minera, Texas, thirty miles north of here, Col. Brewster wired the War Department at Washington to-day and received a reply that the United States military forces at Fort McIntosh would be placed under orders to co-operate with him. As a result Col. Brewster requested that a company of troops be sent to Minera, and this afternoon Company A of the Nineteenth Infantry, under command of Capt. Heaton, departed by train for that point. This body of men at Minera has been under surveillance, and secret agents of the Mexican Government were on the watch in conjunction with the United States authorities. The party has dwindled, according to official reports received by the Mexican authorities, from a body of about 200 to 10 men, who have worked their way into Mexico.

Reports from interior points in Mexico indicate that the Mexican authorities are strenuously endeavoring to protect Americans, and that in many instances the police, as well as the soldiers who are engaged in guarding the property of Americans have been ordered to shoot down any one attempting to molest Americans or their property.

Reports from the southern part of the State of Tamaulipas, which is thickly settled with American farmers, show no disturbances there.

Eagle Pass reports that several detachments of Mexican soldiers are scouring the country adjacent, arresting rebels and placing them in jail. United States troops were detailed on scouting expeditions on the American side of the river in that vicinity, and cavalry was sent south to prevent the passage of arms and ammunition where the land of Madero adjoins the United States border.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—In response to a request from the Department of Justice, which is charged with the responsibility of seeing that the United States is not used as a base of war in connection with the Mexican revolution, the War Department to-day instructed Gen. Hoyt, commander of the Department of Texas, to respond to requests from United States Marshals for the assistance of troops in preventing violations of neutrality.

Gen. Hoyt was instructed several days ago to co-operate with Gov. Campbell of Texas in meeting the situation. The conditions along the border line are being closely watched by United States Marshals, and District Attorneys and the commander of the Federal troops in Texas now has a free hand to move his soldiers in co-operation with officials of the Department of Justice.

Ambassador Wilson, at Mexico City, has been instructed by the State Department to investigate the reported shooting of J. M. Reid, an American, in the Alameda, a park in Mexico City. Reid was a native of Mississippi, and the action of the department in calling upon the Ambassador for a report, was taken at the instance of relatives of Reid, who live in Houston, Miss.

REBEL ENVOY IN WASHINGTON.

Madero's Brother Says Uprising Is Not Anti-American.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Gustavo A. Madero, brother of the leader of the revolution in Mexico, arrived in Washington to-day. He comes as the confidential agent for the revolutionary party, but so far has not called upon the State Department.

He has given out the following statement:

> Since the government of Gen. Diaz and its representatives in this country have endeavored and are still endeavoring to cause it to appear by statements given to the press that the revolutionary movement initiated by Don Francesco Madero on the 20th instant finds active and sympathetic support among the anti-American elements in Mexico, the confidential agent of the revolution in Washington authorizes an absolute, emphatic, and categorical denial of the statements referred to.
> The revolution is directed against the personal and despotic Government of Gen. Diaz, the Dictator, and his oligarchy, by an outraged, betrayed, and plundered people, whose sole desire and purpose are to reestablish in Mexico a republican form of government, a Government of law and order, such as is maintained in the United States. Meanwhile the rights and interests of American citizens as well as those of other nations in Mexico have been scrupulously respected by the forces of the revolution in accordance with the requirements of international law and modern usage.

Gustavo Madero, the author of this statement, was detected by the Diaz agents in the effort to persuade Gen. Meliton Hurtado, the military commander of the City of Mexico, to go over to the revolutionists, and was thrown into prison. French investors in Mexico protested against his imprisonment, and a full account of the affair was cabled to Paris, where José Ives Limanteur was then engaged in trying to place a large loan for the Diaz Government. The inquiry came back promptly why Mexico was trying to borrow money there when the country was on the verge of a revolution, and Madero was promptly liberated and came to this country at the request of his brother to do what he could for the cause of the anti-Diaz cause.

Friends here of the revolutionists in Mexico seem to be very sanguine of success. They say that Francesco Madero's great wealth is so well hid in French companies in Mexico and in such hands that it is entirely safe and available to help on the cause. Dispatches received here to-day say that Ricardo Magon, Antonio Villareal, Guiteras Ruiz, and practically all the Mexican junta in this country have given allegiance to Madero. Their opposition to him hitherto has been based on his refusal to fight and his desire to urge his claim to the Presidency resulting from the last election by legal and peaceable means. Magon and his immediate followers crossed the line five days ago and are with the combatants on the firing line.

The hope of the revolutionists is to get a large town and hold it, when they believe that they would receive large accessions of armed men from all parts of the country. Thus far they are handicapped for want of officers, and they are looking hopefully to their friends in the army. Madero is not a military man, and does not expect, it is said, to act as commander in chief of the insurrectionary forces in the field.

Both sides are agreed to abstain from doing any injury to the railroads running to the American boundary. The cable line from Vera Cruz to Cuba is still intact and will not be disturbed. The line to Galveston, by way of Coalzoalcos, is still open, and the line up the Pacific Coast by Salina Cruz is still working.

AMERICANS NOT ALARMED.

Representatives of Big Interests Say Revolt Is Exaggerated.

Telegrams which reached financial houses yesterday and individuals in Wall Street who have concerns in Mexico were much more encouraging than the printed news dispatches. At the office of Speyer & Co. it was said that the firm's advices from Mexico, where it is largely interested in the financing of the Mexican National Railway, were of an entirely reassuring character. Telegraph communication, the bankers were informed, had not been cut and train schedules were being observed.

President Brown of the National Railways wired Vice President D. P. Bennett of that system from Mexico City, under date of Nov. 22:

"Everything quiet to-day. It is believed confidently that the Government has the situation well under control. As far as I can learn, no damage has been done to the railways or telegraph lines. Reports regarding four instances of trouble during the last two weeks have been grossly exaggerated. We are in communication with every telegraph office reached by the system, and all train service is being performed according to schedule."

Paul Morton, President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, who is interested in the rubber development now being undertaken by the Intercontinental Rubber Company, received this telegram from a well-known New Yorker on his way to the rubber plantations. The telegram was dated El Paso:

"Train arrived from South on time this morning. Passengers report no trouble. Impossible to obtain wire communication. I feel sure reports greatly exaggerated and that there is no danger from either side."

Secretary Dutton of the Intercontinental Rubber Company received a telegram from E. B. Aldrich, son of United States Senator Aldrich, who is largely interested in that company, dated last night at Toreon, whence the most vivid reports of fighting have come. This said:

"Authorities have secured the situation. Excitement subdued. No trouble at Toreon or at factory. Running day and night, full force."

Vice President Brush of the American Smelting and Refining Company said:

"Our information from Mexico is to the effect that reports emanating from Eagle Pass are grossly exaggerated. The trouble in Mexico seems to be more in the rural regions than in the centres of population. The Smelting Company has no information in regard to any trouble taking place at any of their plants, and their general representative in the City of Mexico reports that everything at the seat of government is quiet, and that it is believed by all of the Government officials and the representatives of American interests in Mexico that the Government will be abundantly able to control the dissatisfied mobs which are taking advantage of the present situation to plunder."

POLICE SAY LEWIS MADE A CONFESSION

Disclosed All to a Priest the Saturday Night Before He Was to Have Been Married.

DEAD, THE DETECTIVES SAY

In an Advanced Stage of Tuberculosis at the Time He Was Friendly with the Trunk Victim.

Information was obtained by the police yesterday which leads them to believe that William Lewis, the waiter who is being sought in connection with the death of Albert C. Callier, the French decorator of china, whose skeleton was found last Thursday in a hermetically sealed trunk in the basement of a house in West Fifty-fourth Street, where Lewis formerly lived, is dead. Acting upon this theory detectives searched the records of hospitals and the Morgue.

Lewis was afflicted with tuberculosis. He was suffering from the disease when he first came to this country from Ireland. It grew on him rapidly, and those who saw him in 1905 when he jilted Miss Ellen Enright on the eve of his marriage, told the detectives that he appeared to be in the last stages of consumption. He had a hacking cough, they said, and feverish spots, indicative of the ravage of the disease, appeared on his cheeks.

The police theory is that Lewis, afraid to appear in his old haunts because of his desertion of his fiancée, and haunted because of his knowledge of what the trunk in the basement of the home of his old friend contained, became rapidly worse and died in some hospital either here or in some other city.

Coincident with the murder the detectives are spending much time trying to discover just why Lewis should have broken off his engagement to Miss Enright, particularly after every preparation, even to the buying of the wedding cake, had been made. Only some unusual reason could have actuated him to do this, they say, and this reason discovered, it will have important bearing on the murder of the French artist. Detectives working on this end of the case said last night that they had found that Lewis made a confession to a priest on the Saturday night before the wedding was to take place. This priest is said to have advised him not to marry.

Say Lewis Confessed.

The ceremony was to have taken place at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Columbus Avenue and 125th Street. Lewis a few days before had gone to the pastor, Father Gerard H. Huntman, and arranged with him to perform the ceremony. Lewis had attended that church many times while living in Harlem and knew Father Huntman. When Lewis and his bride did not appear Father Huntman made inquiries about Lewis, but could not learn his whereabouts.

Lewis was a devout churchgoer. On the Saturday night before he was to be married he went with his fiancée to confession at All Saints' Church, at Madison Avenue and 129th Street. Father James W. Power of that church was out of the city yesterday, but his assistant said that it was altogether likely that Lewis had confessed to Father Power, and might have told him that he was guilty of a crime. In that event, it is presumed that Father Power directed him not to marry. In the many parts of the city where Lewis boarded in his roving career he always attended church religiously. In 1898 he lived for three weeks at the home of William G. Critchley, at 106 Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn. During that time he attended St. Michael's Church in Clermont Avenue.

Last night detectives found the place where Lewis is supposed to have bought the plaster of paris which was used in sealing up the trunk after Callier was thrust in unconscious and still alive. The store is in the neighborhood of 40 West Sixty-third Street, where Lewis boarded in 1902 with Mrs. Julia Alexander, and where Callier often visited him. This is the house where the murder is supposed to have been committed. Just where the store is detectives refused to say, but they said that the dealer remembered the transaction well.

Yesterday the police found that Lewis had lived in the city as late as the Fall of 1906 or Spring of 1907. About this time he lived with a family named Harrison at 324 East Fiftieth Street. The Harrisons moved from there a year ago, but neighbors remembered Lewis having a room there and his telling that he worked for a moving picture show. He was well dressed then, and almost every night went out in evening clothes. This is the last seen of him in the city. In February, 1906, he called at the home of Mrs. Mary Kenney, where he had boarded at one time, and borrowed $5, and until yesterday this was the last trace the police had of him.

He Had Tuberculosis.

Following up the theory that Lewis may have died of consumption, detectives questioned every person who had met him from the time he first came to New York some time before 1898. Every one of these, and they were nearly a score, asserted that Lewis was always consumptive looking, and that the disease appeared to grow on him with the passing of years.

"When he came to spend a few weeks with us in 1898," said Miss Critchley, daughter of William G. Critchley of 106 Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn, "he was pale and emaciated, but had no cough. He had been living at the home of Mrs. Hyslip, in Second Avenue, and when Mrs Hyslip died, my brother, who was slightly acquainted with him, invited him to spend a few weeks with us until he found another room. He was always quiet and gentlemanly, and told us he made money as a waiter. On one occasion he said he had waited on the Mayor.

"He frequently spoke of having a friend who was a French artist, but never mentioned his name. Once he brought home some fancy needlework, which he said his friend had done. He had a bicycle and went riding with my brother several times. He said he needed the fresh air, and for that reason was going to give up his place as a waiter. After he left he did not return again until 1900, when he told us that he was a collector for an installment furniture firm. I have not seen him since."

Mrs. Kenny, with whom Lewis lived during 1903 and 1904, said yesterday that she believed Lewis had died of consumption.

"He looked very much like a consumptive when he lived here," she said. "He had a continual cough and bright spots on his cheeks. He looked like a man who had not a great many years to live."

Detectives went to the Morgue and examined the pictures and records of the dead kept there. They found nothing bearing on Lewis. Neither could they find any trace of his having been in a hospital.

New light was shed on his life by Thomas G. Trvor, a waiter of 206 Third Avenue, who knew Lewis well and often worked with him.

"I worked with Lewis when he was a waiter off and on for several years," said Trvor, "and he told me something of his life. In 1898 he worked as a waiter at a Garden City hotel and met a man named Capt. Cutting who lived at the hotel. Cutting had two young sons and, taking a fancy to Lewis, he engaged him to take care of the children. Lewis was not a heavy drinker, but a steady one.

Says He Got Their Money.

"In 1901 Lewis and a man by the name of Joseph Byrne stayed in my room one night. When I went to sleep I had a roll of $600 and Byrne had $7. When I awoke in the morning Lewis was gone with $150 of my money and $5 of Byrne's. A short time after that I took a room in West Sixty-third Street, near where he boarded, and he came to see me. He denied that he had taken my money and we became friends again. Lewis had given up his work as a waiter at this time, but I occasionally ran across him. I saw him the last time in 1905."

Lewis first met Callier, it was learned yesterday at the studio of Alexander McCrea, a china decorator at 7 Patchin Place. Callier had been working there as a painter on china when Lewis applied for work as a handy man. He tried to do china decorating himself, but gave it up. McCrea died four months ago of pleurisy in the Roosevelt Hospital, but Miss Jennie Bougere of 192 Waverley Place, who worked there also, remembers both Lewis and Callier.

With the finding of the store where Lewis bought plaster of paris in 1902 the police are confident that Callier was murdered in the apartment of Mrs. Alexander at 140 West Sixty-third Street in the Summer of that year. Lewis had opportunity aplenty to commit the crime, for Callier visited him often there, and during June and July of that year Lewis had complete run of the house, for Mrs. Alexander went out of the city, leaving Lewis in sole charge of the place. When she returned it was discovered that Lewis had done considerable housecleaning in her absence. He had started a fire in the furnace and burned up a lot of papers and clothing. When he was asked what he had burned he replied "only trash." A day or two later it was discovered that Lewis had sold a new suit of clothes to an old clothes man. The suit is said to have looked very much like one Callier wore when he visited Lewis.

Mrs. John Cook, a boarder in the Alexander house, told the detectives she had heard that Lewis tried on three different occasions to get his life insured, but that the companies all rejected him on their physicians' reports because of his consumptive condition.

The trunk containing Callier's body was removed from the Morgue yesterday afternoon to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, where Prof. John H. Larkin will make a chemical examination of the skeleton. The examination will take about five days, Prof. Larkin said. After that the body will be buried in Potter's Field.

MRS. KINSEY ASKS NEW TRIAL

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Counsel for Mrs. Alice T. Kinsey of Armour Villa Park, Yonkers, presented sensational affidavits to Supreme Court Justice Tompkins to-day in moving for a new trial of her separation suit against her husband, William S. Kinsey, a linen importer of 240 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan. At the first trial Justice Mills declined to grant the separation. He found that while there was evidence of incompatibility of temper, Mrs. Kinsey had annoyed her husband, who would not take her to entertainments by going out at night alone.

The couple were married in Bronxville, Jan. 20 last year, and Mrs. Kinsey left him on Aug. 24 of the same year. The pair met at a church entertainment, Mrs. Kinsey before her marriage being a soloist in the First Presbyterian Church, Yonkers, and later in choirs of New York and White Plains churches.

The papers seeking to reopen the case consist of three affidavits, which the court took under advisement. One is furnished by Miss Frances Benson, editor of The Bronxville Review, who swears that a letter appended to the papers was sent to her by Kinsey after the suit was begun.

In the letter Kinsey charges his wife with returning home with men in the small hours of the morning in an intoxicated condition. He adds that she is a thief and shoplifter and says she has been guilty of the whole catalogue of crimes.

Another affidavit is submitted by Henry W. Vogel, who says he heard Kinsey call his wife vile names, and a third by Joseph F. Costen of Bronxville, who alleges that Minnie De Costa, a maid in the Kinsey household, told him Kinsey had agreed to pay her $100 to testify in his favor.

Mrs. Kinsey says all the trouble was caused by Kinsey's children by his first wife. Kinsey says his wife is frivolous and alleges she is addicted to drinking cocktails and smoking cigarettes. At the first trial he testified that he found his wife one evening at the Gramatan Hotel drinking mint juleps with other women.

LUNCH ROOMS FOR SCHOOLS.

Board of Education Approves Arrangements for Children's Meals.

The Board of Education at its meeting yesterday decided to equip a room in Public School 107, at 277 West Tenth Street, for the cooking and serving of luncheons. When the matter first came up Gen. George W. Wingate objected on the ground that the board had nothing to do with the feeding of the children. Abraham Sterns, however, pointed out that the equipment would cost less than $100, and the children would be supplied with good food for less cost than they could buy it at home.

Permission was also granted for the provision of a 3-cent luncheon to the children of Public Schools 92 and 120, on Broome Street.

The board has also arranged with the Board of Regents that next Summer no examinations shall be held on Anniversary Day in Brooklyn. Last year the Regents appointed several examinations for the day celebrated in Brooklyn, with the result that several thousand high school students were unable to participate in the exercises.

CHARGES FATHER WITH THEFT

And Accuses Another Who Is Supposed to Have Control of Him.

Charging that his father had been induced through undue influence to steal from him jewelry worth $1,200 and then to turn it over for $5 to the man who controlled him, Charles Rost, Jr., a contractor, of 446 East Thirty-fifth Street, Flatbush, last night procured the arrest of Charles Rost and Arthur Jones of 443 East Thirty-fifth Street.

According to the younger Rost, Jones obtained a controlling influence over the old man. As a result, he says, his father on Monday night removed from his overcoat in the attic three diamond rings, two diamond stickpins, and a gold ring, worth together $1,200, and turned them over to Jones for a $5 bill. He says his father confessed this to him the next day.

Tawney at Panama.

PANAMA, Nov. 23.—Representative James Tawney, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives, and five other members who are visiting the Isthmus, called on President Arosemena this afternoon. They were introduced by Minister Dawson. Representative John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, who has been sick in the Ancon Hospital for several days, is now convalscent.

Broadway Runaway Hits a Car.

Dashing across Broadway at Thirty-eighth Street last night in the midst of the theatre crowd an express horse, driven by Louis Goiffe of 125 West Twenty-fourth Street, hit a northbound Sixth Avenue car crowded with theatre passengers. The shafts pierced the windows and Mrs. Rose Mulldowney of 128 West Fiftieth Street, was struck in the face by them and cut by flying glass.

Leavitt ex-Chauffeur to Run a Laundry

Joseph Smollen, the erstwhile chauffeur who eloped with Miss Margaret H. Leavitt, daughter of the millionaire, G. Howland Leavitt of Bayside, is to open a laundry near his father-in-law's handsome home in Bayside, L. I. The fact came out to-day that Smollen settled with the estate of his dead wife for $15,000.

FOURTEEN ARRESTS FOR QUEENS GRAFT

ACCUSED QUICKLY BAILED

Some of Them Expected to Turn Against Men Higher Up in the Hope of Immunity.

Much like an old-time political picnic party of the period when the Queens County bosses were in their prime was the session of the Supreme Court held yesterday by Justice Jaycox in Queens County's new million-dollar Court House. The men who built the Court House were there along with the architect who devised it and the political friends of those who had the contracts.

Fourteen of them came to answer to the batch of sixty-nine indictments handed up in what is generally conceded to be the long-awaited upheaval for which Queens County reformers have been working for months. This passed finally from the control of the Queens District Attorney into the hands of a special appointee of Gov. Hughes.

Those indicted include Peter M. Coco, the Court House architect, on grand larceny charges, connected with rebates asked and received from contractors; John M. Phillips, who was Borough President Gresser's campaign manager, and Municipal Court Judge John M. Cragen, who was his secretary.

The "tin horse" drivers who signed their names to certificates that they had done certain work in order that political workers might collect the money on their vouchers were indicted for petit larceny and bailed by political associates who put up $600 to $1,200 each for them.

Yesterday was a field day for the reformers. It was the first on which the Grand Jury, conducted by Special Deputy Attorney General Arthur C. Train, could give an accounting of what had been done by it.

The indictments which struck deep into Queens political organizations reached only minor men. It was merely a preliminary report, and not a statement of labors fully attended to. On Tuesday the Gand Jury will begin its grind again and there will be a trooping of witnesses to its doors, who will be asked questions concerning the men higher up. Some of the men arrested yesterday, it was said, will be among the first to return to the Grand Jury room, there to make a clean breast of all they know about graft in Queens.

It was said that the indictments covered a group known as "the light brigade" of the grafting squad, which has maintained its hold on Queens County official life ever since it was organized, and passed along intact to one Borough President after another.

Those who gave bonds yesterday were: Coco, architect of the Queens County Court House, who had great power in determining when specifications were satisfactorily lived up to and when extras might be allowed on public contracts; eight indictments for collecting commissions from Court House contractors, $10,000 bail furnished by Frank Monteverde.

Cragen, Municipal Court Judge and former secretary to President Gresser, twelve indictments for grand larceny in the first, second, and third degrees, $5,000 bail furnished by John L. Klages, a hatter.

Frank Burke, foreman of the Bureau of Highways, who kept the "tin horse account," ten indictments, eight charging forgery in the third degree and two petit larceny; $5,000 bail furnished by John A. Gray and Lester G. Brimmer.

Phillips, President of the John M. Phillips Association and Under Sheriff until forced to resign under charges; nine indictments, two for assisting his brother to collect money as a court attendant while actually employed as a railroad conductor, two for forging names to city vouchers, and five for collecting money for fraudulent culvert repairs; $10,000 bail furnished by Nathan Friedman and Frank Trudder, an undertaker.

Patrick E. Leahy, Superintendent of Highways until forced out of office through the graft hunt; five indictments for grand larceny in connection with the culvert matter for which Phillips was indicted; $5,000 bail furnished by P. H. Bumster.

Joseph B. Nelson, former chief clerk of the Sewer Department, the first man to fall in the graft hunt and the first to turn State's evidence; four indictments for grand larceny; $4,000 bail furnished by William L. Wodill.

Joseph F. Phillips, railroad conductor and court attendant on the public payroll; two indictments for grand larceny in connection with collecting public funds in payment for services never performed; $3,000 bail furnished by Nathan Friedman.

George Siegel, "tin horse" worker, indicted for petit larceny and held in $600 bail along with James Dermody, Felix Pagluicia, Anthony Navotny, William Brown, and Thomas Laughlin, all alleged "tin horse" operators under the guidance of political leaders.

Robert L. Kruscher, district leader of Rockaway, who collected money for inspecting a sewer which he was unable to testify he had ever actually seen; two indictments for grand larceny; $2,500 bail furnished.

Not all the indictments are new, but they were made, in the cases where repetitions occur, so that Special Deputy Attorney General Train could have behind him his own line of evidence when the men indicted are brought before a trial jury.

The arrival in court of Joseph B. Nelson caused general surprise, as he had considered himself immune, and worked with the investigators early in the Summer on the theory that he could thereby get protection. His confession, obtained by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick in May revealed the general workings of the system of getting money for campaign purposes through padding pay rolls and putting in false vouchers.

Some of his clues led into the office of Borough President Gresser and resulted in the indictment of his confidential clerks and of President Gresser himself, the indictment, however, being dismissed on the recommendation of the District Attorney soon after it was returned.

Not all of the men indicted were arrested, three of them having left the jurisdiction of the court. It is expected that they will be caught to-day. None of the three is prominent, the indictments being on the "tin horse" list.

The investigation into President Gresser's competency as Borough President will be resumed on Saturday by Commissioner Ordway.

ELEVATOR FALLS WITH GIRLS.

Drops Two Stories with Fourteen of Them—Three Hurt.

As an elevator containing fourteen girls employed on the top floor of a six-story building at 35 West Fifteenth Street was near the ground floor early last night the elevator man, Martin Anderson, found that the controller would not work, and he could not stop the car. The elevator shot to the basement, and striking the cushions rebounded almost up to the first floor, settling in several shorter jerks at the bottom of the shaft.

The cries of the girls drew a large crowd to the building, and some one telephoned to Police Headquarters that an elevator had fallen six stories and twelve girls had been killed. Two ambulances were sent from Bellevue and one from the New York Hospital, with the reserves of the new West Twentieth Street Station.

When the ambulance surgeons found half a dozen of the girls had fainted, but only three had been injured. Ida Goldberg of 229 Madison Street had sprained both legs and suffered several bruises. She was taken to Bellevue. Tillie and Jennie Ashkens of 639 East Ninth Street suffered bruises and shock. They were revived by the surgeons and sent home.

The movement was more marked in Ohio than in New York, for in the Buckeye State thirty-nine of the eighty-eight counties show decreases, while in twenty-one other counties the increase is less than 2,000 inhabitants.

STATE EXCEEDS 32 COUNTRIES.

23 States and Territories Also Below It in Population.

In giving the State of New York a populationo f 9,113,279, the thirteenth census places this State ahead of the population of thirty-two foreign countries, not including many dependencies of the larger powers, and brings its population ahead of the combined population of twenty-three states and territories of the United States.

Taking the smaller States and Territories, one must include nineteen States and four Territories to make a total about equal to the population of New York State. This shows the States and Territories whose populations could be included in New York State, and still leave them a little short of the total given it by the census figures just issued. It will be noticed that the population of a number of the States is based on the 1900 census:

State.	Population.	State.	Population.
*Connecticut	908,420	*Utah	270,749
Maine	742,371	*Montana	243,329
*Colorado	539,700	*New Mexico	195,310
Florida	751,139	*Delaware	184,735
*Washington	518,103	*Idaho	161,772
Rhode Island	542,674	*Hawaii	154,001
*Oregon	413,536	Arizona	204,354
New Hampshire	430,572	*Wyoming	92,531
*South Dakota	401,570	*Alaska	63,592
*Oklahoma	398,331	*Nevada	42,335
*Indian Territory	392,060
*North Dakota	319,146	Total	9,104,176
		N. Y. State	9,113,279

*Census of 1900.

How far the population of this State now exceeds the latest figures on the population of many countries of Europe and other parts of the world will appear from the following list of the countries which have fewer inhabitants than this one State:

Country.	Population.	Country.	Population.
Afghanistan	4,000,000	Panama	361,000
Argentina	6,210,428	Paraguay	635,571
Belgium	7,074,910	Persia	7,653,000
Bolivia	2,267,935	Peru	2,971,844
Chile	5,000,000	Portugal	5,123,132
Costa Rica	341,590	Roumania	5,912,520
Denmark	2,585,660	Salvador	1,006,848
Ecuador	1,500,000	Spain	7,000,000
Greece	2,433,806	Siam	7,000,000
Guatemala	1,842,134	Sweden	5,294,885
Holland	5,591,701	Servia	2,493,770
Honduras	500,114	Uruguay	1,111,758
Montenegro	228,000	U. S. of Colombia	4,500,000
Morocco	5,000,000	Venezuela	2,323,527
Nicaragua	428,101
Norway	2,240,032

Not only does the population of New York exceed that of each one of these thirty-two countries, but the population of ten of them could be combined in one and yet fall short by 250,000 of the figure to which the population of this State has grown. The increase in the population of New York between the census of 1900 and that of this year amounted to 1,844,385. This exceeds the population of any one of the ten foreign countries which are included in the total referred to as falling short of the population of this State.

The increase in ten years in this State has mounted to a figure exceeding or closely approximating the population of a number of Central and South American countries, and it is about three times the total population of such a country as Paraguay, and nearly nine times the population of Montenegro, which happens to enjoy the distinction of having the smallest population of any country which enjoys sovereignty.

A "hurry up" notice on furs
Why our prices have not advanced
The accompanying newspaper editorial, as all fur experts are aware, is very true. An advance in furs has already taken place in nearly every establishment this season, and prices will be boosted steadily. We have not found it necessary to raise our prices, for reasons that are well known to many of our patrons.
SEAL and mink will soon be a luxury for the very rich only. The former is forty per cent. higher than last year and the latter twenty-five per cent. Even the much-despised skunk, known to the polite world as brown marten, has the satisfaction of seeing his outer coat seventy-five per cent. more costly than it was twelve months ago.
These higher prices reflect the growing scarcity of fur-bearing animals. The Government is trying to save the seals by prohibiting their capture for four years after May 1 next, but with the smaller animals the case is much more hopeless.
The commonplace muskrat skin that used to go begging at ten cents now commands eighty-five, and the coon skin has jumped from fifty cents to seven dollars. Even 'possum pelts bring a dollar, where they once brought a dime.—N. Y. American.
We buy the raw skins in bales, and ship them to our workrooms, on the premises, thus saving the middleman's profits. By using economy in our manufacture, we have been able to "stand pat" on our prices. That is the reason we are selling high grade furs at prices much lower than those quoted elsewhere. In fact, we quote prices almost as low as you would pay elsewhere for middle or lower grade furs. Compare our prices, then compare our quality; you will find that it pays you to deal where you do not pay a double profit to the middlemen and the manufacturer.
In doing our own manufacture our fur specialist keeps the closest scrutiny on the craftsmanship; we can get the details of "build"—the little eccentricities of fur-making that differ from every other line of manufacture. That is the reason our fur garments have the pre-eminent mark of all that is distinctive and best in style.
We know everything about our furs; every garment has to be perfect before it goes on sale. Good furs are a good investment at this time; "cheap" furs are never a good investment.

KIDNAPPING OF BOYS LEADS TO A DEATH

DETECTIVES FIND NO CLUE

Brooklyn Families in Terror Lest the Kidnappers Carry Out Their Threat of Beheading Their Captives.

Sorrow has settled on the Fritzi and Longo families in South Brooklyn, from whom children were kidnapped last Saturday evening, and on one the hand of death has been laid. This death was the direct result of the stealing of the Longo child, and followed a night of agonizing suspense in Frank Longo's home, when his seven-year-old boy did not return. The family lives at 186 Twenty-first Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues. The father told the detectives he has had to work hard to support his wife and five children and keeping the larger children in school. In addition he has been taking care of his old father and mother, who were no longer able to work. But Grandmother Longo, though 87 years old, took it as her share of the household cares to look after the children while the mother helped the father in the grocery store.

Giuseppe, the missing boy, was her favorite. When he ran up stairs about dusk on Saturday evening saying he was going to a picture show Grandmother Longo told him not to stay long. She had no idea he was not going with some neighbor boy, and it was an hour afterward that his little cousin, a girl a year older than himself, told the family that Giuseppe had gone off to the show with a stranger. The grandmother collapsed and had to be put to bed.

As the night wore on and the anxious father returned from a quest at all the Italian neighbors on both sides of Twenty-first Street far below and far above Fifth Avenue without hearing a word from the missing boy the old woman grew worse. From that time on the attentions of the family had to be divided between her and the search for Giuseppe.

The Grandmother Dead.

The aged woman was unconscious most of the night, but with daylight she became rational long enough to ask if the boy had been found. When the family sat silent and sad, she sank back on the pillow and died almost immediately. The grandfather, also very old, is in a state of partial collapse since double grief has fallen on the home.

Under Lieut. Corrao, almost the entire Italian detective squad in Brooklyn is working day and night on the case. Clue after clue is being run down, but up to a late hour last night not a trace of the kidnapped boy had been found. Lieut. Corrao said last night that the demand on Longo was really for $15,000, not $5,000, and contrary to general belief, Longo was a man of means.

The detectives are convinced that these are no ordinary kidnappings, but the result of a well worked out plan to take both children, and take them because their families appeared to be perhaps a little better off than those about them. The children were taken about the same time, and under precisely the same pretext, the allurements of the moving picture show. The Fritzi and Longo families were neighbors and friends, and the children attended the same school and often played together.

Grizzled old Nicolo Fritzi, grandfather of eight-year-old Michael Fritzi, the other child stolen, lives at 720 Fifth Avenue, near Twenty-third Street. He, too, has a small grocery store, and to all appearances is doing a thrifty business. Both he and Frank Longo say the kidnappers could have no other reason than to extort money from them. There are no relatives, both families assert stoutly, who could wish to take the children from them, and Longo and Fritzi say they have no enemies.

Longo says his boy was playing in the street in front of the store late on Saturday afternoon with his little cousin. Presently the little girl, his companion, was called into the house for something, and before she returned Giuseppe came running after her. As they passed in a dark hall the boy whispered to her that a man had come up to him while he was waiting for her and offered to take him to a moving picture show in Fifth Avenue, and he was going.

Tried to Save the Boy.

The little girl says she urged Giuseppe not to go anywhere with a stranger. But the boy, eager to see the pictures, hurried off without saying anything to his parents or grandparents about the stranger's inviting him. There seems to have been little passing on the street at the time, or else, the stranger's appearance in the neighborhood attracted no attention, for the elder Longo has been able to find no one who saw his son and the man together. The detectives are thus handicapped in not having a hint as to what this man looks like.

Longo appears to be crushed by the misfortune that has befallen him. He is wondering why he should have been picked out by the kidnappers as being able to pay $5,000 to save his child or even a small part of that sum since he has had his father and mother to support in addition to his own large family. But some of the more superstitious of his neighbors look at his door and shake their heads.

Over nearly all the doors of Italian stores and homes in this section hangs the "good luck" horse shoe, but none is to be seen over the Longo store.

Old Nicolo Fritzi, grandfather of Michael, is a fine type of his race. He is between 55 and 60 years old, with grizzled hair and mustache and a stocky physique. His son, Michael, died two years ago, leaving a widow and five children, with no one to look after them. Old Nicolo took them to his house and he and his wife determined that they should want for nothing. In a short while, however, his daughter-in-law, who had helped about the house and waited on customers in the busy hours of a Saturday evening, died, and the care of the little brood of orphans fell on their grandmother and himself.

"It is a shame," said he yesterday, "that an old man like me can't take care of my orphaned grandchildren without some one's coming and stealing one of them from me. I have no enemies that I know of and have harmed no one. They took the boy because they want money, and they threatened to kill me and him, too, unless I found it. But I have no money, not even a tenth of the $5,000 they demand. And they threaten to cut off my boy's head and send it to me, too."

With his big, grimy fist clenched old Nicolo vowed he would like to meet the man who had lured his grandson away. That man, not he, would need the protection of the police, he thought.

Kidnapped Near Home.

Little Michael was kidnapped only five blocks from his home and under the very shadow of the Fifth Avenue Police Station, at Sixteenth Street. When Charlie Curry, 7 years old, of 718 Fifth Avenue, who lives next door to the Fritzis and was Michael's companion when the man offered to take them to the picture show, was driven off by this man after they had visited one show opposite the police station, Michael and the kidnapper were standing on the first platform of the Sixteenth Street station of the Culver elevated line. That was the last seen of the Fritzi boy by any one who knew him, so far as the grandparents know.

The detectives questioned Charlie Curry closely yesterday for a description of this man and started off without telling old Nicolo Fritzi whether they had found a clue. The grandfather, however, gave the detectives all the aid in his power. He turned over to them the Black Hand letter demanding $5,000, on pain of receiving the boy's head and threatening to kill him and the boy, too, if he informed the police, and his wife hunted up for them a photograph of the lad.

Frank Longo also gave the detectives the letter he had received by the same mail, that brought Fritzi his threatening message, and a picture of his boy. Longo's letter also said that failure to comply with the demand for money would bring the boy's head to him. He told the sleuths that he had received several Black Hand letters about four years ago demanding money on pain of having his children kidnapped, but paid no attention to them. He was sure the whole thing was an effort to extort money from him, not to get revenge.

ATTACK MRS. NOBLE'S WILL.

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 23.—An attempt is being made to break the will of the late Elizabeth F. Noble, an aunt of Mrs. E. S. McClellan of Saranac Lake, who died in Mansfield, Mass., leaving an estate valued at nearly $1,000,000. Legacies aggregating $100,000 were made to seven nieces and nephews who are either living or who have left descendants. The residue of the estate under the will is left to charity.

The case will come up in the Mansfield Supreme Court in a few months. Mrs. McClellan is not technically a contestant, but if the will is broken she will benefit to the extent of about $100,000.

The attempt to break the will is made in the name of Victor H. Stoddard of Milo, Me.; Elizabeth M. Johnson of Milford, Mass., and Helen R. Kinsell of Webster Grove, Mo., cousins of Mrs. McClellan. That Mrs. Noble was mentally incompetent to make a will is the contention set up by the contestants.

C. S. Thurston of Saranac Lake has taken the deposition of Dr. and Mrs. McMcClellan and their daughter, Miss Daisy McClellan, for use in the coming trial. The executors of the will are Robert R. Moore of New York and Charles G. Haggerty of Mansfield, Mass.

WALSH PARDON NOT LOST.

Officials Say Banker's Application Has Not Been Reviewed Yet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Reports that Attorney General Wickersham has disapproved the application of John R. Walsh, the banker, serving a five-year term in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, for a pardon, are branded as premature by officials of the Department of Justice, who declare the case has not been reviewed. The report of the pardon bureau has not been made, they say.

While, of course, it is possible for the President to refuse to pardon a Federal convict without the examination of a single paper, Government officials scout the statement that Mr. Taft already has made up his mind to refuse Walsh's application. Even had he done so he probably would not give any intimation of it, they assert.

There is a great mass of work now awaiting disposal at the hands of the pardon bureau of the Department of Justice. Since Walsh has served less than five months it is doubtful if his pardon petition will be hurried. The documents are voluminous.

WON'T ARREST LAWSON.

He Thought He Was Excused from Attending Heinze Suit.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—The reason Thomas W. Lawson did not attend the hearing before a Master on Monday in connection with the various suits instituted by F. Augustus Heinze against a number of Boston brokers was brought out to-day at a hearing before Justice Braley of the Supreme Court on a petition to arrest Mr. Lawson on a capias.

Mr. Lawson's counsel, it was stated, was informed that Mr. Lawson's testimony could not be taken on the day set, and that, consequently, he need not appear. The financier had no intention of disregarding a legal summons, his counsel said.

Mr. Lawson will be in court on Friday, when the hearing is to be resumed. If he is present at that time the proceedings brought against him will be dismissed.

City Playgrounds Open To-day.

Park Commissioner Stover issued an order yesterday directing that all city playgrounds be opened to-day between 1 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Heretofore they have been closed on holidays. At Seward Park, in the lower East Side, festivities will be held by children, who have paid for a band.

500 MESSENGER BOYS GO OUT ON STRIKE

POLICE KEPT ON THE JUMP

Strikers March in Organized Bands and Make It Hot for Some Strikebreakers.

The 500 messenger boys of the American District Telegraph Company got what the officers of the company call the strike fever yesterday. They turned in their cap shields and badges at the A. D. T.'s forty branch offices and refused to work after 12 o'clock noon.

There were scenes of juvenile rioting all over the city in the afternoon and the A. D. T.'s service was badly embarrassed. The company delivered most of its messages by telephone. Folks who hadn't any telephones or were having parcels sent to them through the company received the letters and parcels late, and only after the company had been able to engage strikebreakers.

Whenever the striking messenger boys saw any of these strikebreakers passing through the streets they followed them, hooting, pelting, and jostling them, until a policeman hove in sight. Past experience with striking messenger boys, however, has taught the company the wisdom of sending the strikebreakers out in their ordinary clothes so that the striking boys would not recognize them.

Superintendent Skelton of the American District Telegraph Company said late in the afternoon that he had been able to engage several hundred strikebreakers from among the unemployed boys and men who always flock to the office of any big corporation when a strike is on. He said that the backbone of the strike was broken and that all the boys would be back at work to-day or to-morrow.

A Real Strike.

The strikers seemed determined to run the strike on an elaborate scale. They opened headquarters at 3 State Street, in which they installed telephones and drew up circulars stating their grievances and urging the boys of other companies to go on strike "like the expressmen" and "tie up the whole city."

They chose Nathan Hoffman and Julius Streicher as their leaders. They sent out pickets to the forty A. D. T. branch offices and also to the fifty Postal Telegraph branch offices to "persuade" the Postal Telegraph boys to join them. The pickets worked valiantly, and with some degree of forbearance considering the ill-success which their arguments met.

There were many cases of scuffling and disorder along Broadway and the side streets, but the pickets always ran away as soon the rumor came out of the branch offices that the besieged managers inside were telephoning for the police.

As to the causes of the strike, the messenger boys had one tale and the A. D. T. officials another. The latter pointed out that the earnings of messengers are almost double what they were fifteen years ago, but that the boys have been reading a great deal about the "increased cost of living." Though $3.50 a week was all a district messenger boy got twenty years ago, some of them now receive regular salaries of $6 to $9 a week, tips raising their weekly earnings to $12 and $15.

Most of the boys recently have been on "piece work." They get 10 cents for every hour they work and an additional fee of 1½ cents for every call they are sent out on. This, with tips, made their earnings amount to between $12 and $15 a week. But out of this they have had to pay the company 50 cents a week for their uniforms. This has long been a thorn in the messenger boys' sides. The boys organized a protest meeting on Monday night. They hired a hall at 209 East Broadway; had circulars printed announcing the meeting, distributed these in both the American District and Postal branch offices, and arranged with several grown-up agitators, including a kindly local manager of the Western Union, to make speeches. About 600 boys attended this meeting, and an attempt was made to form a union. This was postponed.

The speakers told the boys that they were not earning enough and that the company was "working a graft" on them by making them pay 50 cents a week on their uniforms. So a strike committee was appointed, consisting of Nathan Hoffman, Chairman, S. Marks, Herman Robinson, Louis Goldstein, and N. Reich. A petition was also drawn up asking the A. D. T. officials to reduce the weekly deposit on the uniforms from 50 cents to 25 cents.

The petition also asked that 15 cents an hour be paid instead of 10, and that 2 cents be paid for each call instead of 1½ cents. The boys knew from past experience, they say, that the A. D. T. officials would not entertain the terms of the petition for a minute. So they agreed at the meeting to go out on strike at noon yesterday.

Headed by Chairman Hoffman, their committee took the petition to the A. D. T. Superintendent's office at 6 Dey Street on Tuesday and say it was received with a smile.

Anticipated the Strike.

Knowing that the boys were going to strike, the managers of the Western Union tried to throw the messengers' partially formed organization into confusion yesterday morning by sending as many of the boys as they could out of the branch offices on messages so that they would be away at the noon hour. But the boys saw through the scheme.

At almost exactly noon practically all the boys connected with each A. D. T. branch office collected outside the office. A leader had been appointed for each of the forty offices at Monday night's meeting, and, led by him, the boys walked into the offices and surrendered their books and cap shields. Although the branch offices are located at considerable distances from each other, the boys were loyal, and went out promptly at the time agreed upon. The unanimity with which they struck might have embarrassed the A. D. T. if the company hadn't been prepared. The sixteen Western Union messengers of the Stock Exchange went out promptly and, whistling and shouting, hurried over to the Produce Exchange and got the boys there to join them.

"Fifteen cents an hour. Two cents a call, and only twenty-five cents a week on our uniforms," they shouted as they marched up lower Broadway.

The sight of the policemen directing traffic in the middle of the street soon awed them, however. When they reached the Dey Street offices of the A. D. T. they found several hard-fisted men in plain clothes standing in front of the entrance, so they passed on up Broadway. Near Chambers Street they met fourteen-year-old Jay Harris, who is messenger No. 1,893, attached to the Postal Telegraph Office at 92 Leonard Street. His air of conscious virtue, his uniform, and the telltale enamel shield in his cap seemed to annoy them. They set on him in a body and forced him to take refuge in the branch ticket office of a railroad company.

"They were a crowd of regular guerrillas," said Harris afterward. "I stayed there till a policeman came along and chased them away and then I went back to my office."

Postal Boys Wouldn't Quit.

Still hoping to persuade the Postal Telegraph boys to join them in the strike, the A. D. T. boys visited the Postal's Leonard Street office later in the afternoon, invading the outer office, distributing "revolutionary literature," and making such a noise that the manager telephoned over to the Leonard Street Police Station. Two patrolmen were sent to his assistance, but before they got there the invading party had disappeared.

The strike didn't cause much trouble in Wall Street, because it has happened so many times before as to be considered more of a joke than an inconvenience. But it caused a lot of trouble in other parts of the city, where strikebreakers are not so accessible for the local managers.

"The Postals went back on us," said Chairman Hoffman of the Strike Committee. Superintendent Skelton said at the A. D. T. offices that he expected the boys would be over their "strike fever" by to-day.

CRIPPEN LOST NERVE BEFORE EXECUTION

Almost Collapsed on the Scaffold—No Confession Made, Authorities Announce.

RUMORS STILL TELL OF ONE

No Trace of Miss Leneve as Passenger for New York on the Majestic—Might Not Be Admitted Here.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Immediately after the hanging of Hawley H. Crippen at 9:02 this morning for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, and the hoisting of the black flag over Pentonville prison, a brief notice was posted at the prison gates announcing that the "judgment of death has this day been executed on H. H. Crippen." The physician's death certificate was also displayed, and the prison authorities issued an official statement declaring that no confession had been made.

The hanging was followed by the inquest required by law, and the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the sentence of the law had been duly carried out.

The proceedings were held in the prison. Dr. Wilson, an official witness of the hanging, testified that death was caused by a fracture of the vertebrae. There was no resistance or struggle on the part of the condemned man, and the whole proceedings, from the entrance of the cell by the executioner until Crippen was dead, occupied only sixty seconds. Death was instantaneous, the physician said.

The foreman of the jury inquired of the Coroner if he might ask whether any confession had been made and received the reply: "No. That does not concern you."

The condemned man, who throughout his trial and even until Home Secretary Churchill had refused a petition for his reprieve, had maintained an imperturbable calmness, presented a pitiable appearance as, accompanied by Father Carey, who had spent the night in the prison with him, he was led through the short corridor from his cell to the scaffold. The warders were obliged to assist him up the steps to the drop upon which, once reached, the shrinking figure all but collapsed. The black cap was quickly drawn over the face, the noose adjusted, and the bolt drawn.

Crippen, weighed 140 pounds. The drop was seven feet.

The first report, that Crippen had met his fate calmly, was contradicted by persons who were present in the prison during the man's last hours. The doomed man passed a restless night and appeared haggard and worn when awakened from his fitful slumber. He seemed to lose all fortitude as the end approached. A breakfast was brought in to him, but he left it untouched. The last few minutes of his life was spent in the company of Father Carey, from whom he received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

According to The Daily Express, Crippen's restlessness in bed on his last night made the warders suspicious. The Express says they made a search and found that he had broken his spectacles with the supposed intention of opening a vein and committing suicide.

From the time that his reprieve was refused the physician would see only Ethel Clara Leneve, love for whom, the Crown asserted, was the compelling motive in the murder of his wife; Solicitor Newton, who had made a game fight for his client, and Father Carey, to whose ministrations he paid respectful attention.

The final interview with Miss Leneve yesterday was most painful and, already in the shadow of death, the convicted murderer made no effort to suppress his emotion upon parting with the girl. During the remainder of the day he was in a state of complete nervous collapse.

The streets in the neighborhood of the prison were well filled by the time the hanging occurred, although the fog was so dense that the outlines of the prison buildings could barely be seen from the street in front.

There was a strong police guard on hand, which kept the crowd from approaching closely to the buildings.

Circumstantial stories of an eleventh-hour confession continued to be circulated in spite of the official announcement that there was none. The facts remain, however, that on Sunday the condemned man issued a statement in which he protested his innocence, and that since that day, as for several days before, he had positively refused to see any others than his keepers, Solicitor Newton, Miss Leneve, and Father Carey.

Miss Leneve denies that Crippen confessed. His attorney says that so far as he knows, his client maintained his innocence to the end. What was said to the priest preceding absolution cannot, of course, be known.

If Crippen confessed, as is asserted by a newly established evening paper, the paper gives no authority for its assertions, which are credited to an anonymous friend of the physician, who is himself quoted but briefly. The only alleged new facts brought out are that Crippen was treating his wife for indigestion and substituted poison for the proper medicament, and that he purchased in a shop in Holborn a dissecting knife, which, after it had been used to dismember the body, the murderer threw into a neighbor's garden. In spite of this careless disposition of the telltale weapon it has never been recovered by the police.

With these exceptions the alleged confession is a recital of the well-known story of the crime which might have been told by any one who had followed the widely published proceedings of the court.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Nov. 23.—So far as can be learned, Ethel Clare Leneve did not sail on the steamer Majestic for New York to-day, although she had booked a second-class passage under the name of Miss Allen. It is thought that she may have changed her plans after they had been discovered, though it is possible that she will join the vessel at Cherbourg or Queenstown.

Friends of the woman say that she proposes to begin life anew under a new name and where she is not known, in order to escape further notoriety.

The immigration officials here are interested in the cable announcement that Ethel Clara Leneve, the young woman who fled to Canada with Dr. Crippen, was to sail for this port on the White Star liner Majestic. Commissioner Williams would not say anything which might be construed as prejudging the case. "This case will be investigated as the facts warrant," he said.

The woman, it is said unofficially, is not considered by some a desirable alien, and there are always legal ways of keeping such a person out of the country. The courts of England have declared that she was not an accomplice of Dr. Crippen and she cannot be barred because of her arrest and trial. If the sentence of deportation is passed against her it will probably be on the ground that she crossed the Atlantic with Dr. Crippen, to whom she was not married.

The method which would be followed in her case would be precisely that followed in other cases. She would be detained by the Boarding Inspectors and ordered to Ellis Island. There she would have a hearing before a board of special inquiry. If ordered deported as an undesirable she would have the right to appeal to the authorities in Washington. If she came here under another name and landed without being discovered by the Boarding Inspectors she would be sought for, and her first public appearance would probably result in her being taken to Ellis Island on a Federal warrant.

DEBATE GERMAN MEAT PRICES

Government Denies That High Prices Are Due to Short Home Supply.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The Socialist interpellation as to the high price of meats was discussed in the Reichstag to-day. Johann Rupp, Conservative, admitted that prices were too high in many cities, but he blamed the middle man and was opposed to the opening of the frontiers to foreign importation at the present time, which he said was inopportune for such a concession.

Herr Delbrück, Vice Chancellor and Minister of the Interior, said that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, upon the solicitation of the South German governments, had sanctioned the importation from France of a fixed number of cattle and swine weekly. The importation of cattle from America, which was prohibited originally owing to the prevalence of Texas fever, could not be permitted on veterinary grounds. American fresh beef was also barred because of Texas fever, but if this prohibition were abrogated the importation would still be impossible owing to the provision of the meat inspection law, which requires fresh beef to be imported in whole or halved carcasses with the internal organs intact.

Baron Scherlemer, the Prussian Minister of Agriculture, agreed that in most cities meat prices have reached a regretable height, but the situation, he said, was not one due to an inadequacy of the home supply.

POPE THANKS CATHOLICS.

Letter from Merry Del Val to Bishop O'Connor of Newark.

Bishop O'Connor of the Newark Catholic Diocese has received a letter from Cardinal Merry Del Val in reference to the resolutions adopted by the Holy Name Societies of the diocese condemning the utterances of Mayor Nathan of Rome. The letter, dated at the Vatican on Nov. 8, is as follows:

"The Holy Father was greatly pleased to receive your lordship's letter inclosing a copy of resolutions adopted by the Holy Name Societies of Newark. His Holiness was deeply touched by the noble expression therein contained of loyal attachment and filial devotion to the Holy See, and he highly appreciated the deep-rooted Catholic spirit that moved them to protest against the recent insult to the Vicar of Christ and to the whole Christian world.

"His Holiness most cordially bestows his apostolic benediction on your lordship and on the members of the Holy Name Societies of your diocese."

Mayor Nathan of Rome some time ago replied to the resolutions of the Newark Holy Name Societies criticising his remarks upon the anniversary of the liberation of Rome from the temporal power of the Vatican. In this reply the Mayor asserted among other things that his critics should, at least, have read his remarks before condemning them.

MANY SHIPPING MISHAPS.

Reports to Lloyds Show Crompton Ashore and Probably a Wreck.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—To-day's reports to Lloyds show several mishaps to craft from American ports. The British ship Crompton from Tacoma June 28 for Queenstown, went ashore in the fog off Port Magee, Ireland, and it is expected, will be a total wreck. All on board escaped.

The American bark James Johnson, from Sydney for Newcastle, New South Wales, was strained and lost her boom in collision with the Norwegian ship Illawarra, from Buenos Ayres for Newcastle. The latter vessel's bow was damaged.

The British steamer Vauxhall from New York for Muscat, Arabia, which arrived at Algiers yesterday with fire in her hold, was beached and her No. 2 hold flooded before the flames were extinguished.

The British ship Frieda, from Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 2 via Newport News Nov. 5 for Glasgow went ashore during a fog off Seamill, Scotland, but was refloated.

Lloyds report the British steamer Silverdale, from New York Oct. 5 for Havana, missing.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

ROME, Nov. 23.—For two days no deaths have been reported from the cholera infected districts, although four new cases developed yesterday and five to-day.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov 23.—The Kingston Chamber of Commerce at a meeting this afternoon unanimously adopted a resolution expressing the earnest hope that the authorities at Washington would see their way clear to include Kingston in the itinerary of the American warships during the coming cruise in the West Indies. The resolution recites the friendly feeling between Jamaica and the United States and adds that the American warships are certain of a very courteous reception. The American Consul, Nicholas R. Snyder, has been requested to transmit the resolution to the proper authorities.

LLOYD-GEORGE CALLS SUFFRAGETTES CATS

ASQUITH'S WINDOWS BROKEN

Women Rioted All Tuesday Night and Were Still at It Last Night—Bring Knitting to Trial.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Rioting by the suffragettes, which began with the assault on Prime Minister Asquith and other Ministers yesterday, and was prolonged throughout last night and to-day, continued to-night.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, under cover of the fog, a band of resolute women circumvented the police and attacked the Prime Minister's residence in Downing Street. They hurled stones and metal weights at the house, breaking the glass in all of the lower windows. This afternoon another band made another attempt to storm the House of Commons, but were repulsed, with the loss of several women arrested. To-night, besides creating disturbances around the Parliament buildings, many persistent suffragettes invaded a hall at St. Pancras, where Chancellor of the Exchange Lloyd-George was making a speech. The more daring even clambered to the roof.

Shrill voices from above and below interrupted the Chancellor again and again, but Mr. Lloyd-George was unperturbed. He merely paused once to remark "take no notice of these cats mewing."

Augustine Birrell, the veteran Chief Secretary for Ireland, as a result of injuries from the blows and kicks of the Suffragettes yesterday, is to-day confined to his bed and under the care of physicians. He has been compelled to cancel all immediate private and official engagements. Mr. Birrell was making his way on foot through St. James Park to the Athenaeum Club when he was set upon by the women. Policemen rescued him and helped him to a motor car, in which he was taken home.

One hundred and fifty-six women and two men, who took part in yesterday's riots, were arraigned in the Bow Street Police Court to-day. At the direction of Home Secretary Churchill, those charged merely with obstruction were discharged. The others, against whom complaints of assault and the willful damage of property have been made, were returned to jail to be held for sentence later.

Most of the women prisoners appeared in court carrying bags containing a change of clothing, hopeful of the prize of martyrdom to the cause in the shape of a jail sentence. Some brought their knitting and plied their needles busily during the proceeding, to the huge amusement of the spectators. When the hearing was adjourned the court announced that a decision in all the cases would be rendered to-morrow.

Among those held for punishment was Mrs. Haverfield, daughter of Lord Abinger, who, according to the testimony introduced, had promised to bring a revolver with her on the occasion of the next Suffragette demonstration.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Times argues that Premier Asquith's promise to give facilities at the next Parliament for a woman's suffrage bill will make this question an issue of the coming elections, and that if the elections confirm the government in power the new Parliament will be considered to have received a mandate to grant women votes on a democratic basis.

The Times thinks that neither the militant suffragists themselves nor the public perceived the significance of Mr. Asquith's promise, and dilates on the danger of the situation in the face of the fact that a number of the women of the country and the great majority of male electors resolutely oppose women's suffrage. The Times adds that shrewd observers believe that such a change would weaken the British hold over India.

COMMONS ADJOURN TO-DAY.

House Completes Financial Business—Lords Discuss Lansdowne Plan.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The House of Commons completed its financial business to-day, and will adjourn to-morrow until Monday, when the King holds a council to complete formalities in connection with the dissolution of Parliament.

The House of Lords occupied the evening in a discussion of Lord Lansdowne's resolutions. Lansdowne said that the opposition offered the resolutions as the best substitute they could provide for the Government's scheme. No full and complete settlement, he declared, was possible except on the basis of the reform and reconstitution of the House of Lords. The discussion brought out no noteworthy points and the House adjourned. The interesting announcement was made to-night that William Redmond will contest William O'Brien's seat for Cork.

CANADIAN PRAISE FOR TAFT.

His Courtesy in Reciprocity Negotiations Unexampled, Says Cartwright.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 23.—A statement on the relations between Canada and the United States was made in Parliament to-day by Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister of Trade and Commerce and Government leader of the Senate. Sir Richard said that nothing could have been more courteous than the conduct of the President of the United States in the present reciprocity negotiations. It was an unexampled thing, he declared, to find the President of a great republic coming more than half way from Washington to meet the Canadian Finance Minister, and it was eminently considerate on the part of the American Administration to send its commissioners to Ottawa to discuss amicably the best way in which freer reciprocal relations could be brought about between Canada and the United States.

"There are more considerations in this matter than mere pounds, shillings, and pence," continued Sir Richard. "I have always been an advocate of Canada making herself valuable to the Empire by promoting friendly relations between ourselves and the people of the United States. Others may have a different view; but my opinion is that no one thing can be done by Canada which will be one-quarter as great a service to the British Empire than by promoting in every way equitable and friendly relations between the two Anglo-Saxon powers. And I will go further, and say that if there is one thing more than another calculated to bring about something like a condition of general disarmament, it would be an alliance between these two great nations."

Sir Richard said the Government had no intention of sacrificing Canadian interests in the negotiations, and its commissioners would obtain a reasonable quid pro quo for anything granted to the United States.

Sir Richard regarded the award of The Hague tribunal as a harbinger of what he hoped yet to see—the establishment of thoroughly cordial relations between Canada and the United States.

Lawyer Rouss Jury Disagrees.

The jury in the case of Jacob Rouss, the lawyer who had been on trial charged with falsifying the records of a police trial, reported a disagreement to Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court last night after being out for five hours. They stood 10 to 2 for conviction. Rouss was charged with inserting the sentence, "I ask for adjournment," in the record of the case of Policeman George A. Mencke, so that he could get a new trial.

OCEANIC SINKS BARGE ALMOST DROWNS TWO

RESCUE NEAR ROBBINS REEF

Liner's Boat Quickly in the Water, but a Tug Had Picked Up the Struggling Couple.

While threading her way up the bay yesterday morning the White Star liner Oceanic, inbound from Southampton, sank one of two barges in tow of a tugboat. Two persons, the skipper of the barge and his wife, were thrown into the water, but were picked up by the tug.

The accident happened off Robbins Reef Lighthouse. The tug Huntington of the Red Star Towing Company was crossing the bay with the barge Red Star 14 and the Morning Star astern. The barge No. 14 was loaded with coal and had aboard Capt. Charles Coutant and his wife Mary, who are both middle-aged.

Capt. Charles Gildersleeve of the tugboat steered across the bow of the liner. The Oceanic was only making six knots, but the strong tide upset calculations, and the tow could not clear her. The tug tried to swerve to one side, but before the hawser to the barge, 150 feet astern, tightened the steel cutwater of the liner cut into the starboard side of the Red Star 14 near the stern.

Mrs. Coutant was looking after her wash on deck and the skipper was in the cabin. The force of the blow was terrific, and the skipper was practically blown through the companionway into the bay, where he floundered about among the wreckage of the barge. His wife, who could not swim, managed to get hold of a hatch cover as she went into the water, and held on till her husband swam to her side.

The tugboat at once was backed down to help them. Her propeller fouled the tow line and she became disabled, but she had sufficient sternway to reach the wreckage. Two men leaned over her side and hauled Mrs. Coutant on board. A quick turn of the rudder brought the tug alongside her husband, and he, too, was drawn up on deck.

Meanwhile Capt. Haddock of the Oceanic stopped her within her own length and lowered a boat in charge of Third Officer Cater and five men. It was in the water in two minutes, but was too late to help in the rescue. Neither Capt. Coutant nor his wife is the worse for their adventure, but they lost $30.

DINERS FROM INDIANA.

Everything Came from Their State Except Mince Pie and Turkey.

The Daughters of Indiana ate a Hoosier Thanksgiving dinner at the Hotel Astor last night, a day ahead of time, and had the Belvedere decorated with corn, a Hoosier State product. The guests gazed at home-grown pumpkins, while they ate homemade doughnuts. The pumpkins were in their natural state, and the doughnuts, cooked in her own kitchen, were the contribution of Mrs. Ruth Litt, the Vice President of the Daughters.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, President of the society, was presented with a great armful of yellow chrysanthemums as a mark of appreciation from the members. The speakers talked in a thanksgiving spirit of the "beautiful daughters and manly sons" of Indiana and of its "grain-gorged turkeys." Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates said she had never known a freak to come out of Indiana.

Among the speakers were Mrs. William Cummings Story, Mrs. Belle de Rivera, the Rev. Dr. Ferdinand C. Iglehart, Miss Susan Ketcham, Mrs. Lois Pierce Hughes, Mrs. Jean Nelson Penfield, and S. S. McClure. Miss Mary Peddle and Edwin O. Swain sang.

FIGHT TOLSTOY ENTHUSIASTS

Large Force of Police Disperse Students in St. Petersburg—20 Injured.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times describes the situation arising from the student demonstrations in honor of Tolstoy as serious. A large force of police scattered the crowds to-night outside the university.

Twenty students were injured. Serious trouble is feared to-morrow, and troops have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 23.—Bills were introduced in the Duma to-day by the Octoborists, proposing the establishment of schools in memory of Tolstoy.

The Octoborist plan was to have the State provide at least a part of the funds.

GET-RICH-QUICK PROMOTERS INDICTED

CHARGES OF MAIL FRAUDS

Although there were no developments in the series of raids on get-rich-quick concerns which is being directed personally by Postmaster General Hitchcock, the Grand Jury kept at work on stock swindles and returned indictments against Frank G. Watrous, President of the El Progreso Banana Company of Honduras, Oliver C. Simmons, Secretary and Treasurer of the company; H. L. Harvey, Vice President, and the Rev. Claude M. Severance, a Director. William L. Sanders, Secretary and Treasurer of the International Finance Company, which acted as "fiscal agent" for the banana company, was also among those against whom the indictments were returned.

The offices of the International Finance concern, at 154 Nassau Street, have been closed by the Post Office Inspectors. The men indicted appeared yesterday before Judge Hazel in the United States District Court, and all but the Rev. Mr. Severance entered pleas of not guilty to indictments charging the use of the mails in a scheme to defraud. Watrous was held in $5,000 bail and the others in $1,500 bail. The Rev. Mr. Severance told Judge Hazel that he had no counsel and couldn't afford to employ any, and Judge Hazel said he would assign counsel. The clergyman did not plead, and was released in the same bail as the others.

The indictment charges that the defendants devised a scheme on the 11th day of July, 1910, to defraud the Rev. D. C. McNair and various other persons by falsely pretending that the El Progreso Banana Company had a clear title in November, 1909, to 13,750 acres of good banana land, which was being "worked, cleared, and planted," and that the company stood to realize an immense profit by having it cleared for immediate sale. The Rev. D. C. McNair lives in Wayne, Mich. How much he intrusted to the care of the banana combine the indictment does not state.

Sheldon C. Burr and Eugene H. Burr, members of the raided firm of Burr Brothers, which the Post Office Department and United States Attorney Wise went after the first of the week, appeared before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday afternoon and gave bail in the sum of $10,000 each. The other member of the firm, Frank C. Tobey, has not yet been able to get bail.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 23.—Fred Shoemaker, named as one of the Directors of the Continental Wireless Company, says he is willing to aid the Government and will tell all he knows concerning the methods of the company.

"I applied for the position of manager and the right to sell the Continental Company's stock in the States of Washington and Oregon, because I believed it had an invention capable of commercial value, and that the thing would be a tremendous success," Shoemaker said last night. I went to New York last July, and while there learned some things that opened my eyes. I have not sold a dollar's worth of stock since then."

FAILS TO SAVE HIS PAL.

Long Term for Brennan, Though Gallagher Admits He Killed Lennon.

George Gallagher, alias "Newburg," and Martin Brennan, both members of the notorious "Hell's Kitchen" gang, were sentenced yesterday for manslaughter to long prison terms by Judge Foster in General Sessions. They were charged with killing William Lennon, a bartender, in a saloon at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-fifth Street last August.

Before being sentenced Gallagher filed a confession taking all the blame for the murder of Lennon upon himself. He was sentenced to from nine years and six months to nineteen years and six months, it being his first offense. Brennan, who had served a term in Elmira, was sentenced to nineteen years flat.

In his confession Gallagher says:

> From the time Lennon and I quarreled over a card game three years ago, every time Lennon and I met there was trouble. The first time we had trouble my face was cut so severely that it necessitated sewing up. The second time shots were exchanged between us. Lennon had sent word that he intended to kill me on sight, and that I had better keep out of his way. When he met me in December he fired three shots at me, one of which wounded me slightly in the body.
> I did not meet him again until May 17, 1910, when Martin Brennan and I went to the saloon where he was working. Lennon, after a few words had passed between us, drew a revolver and shot at me three times. Two of the bullets penetrating my stomach and are now in me.
> When I entered the saloon at the corner of Forty-fifth Street and Eleventh Avenue I did not have the remotest idea that Lennon was working there. Lennon, however, recognized me and Brennan, and at once called us a vile name. He put his hand to his hip pocket, and I pulled my pistol and fired three shots. We made our exit then.

Gallagher declared he was perfectly willing to take his punishment, believing he would be safer in prison than out, where, he was confident some of Lennon's associates would "get" him.

CLEVELAND BROKERS RAIDED.

Two More Arrests in Hitchcock's Campaign Against Stock Swindlers.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Charles A. Sandals and Albert S. Griffin, conducting a stock brokerage business under the firm name of Sandals, Griffin & Co., were arrested by Post Office Inspectors this afternoon charged with using the mails to defraud.

The two men have been engaged in selling stock in the Sterling Oil Company, capitalized at $5,000,000 and supposed to own large oil fields in Oklahoma. This stock, which was sold principally to farmers in Northern Ohio, was represented, it is charged, as an investment which would return 50 per cent. According to United States District Attorney Day its value is problematical.

Post Office Inspectors returned yesterday from Oklahoma and recommended the immediate arrest of the brokers. They were released this evening on $5,000 bonds. The officers of the Sterling Company are ex-Judge J. Calvin Ewing of Youngstown, Ohio, President; William H. Carl of Shreve, Ohio, Vice President; Charles A. Sandals, Secretary, and A. S. Griffin, Treasurer.

BATH TUBS HARD TO GET.

Witnesses Here Tell of the Trouble They Had in Buying Supplies.

The taking of testimony in the Government's suit under the Sherman Anti-Trust act against the so-called "Bath Tub Trust," a combination of concerns making bathroom fittings of all kinds under the name of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, was transferred to this city yesterday from Pittsburg, where the earlier hearings have been held. The testimony is being taken by Lindsay C. Spencer as special examiner, and the Government's case is in the hands of Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to the Attorney General.

The Government alleges that by reason of a combination of the defendants, sixteen in number, composing the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, it has been difficult if not impossible for jobbers in this field to obtain the goods they needed for their business unless they subscribed to a price-fixing agreement which the trust formulated and placed themselves under the penalties provided by the trust for violating the agreement or dealing with independent manufacturers.

Charles S. Hirschfield, a jobber in plumbing supplies, was the first witness called yesterday. He produced copies of certain letters that he had written to the Standard and letters received from that concern, showing that he had been unable to get goods to fill an order of July 8 because he had not signed the so-called "Jobbers' License Agreement," and added that the Standard had insisted that he sign this agreement before he could get any goods from it.

Victor A. Harder of the plumbing supply firm of Mayer, Lane & Co. told a similar story, as did John G. Fleck of Fleck Brothers & Co., F. H. Johnson, Secretary and General Manager of the Ronalds & Johnson Company, and others. The hearings will continue to-morrow.

BUNGSTARTER FOR A GAVEL.

Magistrate Receives One Nicely Inscribed with Much Court Ceremony.

Magistrate Robert C. Cornell, sitting in the Domestic Relations Court, received a bungstarter yesterday from Magistrate House and the attaches of the Yorkville Police Court. Ever since the establishment of the new tribunal Magistrate Cornell has failed to get the city to supply him with a gavel, an implement necessary in restoring order among the foreigners who frequent the court to air their marital woes.

Magistrate House, wearing his official robes, led a procession into the Domestic Relations Court and addressed Magistrate Cornell thus:

"We are informed that you are very much in need of a gavel, and although you have made frequent requests for one up to this time you have not been provided with this necessary adjunct to a proper administration of the laws in your court. So we have taken the liberty of supplying you with what the city failed to give you to aid you in the performance of your duties."

Then Magistrate House presented the bungstarter, inscribed with Magistrate Cornell's name and the date of the presentation. Magistrate Cornell expressed his gratification and thanked his donors in an eloquent speech.

SURPRISE PARTY TO TEACHER

Little Girls of School 101 Give It to Miss Rubinson.

A class of fifty little girls in Public School 101, at 111th Street and Lexington Avenue, gave a Thanksgiving "surprise, party" to Miss Rubinson, their teacher, yesterday. Only one person outside the class was in the secret—Miss Baum, the School Principal, from whom the children obtained permission to carry out their plan.

At the close of school Miss Rubinson was called out of her classroom on some pretext, and in her absence the children prepared the "surprise." When the teacher opened the door on her return all stood up and amid enthusiastic handclapping shouted "Surprise party!" Then several of them ran over and escorted her to the desk on which stood a covered fancy basket. It contained a cake with her name artistically worked into it, decorations of Thanksgiving favors, a bouquet, and several other things.

Miss Rubinson told the children that their gratitude was due to the city, and that the best way of showing it was by taking advantage of the educational opportunities the city offered them to become useful members of the community. After that the children formed in line for dismissal, every little girl kissed the teacher, and the party was over.

FOSS BIDS LODGE LET PEOPLE DECIDE

INVITES SENATOR'S HELP

To the End That All Candidates May Have Equal Show Before Electors —New Things Coming.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—Gov.-elect Foss came out to-night in a statement denying that he favors the choice of W. A. Gaston as the Democratic candidate for United States Senator. He also stated that he now controls enough Democratic votes to prevent the election of a Senator by the present Legislature, if Senator Lodge will co-operate with him, and in such an event he wants a popular vote in the general election of 1911.

In addition, Mr. Foss invites the Democrats who want to be Senator to come forward and participate in his campaign, and assures them that he will favor the public presentation of their names. He does not hint, however, what his own action will be. In his statement he says further:

"I desire to deny any purpose to interfere with the Legislature in the matter of the Senatorial election. I shall not be Governor until the first Wednesday in January. Until then I am free to conduct any campaign I desire.

"With respect to Mr. Lodge's candidacy, I conceive that my duty is entirely single. If a majority of the people of this State desire to have Mr. Lodge as their Senator I shall acquiesce, even thought that be not my desire.

"If Senator Lodge is willing to abide by the popular decision, I invite him to join with me in the agreement that there shall be no selection made by the incoming Legislature, and that a law such as prevails in many States shall be enacted to obtain the popular verdict in the general election of 1911. I will agree on my part that enough Democratic Representatives and Senators shall refuse to join in the present selection of Senator, and Senator Lodge can easily obtain an agreement to the same effect from a sufficient number of Republicans to prevent an election by the incoming Legislature.

"I have not the remotest interest in the election of any one and I authorize now the announcement that any reports to the effect that I am favoring any Democratic candidates are false.

"I favor the public presentation of the claims of all Democrats who consider themselves qualified for the office and would like to have some participation in my campaign."

Mr. Foss also referred to a letter sent him by Norman White asking him if he was fighting Senator Lodge as Governor-elect and what precedent there has been for such action on his part. Mr. Foss says:

"Norman White asks when, in the history of this State or any other State, the Governor-elect has made such a demand as I have made. I do not know of any instance where a similar demand has been made, but I think that in the future there will be many new things done by me and the representatives of the people throughout the country who intend that the popular will shall no longer be thwarted by the manipulation of the servants they choose."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—Governor-elect John A. Dix has a number of admirers in Washington, who have watched his campaign with lively interest. Some of them have just sent Mr. Dix a beautiful photograph of the White House with this inscription written upon it:

"Your next move, from Albany to Washington. This is where we hope to welcome you two years hence."

"OLD MASTERS" IN COURT.

Seven Paintings, Supposed to be of the Titian Period, Involved in a Suit.

Seven oil paintings formed the centre of interest yesterday in a suit tried before Supreme Court Justice Hooker, with Abelardo Cassi, who has a restaurant in Macdougal Street, as the plaintiff, against the Rev. Vincenzo Jannuzzi, pastor of St. Jochim's Church, in Roosevelt Street. Cassi wants $20,000 for an alleged breach of contract.

The priest, Cassi says, was to have bought the paintings from him for Mrs. Jack Gardiner of Boston, and backed out of his contract. The priest retorts that there was a stipulation that expert opinion should pronounce the canvasses genuine works of Correggio, Titian, Guido Reni, and other old masters. Experts having pronounced to the contrary, he says.

Witnesses called to the stand yesterday poked among the paintings and gave varying opinions as to their worth, and their definition of an "original and genuine painting." Concerning one painting, for example, one witness thought it might be of the Titian period, and that it was certainly the work of one artist; another detected the work of two artists on the same painting, while a third was sure that the picture was genuine in the sense that it was not a copy. The trial will be continued to-morrow.

BUCK CHARGES HUNTER.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Nov. 23.—While hunting in Newashford this morning Ralph Gardner of Laresboro, who started out with two other deer hunters, became separated from his companions and suddenly was confronted by a buck and three does. The buck charged the hunter. Gardner fired twice but missed. He was knocked unconscious by the buck, who got away with his does.

Other hunters hearing the shot hurried to Gardner and found him unconscious. He was taken home and has two fractured ribs and other injuries.

Napoleon called England a nation of shopkeepers. From Napoleon's point of view this was a reproach. From England's point of view, it was a compliment.

Our nation is a nation of farmers. Today this is a compliment.

There are more farmers than any one class of people. They have more money to spend than any one class of people. They buy everything.

You know that the farmers will buy your goods. Take the direct method of reaching them—

COMMITTEE LEARNS INSURANCE SECRETS

If One Insures for Less Than 80 Per Cent. He Is Likely to Lose on a Fire.

UP TO LIMIT HE IS SAFE

Rates Not Fixed by National Board of Underwriters—Process Servers Can Not Find Keene or Whitney.

The Legislative Graft Investigating Committee turned its attention to fire insurance from the viewpoint of the policyholder yesterday. Before the committee had delved far into the subject it was told that the average public fire insurance adjuster was a "public nuisance" and caused a lot of trouble to the insurance companies and a lot of expense to the holders of fire insurance policies.

William M Bament, General Adjuster for the Home Fire Insurance Company, was the witness who told the committee all about it. Responding to questions from M. Linn Bruce, counsel for the committee, Mr. Bament said that he opposed the valued policy law. He thought it was morally wrong and was inclined to draw out whatever avarice there happened to be in the policy holder in case of loss by fire.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know if the Home Life had withdrawn from any of the States that have enacted the valued policy law. Mr. Bament said it had not. And then came the criticism of the public fire insurance adjuster.

"The growth of the number and influence of the public adjusters is a result of an erroneous idea on the part of the public that the policy holder cannot cope with the adjusters of the company," said Mr. Bament. He added that on the east side, where there are many fires, the public adjusters get 10 per cent. on the amount that is collected from the companies.

Mr. Bament said that the public adjusters often stated the loss of property by fire to be three times the actual damage.

"Does he get what he asks?" inquired Mr. Bruce.

"No. He gets only what the actual loss amounts to," said Mr. Bament.

Mr. Bruce also took up the question of the 80 per cent. co-insurance clause, which has been adopted by the fire insurance companies in this and many other States. It was brought out that if property valued at $100,000 is insured for $60,000 and is totally destroyed by fire, under the workings of the 80 per cent. co-insurance clause the insured gets only $45,000. This, it was explained, was worked out on the principle that if the property owner insures for less than 80 per cent. of the value of his property he becomes a co-insurer with the insurance company for the balance between the amount he insures for and the full value of the property. But if the property owner takes out a policy for 80 per cent. of his property's value, then he can collect the full amount of insurance in case of a total loss.

"Mr. Armour had a fire in some of his granaries that totally destroyed the grain," said Mr. Bament. "He carried a $450,000 policy which he took out when there was grain worth that sum in his granaries. But $150,000 worth of grain was removed and he neglected to cancel his policy to that extent. So he was credited with a $300,000 loss."

George W. Babb, a member of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, who began his testimony on Tuesday, was again a witness yesterday. Mr. Bruce asked him particularly about rate "fixing." Mr. Babb told him that the fire insurance rates used by the large companies here are not fixed either by the National Board of Fire Underwriters or the New York board, of which he is also a member.

While the committees subpoena servers say they have made every effort to locate Mr. Keene and Mr. Whitney, it was learned yesterday that Mr. Keene has been in the city several times since the race track bribery investigation started, and that he is now stopping at his country place on Long Island. Mr. Whitney is said to be stopping at Red Bank, N. J. He is also said to have been here last Saturday and to have taken a train at the Grand Central Station for the Harvard-Yale football game.

JOHN BIGELOW AT 93

As Busy as at Any Time in His Long and Eventful Career.

With his ninety-third birthday approaching—it comes on Friday—John Bigelow, the venerable author and stateman, was only concerned yesterday with getting the mass of papers that littered the desk in his library out of the way so that he could fittingly celebrate Thanksgiving Day and his birthday in his home in Gramercy Park.

"I cannot take my mind from my work," he said, "since I am overwhelmed as you can see." His desk was covered with a mass of typewritten manuscript, proof sheets, and correspondence. "Otherwise I might have to work on the holdiday, and they insist that I be free on my birthday."

Even though he is approaching the century mark he seemed as busy as he could have been on any day during his eventful career. He declined to be drawn into a discussion even on such interesting topics as the Democratic victory and the possibility of tariff reform, or the choice of the next Democratic Senator from this State.

"You see such sauce as that might not set well in some stomachs on top of Thanksgiving pie," he said laughingly.

"Col. Roosevelt or 'Woman's Suffrage?'"

"No, God bless 'em, not even the woman voters," answered Mr. Bigelow, shaking his shaggy head as he turned toward his desk, and the interview was over.

Canada Now Has a "Who's Who."

A new branch of the Who's Who directories has been started in a volume, "The Canadian Who's Who," published by The London Times in Canada. The book, a red cloth-covered volume of the size and appearance of its American namesake, though only about one-fifth as thick, endeavors to give a list and short biographical data of "the leading men and women of Canada, whether resident in their own land or abroad." The preparation of the volume was completed in Ottawa in May of this year. It is prefaced with a brief introduction by the editor and a comprehensive key. The biographical sketches fill 243 closely printed pages.

THANKSGIVING EVE IN PARIS.

President John H. Finley Speaks at American Club Banquet.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The Thanksgiving Eve banquet of the American Club tonight was attended by three hundred persons, including a number of visiting Americans.

President W. S. Dalliba presided, and the speakers included Ambassador Bacon, Consul-General Mason, the Rev. Caspar Hyatt, the newly appointed pastor of the American church, and Dr. John H. Finley, President of the College of the City of New York, who is this year's Hyde lecturer at the Sorbonne. President Finley paid a glowing tribute to the French explorers in America. Toasts were drunk in honor of President Fallières and President Taft.

BREST, France, Nov. 23.—The commanders of the American warships celebrated Thanksgiving Eve as the guests at a banquet given by Admiral de Marolles, head of the Maritime Prefecture. Toasts were drunk to the Presidents of the French Republic and the United States. After the banquet there was a ball, at which the wives of the American officers were present.

POOR TO CHOOSE OWN GIFTS.

W. J. Wollman Gives Coupons Good at Stores Instead of Provisions.

William J. Wollman of J. S. Bache & Co., who for several years has made a Thanksgiving gift of baskets of provisions to hundreds of poor families, has arranged this year to distribute instead credit coupons, good at about 300 stores in various parts of the city.

Mr. Wollman explained yesterday that he had found that many families which received the provisions had not had the coal with which to cook them, so he decided this year substitute credit coupons, which would entitle each family to get what it wanted. Mr. Wollman made his gift yesterday by distributing among twenty-nine charity organizations 2,000 coupon books, each of the value of $1.

BAN ON MASQUERADERS.

Boys Dressing as Women and Vice Versa to be Arrested To-day.

Following a complaint by the Rev. James B. Curry of St. James's Church in James Street, Police Commissioner Cropsey ordered yesterday that all persons who appear in public to-morrow garbed in apparel of the opposite sex must be arrested. Father Curry said that in previous years ragamuffins appeared in indecent costumes and acted in a vulgar manner—men in women's clothes and vice versa.

Only seven permits for parades have been issued for to-morrow. They were to the Peck Slip Rangers, Squareback Rangers, Manhattan Rangers, Caroline Rangers, Washington Rangers, Trojan Rangers, and the West End Rangers.

TO DINE SUFFRAGE OFFICERS.

Many Notable Speakers Announced for Hotel Astor Function.

The Woman Suffrage Party will give a luncheon to the Board of Officers of the State Woman Suffrage Association on Saturday, Dec. 3, in the Hotel Astor. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will preside and there will be a long list of speakers, among them the Rev. Anna H. Shaw, President National American Woman Suffrage Association; Harriet May Mills, President State Suffrage Association, and Jean Nelson Penfield, Vice Chairman Woman Suffrage Party. Brief messages will be given by Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Burroughs, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Ivins, Mrs. Villard, and Mrs. Osborne of the State Board and by Mrs. Suffren, Mrs. Laidlaw, Mrs. Elder, Mrs. Fisk, Mrs. Ecob, and Miss Whitmore of the Woman Suffrage Party.

Mesdames James Lees Laidlaw, Robert Elder, James H. Ecob and C. W. Fisk, and Miss Edith Whitmore, Chairmen, respectively, for the Boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx, and Richmond, are on the committee with Miss Mary Garrett Hay, the recently elected President of the State Federation of Women's Clubs as Chairmen. Tables and seats, reserved in order of application, may be obtained at the Woman Suffrage Party Rooms, 212 Metropolitan Tower.

A meeting of district leaders will be held in the suffrage headquarters on Tuesday night, the first of monthly meetings for discussion of the work and to receive suggestions for its advancement. From now on each borough will control its own plan of work, reporting regularly to the city committee.

The Woman's Political Union, formerly the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, will move into its new Suffrage Shop, at 46 East Twenty-ninth Street, on Monday, and a few days after will begin the sale of suffrage, literature, buttons, and banners. And one may be able to drink a cup of suffrage tea while making purchases.

LAW AIDS TUBERCULOSIS.

Benjamin C. Marsh Denounces Legal Requirements for Tenement Houses.

Benjamin C. Marsh, Secretary of the Congestion of Population Commission, in speaking yesterday before the Woman's Municipal League, characterized the tenements of the city as "New York's human slaughterhouses." He laid the blame at the door of the land owners, the "traction interests," and "Wall Street."

One preventable death, he declared, occurs every year for every $1,500 or $2,000 increased land valuation.

"The land owner gets the values, the graveyards get the victims," he said. "Yet no other great city in the world has a right to expect as low a death rate as New York on account of its exceptionally healthy natural situation and the age distribution of its immigrants. As things are, few have as high a death rate."

Mr. Marsh attacked the present law because it calls dark rooms "light," after the farce of cutting little windows into them from other rooms almost as dark, the only ventilation and illumination of which comes from windows looking into narrow courts or air shafts. Thousands of deaths from consumption is the penalty, the speaker declared, that New York pays for permitting human beings to live in such rooms, and 20,000 new cases of tuberculosis occur every year from the same cause.

The law lays down as the minimum air space necessary for health just half what health requires, went on Mr. Marsh, and permits twice as many persons to occupy a room as should be allowed. Moreover, the erection of six-story tenements and a density of 1,800 people to the acre is legal, though they prevent the adequate provision of parks and breathing spaces, and only a small portion of rooms even in new tenements have sufficient sunshine.

FOOD THEFT ENGAGES GRAFT COMMITTEE

DEMOCRATS DEMAND INQUIRY

Katzenstein, the Bone and Fat Merchant Accused of Having Stolen Meat, Gets a Delay.

The Legislative Investigating Committee, which has been looking into several phases of legislative graft, will probably turn its attention to the scandal exposed by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick in the theft of meats and other provisions from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane at Ward's Island. This was brought to the attention of the committee yesterday, and most of the committeemen announced that they favored an immediate investigation.

Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., Chairman of the committee, said that he and his fellow members would give the matter their early consideration, and that no doubt an investigation would be made, provided the joint resolution under which the committee was appointed was construed as giving the committee power to make such an inquiry.

Assemblyman James J. Foley, one of the two Democratic members of the committee, said that an investigation of the conditions at the asylum was quite within the scope of the committee, and that such an investigation should be taken up immediately.

"This committee," said he, "was appointed for the purpose of ferreting out official graft and corruption and, as these exposures concern the conduct of a State department and the responsibility of the head of that department, it seems to me to be plainly our duty to find out what the actual conditions are. If these stories we have been reading in the newspapers are true, it is the lowest and most despicable form of grafting. I shall certainly insist upon action by the committee."

State Senator Robert F. Wagner, the other Democratic member, said that the Investigating Committee still has about $20,000 available for probing into matters pertaining to corruption in State departments and institutions.

"It is fortunate that this matter can be investigated at once, without having to wait for special authorization by the Legislature," he added. "It certainly seems fit that a body independent of any State department should make this investigation."

Simon Katzenstein, the Bronx bone and fat merchant, who is under $4,500 bail, charged with having in his possession a large amount of meat stolen from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, on Ward's Island, was arraigned in the Morrisania Court yesterday. In addition to the charge of having the stolen meat, he will also have to answer a charge of bribery.

Katzenstein was not ready to plead, and Charles E. F. McCann, his lawyer, asked for a postponement on the ground that a whole day would be necessary to hear the case. Magistrate Breen thereupon continued the case until next Tuesday.

The State Commission in Lunacy, which is investigating the theft, issued a statement last night night saying that the thefts had become possible through a lack of a proper observance of the established system of accounts and negligence in exercising the checks provided.

The commission held a private hearing yesterday, but announced afterward that on Saturday its hearing will be public and that the commission will then be glad to hear the testimony of any person who can aid in uncovering the guilt of persons who may have been concerned in the stealings.

THIS LITTLE PIG CRIED 'WEE!'

Was In a Bag and Boys Were Teasing It Till It Was Rescued by Policeman.

Policeman Brown saw a lot of boys playing with a huge paper bag in 165th Street at Washington Avenue early yesterday evening. Occasionally from the bag came a squeal such as no other bag in the policeman's memory had ever uttered. He dispersed the boys and in the bag, which was tied with stout twine, he found a little pink pig squealing and kicking.

The policeman took his find to the Morrisania station, and turned it over to Policeman Jameson, who has charge of the stable. Midway between the station and the stable, however, the pig slipped out of the bag and scampered to the station dormitory upstairs. It took the combined efforts of all the reserves to drive the porker out of their sleeping quarters, and capture it in the Captain's room.

Jameson finally lodged it safely in the stable, in the hope that its owner may not turn up, and the pretty little pink pig may grow up to be perfectly good pork chops.

Boy Made His Own Elevated Tickets.

Fifteen-year-old Edward Roach of 301 West 143d Street admitted in the Children's Court yesterday that for the last two weeks he had been manufacturing elevated railroad tickets out of visiting cards and using them at the Desbrosses Street Station of the Ninth Avenue line. Special Officer Walsh saw the boy drop one into the box and called to him. Roach ran down the steps and was not caught until he had gone several blocks. Justice Wyatt remanded him until Saturday.

Talks on Teeth

IN DENTISTRY

About seven years ago we announced to the world the discovery of a new idea in dental science—a new method by which we could restore teeth which had been lost through ignorance or poor dentistry, and accomplish this result without the aid of partial plates or ordinary bridge work.

The Martinolar Method is such a distinct advance in dentistry that we have a right to proclaim it the greatest achievement in dental science of modern times.

Briefly, the Martinolar Method is this: If you have two or more teeth in either jaw, we will supply all that have been lost, and they will be as beautiful and as serviceable as your natural teeth were, or should have been, at their very best.

They will be firm and tight. We tighten loose teeth and cure sore gums. We use no surgery, don't bore or cut into the gums, cause you no pain or discomfort while the work is being done.

Every piece of work that is done in our offices carries with it our guarantee, so we do not ask any one to take any chances on our being unable to carry out our promises.

We take all the risk.

WE MAKE YOU THIS PROPOSITION: Come to our office for a free diagnosis and examination of your teeth. This will cost you nothing, either in money or obligation. We will make you both judge and jury of the work, and let you decide for yourself whether or not it is worthy of consideration and a trial.

If you cannot call at once, send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry."

It is sent free on request.

The reading of this book has brought us patients from everywhere.

NO SPECIAL SESSION LIKELY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Taft returned to Washington at 8:20 o'clock to-night, after having stopped a day at Richmond, Va., on his way home from the Isthmus of Panama.

The President announced soon after his arrival that he would make no engagements during the next five days. In that time he hopes to have his message to Congress completed. Only Cabinet officers and others with whom the President desires to consult regarding his message will be received at the White House. The message will be ready either the night of Nov. 28 or early on Nov. 29.

In his regular message the President will deal with his visit to Panama, making recommendations on a number of subjects which he desires considered and discussed with a view to early legislation.

Coincident with the President's return it was learned that there is not the slightest chance for an extra session of Congress following the coming short session. The President, it is said, sees no necessity for calling Congress to sit after March 4.

President Taft had an interesting day in Richmond, the most important features of which were an informal address on the Panama Canal at the luncheon given in his honor, and an address before the Virginia Educational Conference. There was an amusing incident connected wiht the President's departure from the old Confederate capital. By mistake he was driven to the suburban railway station at Elba, and not finding his special train there had to come back to the Main Street Station.

The President's Panama Canal speech was listened to with the greatest interest. He attempted in a brief way to describe the satisfactory conditions he found on the Isthmus, and aroused great enthusiasm by his prediction that the canal would be open to the world well in advance of the official date of opening, Jan. 1, 1915. He declared that if necessity demanded he believed American battleships could be sent through the waterway by Jan. 1, 1913.

"I have been fortunate," said the President, "in having visited the Isthmus five times. The first time I went there, with yellow fever and malaria on every hand, with nothing but the skeletons of French machinery half buried in the jungles, with a cut only partly made in Culebra, and with no certain plan as to how we were to build the canal, the prospect was not inspiring.

"The questions of housing the employes, of feeding them, and of keeping them in health—which were rife during my second, third, and fourth visits—have disappeared. There is no yellow fever, and there has not been any for three years. The malaria has been reduced to a point where it is negligible. Food is furnished at a price lower than in this country under the Government Commissary, which delivers the food and ice at the doors of its patrons. The workingmen are comfortably and pleasantly housed and fed. They have clubs in the form of Y. M. C. A. houses at various points on the Isthmus, and the life in the tropics is made as pleasant as possible to those who are doing the work.

"Their wages are quite beyond anything received in the United States, and we could not justify the amount of those wages to those who are interested in the Government were it not for the fact that work in the tropics, under the best conditions, is attended with a nervous strain, a loss of nervous strength, and a recurring period of despondency (I think the doctors call it nostalgia) that takes the life out of men, and leads them to leave the work and go where they can get much less wages if only they can breathe in the atmosphere of the temperate zone.

"What the American people want, if I understand it, is the prompt completion of the canal, and they are willing to pay fairly for it. It does not require the imagination of an engineer to see that the canal is there and is being put through, and that it will be a great canal."

The President went into some detail, in dealing with the problem presented by the Chagres River, and declared the lock and lake plan finally adopted was the only feasible one for controlling the turbulent stream.

"We are engaged in taking out of the Culebra cut," said the President, "an average per month of 1,800,000 cubic yards. We are taking out of the other parts of the canal enough to make that average about 2,800,000 cubic yards. If it were excavation only we would not have so much difficulty, because it would then be completed about Jan. 1, 1913, but there are those great lock structures, for instance, at Gatun, which are nearly a mile long and 850 feet wide, with a wall on the outside forty feet in width and a wall in the middle of fifty feet in width.

"We are engaged now in laying that concrete at the rate of about 4,500 cubic yards a day on each side. The men in each division are full of the spirit of competition to see which group can do more yardage in a day and at lower cost. Between them they do about 9,000 cubic yards in a day. If you will calculate that, you will find it makes a mass of concrete that it is difficult to imagine any machinery will lay in a day of from eight to twelve hours. The sides of one lock on the Gatun side have been practically completed, so that we were able to look at it and realize what it was.

"I think generally the people of the United States favored a sea level canal. They thought of a lock and its gates as difficult and complicated machinery, and they thought the idea of lifting a vessel of 25,000 tons by water and machinery was so full of difficulty that it would present obstacles every time a steamer went through. But the advantage of visiting the Isthmus is to confirm the judgment of the engineers in the mind of the layman that that thing is now easy. It is shaping itself. The dam, which seemed such a tremendous work, is a long way toward completion, and when you walk over it you don't realize that it is a dam. It is so big; it seems as if it were a work of nature itself."

CITY GIVES $1,500 PENSION.

Fifty-three Years' Service Earns Half Pay for Chief Clerk Storrs.

The Board of Estimate voted yesterday to retire Henry J. Storrs, Chief Clerk of the Department of Finance, on an annuity of $1,500. Mr. Storrs has been in the office for fifty-three years, having been appointed in December, 1857. He received a salary of $3,150 a year.

On Mr. Storrs's fiftieth anniversary in the department he was entertained at dinner by the office staff, and then announced his intention of retiring.

"Why should you?" asked Controller Metz. "You are far too young to retire."

This statement by the ex-Controller was largely responsible for the continuance of the old gentleman in office.

"Mr. Storrs has been a faithful employe of the city for more than half a century," said Controller Prendergast yesterday. "He now wishes to retire and enjoy a well-earned rest. He is entitled in my mind to the annuity asked for, $1,500 a year."

"Is this according to law?" asked the Mayor.

"Yes," replied the Controller. "Such cases are provided for in the charter."

The pension was then unanimously approved by the board.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards announced to the board that he had awarded to the lowest bidders the snow removal contracts during the coming Winter. He estimated that he has saved not less than $500,000 on the work.

The Commissioner also asked the Controller to devise some system by which the emergency shovelers employed by the city should receive their pay more quickly. Mr. Prendergast said that he would take it up at once.

Borough President Cromwell of Richmond presented a communication to the board from Henry B. Seaman, the recently retired Chief Engineer of the Public Service Commission, in which he again protested against the extra allowances made to the Bradley Contracting Company on their work on the Bridge-Loop Subway. It was referred to the Transit Committee.

SCHROEDER OUT OF JAIL.

Not to be Found in Brooklyn—Friends Say the Widow Romance Is a Myth.

Former Quarantine Commissioner Frederick H. Schroeder, who was sent to Sing Sing for misappropriating funds of the Eagle Savings and Loan Association of Brooklyn a year ago, was released on parole yesterday. He came back to this city, though his Brooklyn friends said last night he hadn't reached that borough.

There was a rumor that Col. Schroeder would be met by a rich Brooklyn widow on his arrival, and that the two were to be married last night, thus adding the last touch to a penitentiary romance of a year, during which time the rich widow was reported to have waited for him.

Neither Schroeder nor the widow could be found last night, but friends of the former declared that the rumor of the wedding was unfounded, particularly as the widow was non-existent. Senator Reuben Gledhill and Alderman John Diemer said the report had been ignored as absurd while Schroeder was still in prison, but that they wanted to deny it now that he is out.

INVITE BRANDEIS TO MANAGE THEIR ROADS

Engineer Who Put the Santa Fe Under "Scientific Management" Tells How Savings Were Effected.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Attorney Louis D. Brandeis's statement before the Inter-State Commerce Commission on behalf of Eastern shippers that railroads through inefficient management wasted $1,000,000 a day, was answered by Western railroad Presidents to-day with a telegram offering him a position "at his own salary" if he could point out the alleged mismanagement.

"A salary of $250,000 a year would not be excessive if he could save twice that much all told to us," said the representative of the Presidents.

"As Sincere as His Statement."

The telegram followed a conference of Western railroad Presidents, in which Darius Miller, B. L. Winchell, H. E. Mudge, and F. A. Delano participated. It was signed by O. L. Dickeson, who was authorized to speak for the railroad Presidents interested in the cases before the Inter-State Commerce Commission. It read:

"Louis D. Brandeis: It is reported you have stated before the Inter-State Commerce Commission that American railways are wasting $1,000,000 daily. If you can point out a practical way by which a substantial portion of this amount may be saved, several Western railways would be pleased to tender you employment, allowing you to name your own salary.

"This proposition is made to you in the same spirit of sincerity in which you rendered your statement to the commission."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Mr. Brandeis set out to-day in the inter-State commerce hearings to prove his contention that the railroads of the country could, if they would, save $1,000,000 a day or more than $300,000,000 a year. He called as a witness Harrington Emerson of New York, a mechanical engineer, who for fifteen years has been investigating shops.

Economies on the Santa Fe.

It was Mr. Emerson who was employed as consulting engineer by the Santa Fé Road, and he gave the commission a detailed statement supported by numerous reports of the various steps and processes by which great savings were accomplished.

The engineer said his attention had been turned first to scientific management at the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, when he was in Germany. He had lived in France for several years before and had a strong sympathy for the French. But the way the Germans systematized the movement of their troops to the French border was, he said, a revelation to him of the value of scientific management in the handling of men.

In applying the new idea he said he always had found the greatest opposition in shops where piecework was the rule.

He urged that a workman should have the regular day rate of pay because he comes and places his time at the disposal of the employer, and then he should have an added rate for his individual merit in the performance of his work, but neither the employer nor the workman should fix the bonus rate. It should be fixed by experts.

Mr. Emerson said he had been retained by the Santa Fé Road from 1904 to 1907 to effect economies. He first studied operations to establish harmonious relations between the men and the management, to fix fair rates of pay, to increase the reliability of the workmen, increase the capacity of the shops, to increase the reliability of the plant, and last of all, to reduce expenses.

Large Loss in Engine Repairs.

He took up the delay of engines in the repair shops, and found that the average delay in every year was sixty days, in which they were out of service. A system of dispatching like that by which trains are moved was instituted and a schedule kept of repair work. A total of 1,760 days lost was reduced to 236. The next thing studied, said Mr. Emerson, was fuel consumption. The cost per engine in 1905 was $4,155; the next year it was reduced to $3,101, and in 1907 it came down to $3,034.

The standard average cost of belt maintenance is 14 per cent. On the Santa Fé Mr. Emerson said it was 100 per cent. He said that the very best belting be purchased and that one of the best men in the system be placed in charge of the belts. He suggested to the management that it should mend bridges after they failed, but kept them always in order in advance of failure. The same method must apply to belts. Thus the average of 300 belt failures per month was cut down to fifty in a short time, and the cost dropped to the standard of 14 per cent.

The same methods were applied to the shops, to tools and to all the operations to which they could be applied.

Fast Trains the Result of the System.

Mr. Emerson said that many roads already were applying scientific management in some departments. The fast trains between New York and the West had been made possible by this system in part, he said, and he felt sure that as time passed many other lines would be brought under the system.

Mr. Emerson said that he had made his estimate of $1,000,000 a day saving to the railroads in four ways. In the first place he figured on the inefficiency of labor which in all kinds of business is accepted to be 5 per cent. He then took the division of locomotive repairs, car repairs, shops and tools, track work, and material, and by similar figuring he arrived at the same estimate of loss.

Mr. Emerson told how the average fuel consumption per freight ton on the Santa Fé in 1904 was 281 pounds. By scientific study it was brought gradually down to 78 pounds. On the Milwaukee and St. Paul similar tests had produced practically the same results.

How Rates Would Affect Business.

P. W. Coyle, formerly assistant traffic manager of the Wabash and now traffic commissioner of the St. Louis Business Men's League, read a statement of the effect of the proposed changes in rules applicable to class and less than carload rates, as compared with commodity rates, and showed that to change these relations of rates now after they had been unchanged practically for 30 years would cost the business men of this city many hundreds of thousands of dollars. On boots with the rate put up from 88 cents to $1.05 the St. Louis trade would have to pay $40,875 more with a similar rise in rates on dry goods. The increase would be $59,500., and on cotton piece goods with the rate put up from 65 cents to 77 cents the increase would amount to $60,000 more annually.

L. T. Gantt of Schenectady, who for many years had been at work on scientific management, told of his experiences in installing the method in various manufacturing plants. He said that the greatest obstacle to its introduction was usually the management. The aim was to regard the machine as working capital and its stoppage as a loss. He said that if manufacturers and railroads would give as much study to the improvement of workmen as they have to machines, it would bring about untold savings in operating expenses.

He gave many details in his experience with the Canadian Pacific. He said that road was now preparing to send standardizing lists for shop work to all parts of their system.

SUSTAINS RATE REDUCTION.

Federal Court Finds Commerce Board Schedule Not Confiscatory or Discriminatory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Ruling that none of the allegations of the railroad companies had been proved, Judges Ross, Gilbert, and Morrow in the United States Circuit Court declined to-day to enjoin the Inter-State Commerce Commission from reducing freight rates between Missouri shipping points and terminals in Washington, Oregon, Nevada, and Arizona.

The decision stated that the reduction was neither confiscatory, arbitrary, nor discriminatory, and that none of the bills submitted by the railroads showed that the reduced rates would prove confiscatory, although it might be possible that the rates were arbitrary. So long, however, as no law was transgressed, the court held the commission was empowered to enforce rates which were arbitrary.

The contention that the blanket rate fixed by the commission was discriminatory was held to be a matter for future decision, as the railroads by fixing rates below the figure set by the commission could obviate the blanket feature.

GOV. STUBBS ATTACKS ROADS

In Resolutions Which the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress Adopts.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 23.—Railroads and trusts were criticised this afternoon in resolutions introduced by Gov. Stubbs of Kansas and adopted unanimously by the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress.

One set urges Congress to enact legislation providing for the valuation of railroads in detail. A second set calls upon Congress to amend the Sherman Anti-Trust law, making it mandatory and providing imprisonment for all violations.

Another resolution urges Congress to enact a law to regulate the issuance of stocks and bonds of inter-State railroads without encroaching upon the right of States to regulate their corporate and domestic affairs. Still another reads:

"That we urge upon the Inter-State Commerce Commission that it correct these abuses by prescribing rates to the Gulf ports which, with due regard to cost of service and distance, are reasonable, and which are not based on rates to and through these so-called gateways, plus the rates back over the same line and thence to the Gulf."

Southerners Form a New Club.

ALBANY, N. Y. Nov. 23.—The Southern Club of New York, organized to encourage and promote the spirit of fraternity between resident and non-resident Southerners in New York City and to establish and maintain clubhouses, was incorporated by the Secretary of State. The directors are: Mirabeau L. Towns, Dr. William E. Fitch, Dixie Hines, David Robinson, Frank L. Whitson, Andrew J. Smith, Henry P. Waugh, Henry C. Miner, E. Lawshe, Isadore Berg, and George F. Curtiss of New York.

Keeping the Family Together

THE next best thing to enjoying Thanksgiving Dinner with the folks back home is to hear their voices, to chat with them, to get the home news right from their lips. Many of us cannot get home to sit down to the plentiful Thanksgiving Dinner that is both a dinner and a family reunion. The stress of business or social affairs will not permit us to make the trip. Our voices, however, can travel home instantly by telephone, and we can talk to all the family, recognizing their voices and their laughter. It relieves the disappointment of not being present in person.

And we can do this regardless of whether the folks are 100 or 1,000 miles away, for the Long Distance Lines of the Bell Telephone System reach everywhere.

By the way, have you a Telephone in your home?

SAY BROKER IS BANKRUPT.

Creditors Begin Proceedings Against Augustine N. Lawrence.

Augustine N. Lawrence, formerly in business as a stock broker on the Consolidated Exchange, was the defendant yesterday in a petition in bankruptcy filed against him by four creditors claiming amounts aggregating $839 on balances alleged to be due on stock accounts which had been carried for them by Lawrence.

The bankruptcy proceedings derive interest from the fact that Lawrence was sued in the Spring of last year by Irving W. Childs, who sought to recover $81,000, which he said was due on stock transactions, which Lawrence denied. On Monday of this week the plaintiff in this former suit against Lawrence was called into court by Mrs. Gertrude E. Childs, who was legally separated from him a year and a half ago.

She sought to obtain from Childs a bond for $250,000 to assure the payment of $700 a month alimony, the payment of which she feared was threatened by the extravagance of Childs, who, though not yet 25 years old, is alleged to have lost $480,000 in trading in Wall Street. Justice Blackman of Brooklyn who heard the application for the bond, reserved decision.

Lawrence is alleged to have admitted last August that he was unable to meet his obligations, and that his assets when liquidated would probably not be more than enough to pay about 25 cents on the dollar on the $40,154 he owed. The creditors were urged at that time to accept settlement on this basis. The creditors who filed the petition in bankruptcy yesterday and the amounts which they claim are Wolly Dehn, $377; Henry Schetelig, $97; Robert Peoples, $167, and Stephen Wassell $198, all of Brooklyn.

WILSON AT FULL BACK ON CORNELL TEAM

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 23.—Cornell will meet the University of Pennsylvania football eleven on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, to-morrow afternoon without the services of Simson, the dashing full back of the Ithaca eleven. This announcement was made to-day by Coach Reed. Notwithstanding this handicap the boys from Lake Cayuga do not seem to be discouraged, and say they will fight the harder to win a victory, which means so much to them.

While it has not been definitely decided who will take Simson's place at full back, it is probable that Wilson will fill the vacancy. In the practice this afternoon on the field at Inlet Park considerable attention was devoted to Wilson, and it is more than likely that this player will be selected by the coaches.

For more than an hour the Ithaca boys to-day worked up and down the field at signal practice, and their work was clean and fast with practically no fumbling.

Aside from the loss of Simson the Cornell eleven will line up the same as it has done in the big games this season. The line-up as announced by Coach Reed to-night is as follows: Eyrich, left end; Champaign, left tackle; O'Rourke, left guard; J. Whyte, centre; Delano, right guard; Weeks, right tackle; Seagraves, right end; Butler, quarter back; O'Connor, left half back; Nichols, right half back; Wilson, full back.

Trainer Moakley said to-night that all the men are in excellent condition and capable of putting up a hard game.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—"If Pennsylvania is beaten to-morrow by Cornell there will be no excuse to offer," said Coach Smith of the Quaker eleven to-night. All of the Pennsylvania regulars will be in the line-up to-morrow, and they are pronounced by Trainer "Mike" Murphy to be fit to play the game of their lives.

Ramsdell, Mercer, anud Sommer, the fast back field men, are in perfect trim, having fully recovered from the injuries received in the Michigan game.

On the grounds of the St. Luke's Academy at Wayne, a suburb, this afternoon, the Pennsylvania eleven put in nearly two hours signal practice. The work of the Red and Blue was fast and clean.

While the coaches of the Quakers are of the opinion that the local eleven will be victorious, they are not underestimating the strength of the Cornell team.

Capt. Cozens has warned his men that they will have a hard game, and that there must not be a feeling of overconfidence, as such a condition may result in defeat.

The indications to-night are that the day will be an ideal one for football. The weather is likely to be cloudy, with just enough frost in the atmosphere to put plenty of life into the play.

NAVY TEAM IN GOOD SHAPE.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 23.—It is now no secret that the stomach trouble which affected so many members of the Naval Academy football team, along with the other midshipmen, as a result of drugging by colored employes, would, if continued for another day or two, have turned the Army-Navy game into a farce. Nearly every member of the squad was weakened to some extent, and several, including Dalton, the main reliance of the Navy team in the back field, were very sick youths. Happily, all the players are in good shape to-day, and the effects will be entirely removed by Saturday. The general condition of the team is far ahead of that of any academy team at this period of the season, and there seems to be no doubt that the Navy will be able to avail itself of its full strength when it opposes the Army next Saturday.

There has not been a serious accident this year, and Trainer McMasters said this afternoon that the squad was in about as good condition as it was possible to get any set of young men. Great care is being taken to prevent injuries to the regulars, and they were kept in practice this afternoon only long enough to limber up thoroughly, the rest of the time being spent in signal practice and handling punts.

The full brigade of midshipmen was out this afternoon with the Naval Academy band, and the team was cheered enthusiastically. A splendid demonstration is being planned for to-morrow, when the team does its last work in the local grounds.

The coaches have decided to withhold the names of the players in the final line-up until just before the game, but there is little doubt that they will be the same as those who represented the Navy in the last half of Saturday's game against New York University. It is noticed that the coaches are devoting themselves largely to these men. The team will leave for Philadelphia Friday morning and the brigade and Navy contingent by special trains Saturday morning.

West Point Practice Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 23.—A very light signal drill to-day completed the work of the Army team, and they are now marking time until they face the Navy on Saturday. Head Coach H. M. Nelly and Trainer James Temple will leave with the squad Friday morning, and, as usual, the team will be quartered at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. The applications for tickets to the Army Athletic Council greatly exceeded the Army allotment, and to-day the distribution ceased with hundreds of applications that Capt. Grove, Treasurer, was unable to fill.

The official figures given out to-day show that the Army team will average 176 pounds, which is a couple of pounds more than the Navy, according to their published weight. The Army line also is slightly heavier, but the Army backs are lighter than the middies, being 165 pounds' average against the Navy backs, who average 171. On Saturday night the cadet squad will attend the Broad Street Theatre.

Indians Off for Providence.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 23.—The Carlisle Indians' football squad left Carlisle this morning for the Brown game at Providence to-morrow. Before leaving Capt. Houser said that his men were in shape to give Brown a battle royal. Coach Warner and School Physician Dr. Defoney both stated that the redskins were fit physically, but none of the Indians nor their officials would guess at the result of the game.

LUNCHEON FOR AUTOISTS.

Exhibitors of National Show Guests of Walter E. Hildreth at Breslin.

A luncheon was given yesterday by Walter E. Hildreth of the Hotel Breslin to representatives of the exhibitors at the National Automobile Show, which is to be held at Madison Square Garden in January. The Breslin each year gives this luncheon and grants permission to one of the companies to exhibit a car in the lobby of the hotel. The choice of the car is decided by lot. As there are two distinct shows at the Garden this year, the Breslin has granted permission to two companies to exhibit their cars. Yesterday R. H. Johnston of the White Company drew first choice and the White car will be exhibited at the hotel during the first week of the show. A. S. Winslow, representing Cimiotte Brothers, was the other successful man in the drawing, and the Pullman car will be on exhibition during the second week of the show.

Walter E. Hildreth acted as host, and the following were present: R. H. Johnston, White Company; Charles E. Reiss, Marion; John F. Plummer, Locomobile Company of America; R. F. Allcutt, Knox Automobile Company; G. E. Stone, United States Motor Company, Maxwell, and Stoddard-Dayton; William F. Herridon, Victor Auto Storage Company, Columbia; W. C. Johnson, Waverley electric; J. Mora Boyle, Midland; Le Roy Moody, Mercedes; C. F. Redden, Studebaker; John Tugby, National; George Stowe, Carl H. Page & Co., Chalmers; H. R. Bliss, Franklin; Inglis M. Uppercu, Cadillac; A. S. Winslow, Pullman; H. C. Esselstyne, Reo and Premier. George H. Duck, Matheson. Addresses were made by Mr. Hildreth, H. A. Bonnell, Assistant General Manager of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers; W. J. Morgan, R. H. Johnston, S. Wallis Merrihew, M. L. Downs, secretary of the Garden Show Committee, and W. W. Knowles, the architect in charge of the Garden show.

TAFT WILL NOT SEE GAME.

President's Wife and Daughter May Attend Army-Navy Football.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Taft will not witness the annual football contest in Philadelphia next Saturday between the Army and Navy football teams. The completion of his annual message and other important matters will keep him busy at the White House.

Secretary of War Dickinson and Secretary of the Navy Meyer, also Beekman Winthrop, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, will be on Franklin Field, however, to see the contest between the elevens representing their two branches of the service. Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft probably will be members of Secretary Dickinson's party.

Harvard-Princeton Football Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23.—Nothing will be done about a Harvard-Princeton football game for next Fall until the return of Coach Percy Haughton from Europe. Haughton will be back about Dec. 10. There is no truth in reports that the game has been arranged, but it is likely to be.

GLOVER AND NELSON DRAW.

Mike Glover of Boston and Tod Nelson of Australia divided honors last night in the star bout at the Sharkey Athletic Club. Both men were welterweights and Nelson claims the championship of his home country, but the form he exhibited in last night's contest was far from championship calibre. The contest gave promise of a fairly good bout, but before the fourth round had expired both men became tired from their own efforts, owing to the fact that they missed hard swings repeatedly, which did them more harm than the punishment they received from each other.

Glover had the better of the first and third rounds by getting over some hard blows with both hands to the body, while Nelson was slow and bad on judgment. After the fourth round both men became tired, and plugged along for the remainder of the contest at a slow pace, during which they missed frequently. Glover showed a flash of speed in the ninth round that was short lived, in which he sent home a hard right and left smash to the face that hurt Nelson, but the Australian was game and came back for more and exchanged blows freely with Glover.

The men fought hard in the last round, but Nelson was the stronger, and did most of the fighting, getting over a few hard right hooks to the stomach. The bulk of the work was directed to the body by both contestants, but in the second round Nelson brought the blood from Glover's nose that continued all through the ten rounds.

Nelson Will Retire If Moran Wins.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—"Battling" Nelson says he will retire from the ring if beaten next Saturday in his battle with Owen Moran. The Dane realizes that his showing with Anton La Grave was far from an indication that he could "come back," and that his only claim to a return meeting with Wolgast hinges upon the showing he makes against the shifty Britisher.

Notes of the Boxers.

The fight pictures depicting the battle between Owen Moran and Battling Nelson will be shown in this city early next week.

Harlem Tommy Murphy and Willie Beecher are carded as the topliners at the Olympic Athletic Club next Monday night. Murphy claims that he will be in better shape for this bout than he was in when he recently fought Knockout Brown, whom he acknowledges he held too cheap, and appreciates that he must get a decision over Beecher in order to get another battle with Brown.

The Longacre A. A. has arranged a star card for to-night, with three ten-round bouts, three at six rounds, and two at four. In the main bout Young Goldman will box Dave Dillon.

Harvard to Play Ten Hockey Games.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23.—Ten games will be played by the Harvard hockey team this Winter. The schedule is not yet complete, but the following games have been approved by the Athletic Committee, and probably all of these games will be played in Boston. It is not likely that the Harvard team will be seen in New York this season. The dates are as follows: Dec. 14, Massachusetts Tech.; 17, Amherst; Jan. 4, Springfield Training School; 7, McGill; 11, St. Francis Xavier; 16, Columbia; 21, Princeton; 28, Cornell; Feb. 4, Dartmouth; 11, Yale.

"Hack" and Westergaard Matched.

ATHLETIC SOLDIERS IN ANNUAL MEET

Company F, Twenty-second Regiment Engineers, held its annual games last night in the armory, Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, with an enthusiastic attendance. Aside from the number of events restricted to the protégés of Capt. Charles J. Dieges, the one competition which attracted outside opposition was the one-mile relay race, open to teams of five from any regiment in the National Guard.

This race called out the team of the Seventy-first Regiment, which caused "Defendam" to doff its colors for the time being at least, as the visitors won almost as they pleased by a margin of ten yards after being in the van from the very first relay. Kuben led off for the Seventy-first, and after permitting Cahill of the home team to show the way for the first "two-twenty" immediately went to the front and led at the end of the relay a margin which put his team on easy street, if the pace of the rest of the contingent was any line, as each handed his mate at least ten yards handicap on the succeeding man of the home team. Eventually T. F. Goggin of the Seventy-first quintet was enabled to get home in comparatively easy fashion by ten yards in 3:42.

First on the list of events was the much-heralded indoor baseball game with nines of the Irish American Athletic Club and the Company F team as the principals. The latter failed to solve the delivery of George Bonhag, the five-mile record holder, and was eventually beaten by a score of 5 to 3. The base running of Abel Kiviat was a feature of the work of the "Winged Fist" team.

Several heats were necessary before the 70-yard dash was decided. The winner finally turned up in the person of R. Foster, who made the best of his allotment of 18 feet, getting home by a yard from J. Schaefer, who had 8 feet handicap. The time was creditable, 0:07 4-5. The only scratch man of the series to get by the judges in front was Phil Lorz in the half-mile handicap run, which he won in handy fashion in 2:19. The summary:

70-Yard Dash.—Handicap—Final Heat—Won by R. Foster, (18 feet;) J. Schaefer, (8 feet,) second; A. Nafka, (12 feet,) third. Time—0:07 4-5. Won by 1 yard; same distance between second and third.

Two-Mile.—Handicap—Won by R. Benfield, (160 yards;) P. Lorz, (scratch,) second; William Doyle, (100 yards,) third. Time—11:41. Won by 80 yards; 80 yards between second and third.

600-Yard Run.—Novice—Won by R. Foster; W. Buckingham, second; W. Quegeline, third. Time—1:28. Won by 10 yards; same between second and third.

One-Mile Bicycle Race.—Handicap—Won by J. Lightflint, (scratch;) N. Donovan, (140 yards,) second; A. Bird, (160 yards,) third. Time—2:46.

One-Half-Mile Run.—Handicap—Won by Phil Lorz, (scratch;) T. Fallows, (50 yards,) second. Time 2:19.

440-Yard Dash.—Handicap—Won by H. Elkins, (45 yards;) B. Chapin, (35 yards,) second; B. Walton, (10 yards,) third. Time—0:55. Won by 5 yards; 10 yards between second and third.

One-Half-Mile Walk.—Handicap—Won by J. Schaefer, (175 yards;) J. Durtenall, (50 yards,) second; I. Greason, (100 yards,) third. Time—3:28.

One-Mile Relay Race.—Teams of Five—Won by Seventy-first Regiment team, composed of J. Kuben, A. Ronaldson, T. Moore, R. Goggin, T. F. Goggin; Twenty-second Regiment team, composed of L. J. Cahill, F. Ridgway, F. O'Brien, W. Waters, R. Neiderweiser, second. Time—3:42. Won by 10 yards.

Kramer, Rutt, and Clarke Matched.

The three-cornered match race for the cycling sprinting championship of the world, in which the champions of the three continents—America, Europe, and Australia—will compete, was fixed up yesterday to take place at Madison Square Garden on Saturday, Dec. 3, the night preceding the start of this year's six-day race. Frank Kramer, who has held the title in this country for the past ten years; Walter Rutt of Germany, who has taken the measure of all the European cracks, and Jack Clarke, the little Australian short distance champion, form the trio of starters in this match. The race is to be run in heats, best two out of three or best three out of four, if the fourth is necessary. The first heat will be at one-half mile, the second at a mile, and the other to be decided by the toss of a coin.

Kramer and Clarke have had several bitter duels during the last Summer season around this circuit, comprising Vailsburg, Boston, New Haven, and Providence. They are both at the European track now in training for the coming race. Rutt is on board the French liner Bretagne, which sailed from Havre last Saturday, and will also work out for the race at Vailsburg. In addition to riding in this event Clarke and Rutt will both be participants in the six-day grind, the former being teamed with Floyd McFarland and the latter again having as partner the stury Holland champion, John Stol.

St. Yves Wants a Running Mate.

Henri St. Yves, the little French runner who wound up last season by capturing the two big Marathon races at the Polo Grounds, is having his own troubles securing a team mate for the international Marathon team race which is to be held at the Garden on Tuesday night. In the last team race, at twenty miles, St. Yves had the ex-amateur Larque as a running mate, but the latter was not fast enough to keep up with the procession. In the coming event on the 29th St. Yves, in looking around for a partner, got in touch with Kolhemainen, and the Finn promised to team up with him. He has changed his mind, however, and wants to combine with his old partner, Nieminen. This entry, however, has been refused, as Kolhemainen promised to run with St. Yves, and the management is disposed to uphold St. Yves; so that if there is a good, fast young runner looking for a job the little Frenchman has one for him. As the race now stands, there are four teams entered—Holmer and Queal, America; Shrubb and Wood, England; Ljungstrom and Svanberg, Sweden, and Meadows and Woods, Canada.

Atlantic Y. C. Nominations.

The following nominations for officers of the Atlantic Yacht Club for the ensuing year have been reported by the Chairman of the Nominating Committee, H. E. Boucher: For Commodore, William H. Bernard; Vice Commodore, George W. Titcomb; Rear Commodore, Frank M. Wilson; Secretary, Harry A. Bullock; Treasurer, P. H. Hart; Trustees, term expiring 1914, Gherardi Davis and William A. Barstow; Membership Committee, Charles B. Ludwig, Chairman, Herbert L. Jones, Kenneth Lord; Nominating Committee, yacht owners, S. Edward Vernon, Robert W. Speir, Andrew McIntosh; non-yacht owners, Ernest E. Malcolm, Chairman, C. H. Eagle, E. J. Graff. The annual meeting of the club will be held in the Hotel Astor on the evening of Dec. 12.

HUESTON LOSES MATCH.

G. W. Moore Wins Handicap Three-Cushion Carrom Billiard Contest.

George W. Moore defeated Thomas A. Hueston in the handicap three-cushion-carrom billiard match last night, which ended after three nights' play at McGraw's Academy. Hueston was to have made 150 points to Moore's 130, but Moore, by his skillful, steady playing, showed that he did not need the big 20-point handicap and won out by a total score of 130 to Hueston's 134. In last night's block the score was: Moore, 49; Hueston, 84.

Moore's playing was far superior to that of his opponent and he took a big lead at the start and held it throughout the match. Hueston was very erratic at the opening and did not get the ivories rolling to suit him until it was too late to catch up. He made a strong finish, however, clicking off two runs of four and one of five in the last few innings. Up to the fifty-fifth inning his playing was far below form, for inning after inning he failed to get a point. From the twenty-ninth to the thirty-ninth inning he had nothing but ciphers and his best playing up to that time had been three runs of two each. Hueston had more than his share of hard luck, for time and again Moore left the balls in the most difficult positions, many times leaving them frozen against the rail.

Hueston's run of five in the fifty-ninth inning was the high run of last night's block. He also had two runs of four, while Moore rolled off a four but once. Moore was steady, however, and gathered his points in clusters of twos and threes often. Last night he ran three seven times, always keeping a safe distance in front of his opponent. On three occasions, after making runs of three, Moore rather than run a chance of making a good "leave" for Hueston, played safe.

Moore got two in the second inning, but it was the fifth before Hueston gathered two points. He missed many of his shots by narrow margins. Hueston got one in the sixth, but Moore scored on difficult cross-rail shots in the seventh and added three more. Hueston's streak of poor cueing in unusually difficult situations left him far in the rear, and in the first twenty-six innings he had but 10 points to his credit. Moore at that stage of the match had 21. Hueston's weak showing continued for the next twenty-seven innings, and he had scored only 19 points up to the fifty-fourth inning, when Moore was going along brilliantly toward the end of his strong string with 41.

Moore's game was very consistent, his cue work accurate, and his judgment excellent. The most brilliant play of the match was made by Moore in the fifty-first inning when, after a run of two, he scored a third point on a skillful bank shot. With two balls near the side rail, he drove the cue ball to the rear rail, along the rail to the white ball, kissing off to the red ball. This play got the most applause of the evening. Moore did not once falter in his steady playing, all of his shots being executed with finesse and ease.

Hueston made a spurt at the fifty-third inning, and in the next nine innings he gathered 18 points, more than he had made in all the previous innings.

Double Victory for De Oro.

Alfred De Oro, who is practicing for his coming championship pool match with Jerome Keogh, played two games of pool yesterday at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy and won both matches. The first game, which was played in the afternoon, resulted in a victory for De Oro over F. Palmer by the score of 125 to 84. De Oro made a high run of 18. In the evening game De Oro defeated E. Kendall by the score of 125 to 45. De Oro's high run for this game was 28. This afternoon De Oro will meet J. Fallon and in the evening he will cross cues with Al. Goertz.

Reed Beats Tobias at 18.2.

In last night's game of the Harlem class amateur 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, Mr. Reed easily defeated Mr. Tobias by the score of 200 to 145. It took Reed thirty-three innings to score the necessary 200 points and a high run of 21. The tournament will be resumed next Monday, when Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Tobias will cross cues.

Pittsburger Wins at Billiards.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 23.—Starting with a run of 4, and repeating it five times, P. T. Trunt of Pittsburg easily defeated Pierre S. Maupome of St. Louis, 50 to 35, to-night in one of the intercity games for the National championship at three-cushion billiards. Maupome's best runs were three threes. The game required ninety-five innings.

Goodman Banking on His Training.

If hard training can do the trick, Jack Goodman ought to beat Young Sammy Smith at the National Sporting Club to-morrow night. Ten-round bouts, however, aren't won in gymnasiums, and it is probable that Goodman will have to invent something new in the wallop line to come out on top. Smith has fought twice since he and Goodman had their last argument and has won both times, while all Goodman has done is train. Jack has been criticised for not boxing oftener in public, but he says he gets plenty to do in the "gym" and will be there with everything for Young Sammy. The six-round bout preliminary to the Goodman-Smith go will have those promising young bantams Young Reilly and Barry Hill, the ex-amateur, as principals. Their last meeting was a hair-raiser, but it was limited to four rounds. The extra two rounds this time may bring about something unmistakably decisive.

Brooklyn Beach's Boxing Card.

Two ten-round bouts will be offered as the feature at the regular weekly show of the Brooklyn Beach Athletic Club, Sixty-fifth Street and Third Avenue, Brooklyn, to-night. Irish Paddy and Johnny Reagan will be the principals in one of the affairs, and Billy Lewis will try conclusions with Paddy McCafferty in the other bout, also of ten rounds.

Old Man Brings Down Big Deer.

Special to The New York Times.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Nov. 23.—Probably the happiest man in New Jersey to-day is William Rogers of this place. Nearly seventy years of age, but as nimble as a man of thirty years of age, he went deer hunting at daybreak this morning, and after three hours of patience was rewarded by killing a buck weighing nearly 200 pounds. Other hunters successful in killing bucks were Joseph Roberts of Mount Holly, who secured one weighing 140 pounds, and Earl Saunders, Pleasantville, one weighing 150 pounds.

Road Run for Novices.

A road run for novices, under the auspices of the Morris Athletic Association, will be held Sunday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, at the clubhouse, 162d Street and Jerome Avenue. Entries will close Friday. Seven prizes will be awarded to the first three finishers and a plaque will be awarded to the team scoring the lowest number of points. There will be no invitation run Sunday but the usual invitation walk over a course about five miles in length will be held Sunday morning, starting at 10 o'clock.

SENIOR GOLFERS PLAY AT LAKEWOOD

J. F. Shanley Wins Eighteen-Hole Handicap—Tuning Up for Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 23.—Veterans in years, if not in feeling, had their second annual meeting on the links of the Country Club of Lakewood to-day. Three prizes, two net and one gross, gave the golfers something to play for in the eighteen-hole handicap. There was a tie for the net trophies between J. F. Shanley of the home club and S. L. Allen of Riverton, with cards of 92-14-78 and 94-16-78, respectively. Col. J. E. Smith of Wilmington won the gross honors with a 90.

If the general run of the cards was on the high side the fault did not lie with the course, which never looked in better condition. The deeper traps, however, made the links more of a trying test than ever, as fully half of the original thirty-odd starters can testify to their sorrow.

Throughout the day golfers from far and near who had entered for the main tournament which begins to-day put in useful practice rounds. Included among those seen on the links were Walter J. Travis of Garden City, H. M. Forrest of Philadelphia, P. W. Whittemore, the Brookline Captain, who defeated Travis in a tournament at Essex County last Summer; Richard Mott of Riverton, Arden M. Robbins of Garden City, and Charles L. Tappin of Westbrook.

The scores in the seniors' handicap were as follows:

	Gross.	H'p.	Net.
J. F. Shanley, Lakewood	92	14	78
S. L. Allen, Riverton	94	16	78
D. H. Rowland, Plainfield	98	17	81
James Barber, Englewood	103	22	81
E. W. McCutcheon, Plainfield	101	20	81
N. T. Pulsifer, Dyker Meadow	100	19	81
Edward Worth, Spring Haven	102	20	82
A. F. Huston, St. David's	91	7	84
J. E. Smith, Wilmington	90	6	84
A. F. Southerland, Englewood	96	9	85
A. C. Soper, Lakewood	107	20	87
S. Y. Ramage, Oil City	94	7	87
H. W. Brown, Philadelphia	97	10	87
C. A. Spofford, Apawamis	96	7	89
H. L. Thornell, Seabright	99	10	89
S. B. Ferris, Lakewood	112	18	94
E. G. Heller, Forest Hill	120	22	98

Golf at Woodmere C. C.

Woodmere Country Club members have been turning out in numbers during the past week, taking advantage of the ideal weather conditions for golf. In the final of the two-ball mixed foursome handicap tournament Miss Lucy R. Morgenthau and Frederick Gurney defeated Mrs. Jesse Weinberg and Thomas A. McWhinney, 4 up and 2 to play. A reception and dance were among the features of an entertainment held last night in the parlors of the club.

Schoolboy Skating Races.

The skating races for schoolboys will be resumed on Saturday at the St. Nicholas Rink. These events have been productive of splendid results in the way of developing speed skaters for competition. They have the indorsement of the Public Schools Athletic League, and special events will be given during the season under the supervision of that organization.

NEWS OF THE ATHLETES.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the Oranges has arranged a football game between their team and the Princeton University scrubs to take place this afternoon at Ashland Field, East Orange, at 3 P. M. The Orange and Black line-up includes Bredemus, Carlburg, Clark, Thompson, and the star the Tigers have for next year, Vaughn, whom they were unable to use this season because of the eligibility rule. This yearly match usually results in a great game, and this afternoon's is expected to keep up the record.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton and Gen. George W. Wingate of the P. S. A. L. announce that a trophy has been presented by C. B. J. Snyder for annual competition among Brooklyn elementary schoolboys in the 125-pound class basket ball championship tournament, for which six teams have made entries.

Salisbury School, Connecticut, was represented by a football team this season, which tallied 202 points against opponents' 17, gained through the medium of the following victories: Salisbury vs. Searles High School, 89 to 0; Berkshire School, 58 to 6; Kent School, 5 to 0; Westminster School, 5 to 5; Hallock School, 28 to 6; Berkshire School, 17 to 0. The team gives great praise to E. D. Williams, Williams, 1909, their coach.

Cumiskey, quarter back for De Witt Clinton football team, is expected to show his generalship this afternoon in his school's match against the High School of Commerce at the Polo Grounds. He is credited locally with playing his position better than any lad on any of the city teams. The winner of this match will claim the championship of Manhattan, and enthusiasts anticipate the most keenly played game of the season in this grade.

Saratoga Park, Brooklyn, will be the scene this afternoon of the annual football game between Boys' High School and Manual High School. The latter anticipate a victory because of the strength of its line and the speed of its backs, while their opponents hope to win because of their strong stand against Erasmus and Poly Prep. This game will further tie up the football ranking among the school teams over the bridge.

At Manhasset, L. I., next Sunday there will be a hare and hound chase on bicycles, held under the auspices of the Century Road Club of America. There will be five hares, each carrying a bag of various colored paper, which they will lay over a trail through the wooded country and over the hills, endeavoring with a start of ten minutes to elude their pursuers. The route will be over a roundabout course of twelve miles.

Morris High School defeated Manual Training in their inter-school rifle match by a score of 265 to 248. Fay, Koops, and Elias made the top scores.

Probably sixty long-distance runners will start in the Yonkers Marathon at noon to-day, getting the word from Mayor Lennon, which will send them over a course of twenty-six miles. The first seventeen miles will be run over the roads between Getty Square, Yonkers, the Empire City race track, where the final nine miles will be covered. The principal entries are Jimmy George, an Indian runner; [illegible] and Dan Sheridan, all of Canada; Jack Bell and Dick Clinton, [illegible]; Sidney Hatch of Chicago, and Billy Hicks of Hartford, Conn.; Sammy Mellor, who has run in many Marathons.

HARVARD MEN BLACKLISTED.

Special to The New York Times.

Cambridge, Mass, Nov. 23.—Ten men are already on the Harvard blacklist for having allowed their Harvard-Yale football tickets to reach the hands of speculators. Just before the game there appeared in a Boston paper an advertisement that six tickets could be bought for $300. An appointment was made with the man in New Haven and there the tickets were replevined for their original price.

The tickets had been those sent to three graduates of the Dental School, Class of '97, and the three graduates have been blacklisted by the Harvard Athletic Association. Before the game investigation was made of a report that speculators in Boston had a big supply of tickets. One of them had a big supply, but they were mostly tickets for the Cornell game.

Lasker and Janowski Draw.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The sixth game of the chess championship match between Emanuel Lasker and D. Janowski, resumed from yesterday, ended in a draw to-day after sixty-seven moves. The score: Lasker, 3; drawn, 3; Janowski, 0.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, NOV. 24, 1910.

DISCONTENT IN NEW YORK.

Discontent and unrest are at this time unusually prevalent in the City of New York. It is a matter of common observation and beyond denial that conditions exist of which a large part of the community justly complains. Out of these conditions have come serious disturbance to the business habits and orderly life of the community, they have led to a denial of rights of the citizen which should be guaranteed under a Government of wise laws. It is not for the public good that these conditions should be tolerated indefinitely. Evils justly complained of, evils that afflict practically the entire community and impose serious hardships upon many, ought not to be tolerated.

This feeling of discontent was manifested during the recent interruption of a public service rendered to the community by certain corporations which became involved in a labor disturbance. The usual and indispensable methods of distributing commodities in the city were interfered with to a degree amounting to actual suspension of the service. Great inconvenience and loss were the result. Just now the safe and convenient use of a part of the ordinary facilities for getting about the city is forbidden to its people. Not only has the machinery of travel and distribution been disturbed, but the public peace has been broken. There has been rioting in the streets. Murderous assaults have been committed, and, in one case, murder was done. Even now persons engaged in their lawful affairs are obliged to invoke the special protection of the police, and the spectacle is presented of police officers withdrawn from their usual duties to perform this special service of protection to life and property against assault.

Of these derangements of its business machinery, and of these dangers and disturbances, the community as a whole complains. But there is a class upon which the conditions that have brought about this general dissatisfaction bear with peculiar injustice and severity. We mean the wage earners who are willing and anxious to work, who need the wages they would willingly accept for their work, and who would work were the privilege not denied to them. In a recent disturbance, now settled, at least temporarily, and in a disturbance still continuing, men entirely content with the conditions of their service have been denied the right to work, have been prevented from working by threats of violence or by actual assaults, in which they have suffered grievous bodily harm. This form of tyranny is a serious cause of discontent. So long as it continues, the victims of it have a right to say that the equal protection of the laws is denied to them. Diligent as the police may be in their efforts to prevent rioting and to protect life and property, they cannot be wholly successful so long as in many parts of the city organizations of men continue to defy the laws and to seize every opportunity to maul and maim any victim they may chance to find without protection.

There is another special class, a very large class, indeed, who view with growing discontent and apprehension the policy adopted by the leaders of labor to extend on every hand the principle of organization, a policy which they seek to enforce by duress, by terrorism, and by violence. The methods they adopt deny alike to the employers of labor and to labor itself the right of free choice. They constrain the employer by threats to submit to their demands, while on the other hand, they, by various means, among which are compulsion, abuse, and threats of ostracism and injury, compel workingmen to abandon the free status with which they are entirely content, and to submit themselves to the rules, the discipline, and the orders of an organization from which, were they entirely free to choose, they would hold aloof. The consequences of this extension of unionism are plainly foreseen by the employed and the employers. It creates a class enjoying privileges which they deny to others. It tends greatly to extend the area of every labor disturbance through what is called the sympathetic strike. Men having no grievance whatever, and who need for their families the weekly wages they earn, and employers guilty of no harshness or injustice toward their men, are made to suffer the loss and injury of idleness whenever a leader or an organizer desires to improve his chances of winning one strike by bringing on a strike in other, and, it may be, unrelated trades. That is what the general application of the union principle means, it is what it directly involves under leaders of the temper of those who have of late been conspicuously active.

The words social discontent, as usually employed, have in the past applied only to those who from below protest against the injustice inflicted upon them from above. The discontent now observable in this community affects all classes. It is the fruit of injuries inflicted upon nearly all by a few. A reasonable sense of prudence and responsibility in those who have caused this discontent, and are daily adding to it, would of itself correct or check the tendencies leading to impatience, unrest, and discontent. That reasonable sense seems at the moment to be lacking. But when evils can no longer be endured, they must be cured. There is always a point where patience is exhausted, and then comes reaction. It would be the part of wisdom for those who are responsible for these growing evils to take note carefully of a growing public opinion. The methods to which they resort, and of which the public justly complains, are those of war, private war. The laws recognize only public war. Private war is everywhere unlawful. In this Republic the laws must ultimately triumph. It is better to respect them.

DR. OSLER ON VACCINATION.

At last Dr. William Osler has broken his "curious silence" about vaccination. The anti-vaccinationists had remarked upon it, had made the most of it. In the American Magazine for December the Regius Professor of Medicine in Oxford issues this defiance:

> I would like to issue a Mount Carmel-like challenge to any ten unvaccinated priests of Baal. I will go into the next severe epidemic with ten selected vaccinated persons and ten selected unvaccinated persons. I should prefer to choose the latter—three members of Parliament, three anti-vaccination doctors, if they could be found, and four anti-vaccination propagandists.

And he makes this promise:

> Neither to jeer nor to gibe when they catch the disease, but to look after them as brothers, and for the four or five who are certain to die I will try to arrange the funerals with all the pomp and ceremony of an anti-vaccination demonstration.

Rather a grisly joke. But there would be a grislier reality everywhere if the anti-vaccinationists had their way.

SUBWAY PARTISANSHIP.

Chairman Willcox's statement yesterday that he would consider subway proposals until the last moment contrasts strongly with the position of the Triborough boomers who wanted to accept the McAdoo offer before they had read it through, much of it being in fine print. Having waited over night they so far revised their opinions that it will be necessary for him to enlarge his proposal if it is to have the support of those who appreciated the difference between the Triborough system and the McAdoo proposal the moment it was pointed out to them. The various officials of the city who are sure that they were committed irretrievably to the Triborough before it was put on paper afford as good examples as could be desired of partisanship on a matter to be submitted to their judicial action.

On the other hand, those whose interests are those of taxpayers and farepayers have offered for their approval the course of the Mayor of the city and the President of Manhattan. They are holding their judgments in suspense until the time for action comes, and no one can say what their action will be until the argument is closed. They are entitled to the support of all who have no other preference between the various plans than whatever the best interests of the city may dictate.

The position of President McAneny now is the easier to maintain because it has been his from the beginning. Those who think to swerve him from his position now would do well to remember that he assumed it even in the heat of the campaign. Not even to be elected would he assume a position so embarrassing now to those who are pleading their pledges as a reason for not altering opinions becoming more indefensible with every day's developments. Before election President McAneny said: "I am not prepared to say in advance of election how I should vote. I reserve my own judgment * * * in order that, in the event of my election, I may vote with more complete knowledge." He declared on Wednesday that he should use his influence, not to adopt any plan whatever as quickly as possible for fear that a better plan may appear to make doubtful the adoption of the inferior plan, but in favor of discreet and orderly procedure with all plans which may appear up to the last moment.

The idea that the clamor of civic organizations and newspaper discussion should settle a matter of such technical difficulty and grave importance to the city's finances and growth would be absurd if it were not so dangerous. No plan whatever deserves the consideration of any official until he has received the dispassionate judgment of competent experts of both engineering and traffic considerations. The half-used bridges and unused subways together comprise an amount of idle capital equal to the asserted cost of the Triborough. The first thing to be done to prevent a rpetition of this sad experience, whose lesson is being wasted, is to secure the advice of broad-minded and dispassionate experts upon what the city should do to bring its existing facilities into the best co-operation with those proposed. Until the contrary is shown, the Triborough, whether operated by Mr. McAdoo or not, will seem to be a subway projected for vengeance and construction profits rather than for the economic development of the city's transit interests.

"THE BODY OF THE CRIME."

Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, who was hanged yesterday in an English prison for the willful murder of his wife, would have been alive to-day and a free man had his crime been committed in this State. According to the New York statute law the prosecution would have had to establish by direct proof the identity of the human remains found under quicklime bricked up in Crippen's cellar.

Indirectly the corpus delicti, or body of the crime, was sufficiently proved in the English trial. A scar was found remarkably like one known to be borne by Belle Elmore Crippen. Clothing, dyed hair, and other articles similar to those possessed by the doctor's wife were discovered in the cellar, while in the remains were traces of a rare poison such as Crippen had purchased shortly before she disappeared. The sex of the body was not established; the evidence was wholly circumstantial. But, according to the common law of England, where such agents as quicklime are used to destroy the evidence of murder, the rule of the corpus delicti may not prevail.

The leading American case is that of Edward H. Ruloff. In 1856, before the present New York statute was enacted, Ruloff was convicted by a jury of the murder of his child, who, together with his wife, had disappeared on the day before Ruloff was seen to cart off a box in his wagon near the shores of a lake in Tompkins County. A heavy weight disappeared from his premises on the same day. Ruloff then ran away. As the wife and child were never seen afterward, it seemed clear to the prosecution and to the jury that the accused had sunk their bodies in the lake. But the Court of Appeals in 1858 reversed the conviction on the ground of lack of direct evidence. Ruloff was later convicted and hanged for a subsequent murder.

This reversal was had at common law. Why, after such a demonstration of its restraining power a later statute should have been passed making the rule of the corpus delicti inflexible is a matter of marvel. Should not the statute be repealed?

MR. TAFT'S TARIFF BOARD.

There is a curious haze of cross purposes and double intentions hanging over the history and future of Mr. Taft's Tariff Board. At the outset it was a logical contrivance for applying the doctrine of duties limited by difference in cost of production, but as such the protectionists would have none of it. They had no notion of applying that doctrine which they intended solely as a device to keep the votes of the Republicans who were in revolt against oppressive duties. So when Mr. Taft asked for the Tariff Board he got it only with very narrow restrictions, which it was supposed would prevent it from doing anything worth attention. Then Mr. Taft brushed aside the restrictions, by skillful manoeuvring got a fair appropriation for the board, and set it to doing real work. Its first report will be ready when Congress meets, and, to make sure that it does not "go the way to dusty death" in the pigeonholes of the Ways and Means Committee, the substance of it will be delivered at a banquet in Chicago on Dec. 3. Meanwhile the elections have gone heavily against the protectionists, the Democrats are inclined to look with suspicion on the Tariff Board, and, after next March, its fate will be very uncertain.

There are two ways of looking at the work of the board. One is the way Mr. Taft seems inclined to act on, as far as he can, that is to do nothing until the board recommends it. The other is to accept all the aid the board can give, but not to refrain from reform merely because the board has not reached conclusions regarding it. There are also two ways of looking at the doctrine of duties based on difference of cost. One was very emphatically advocated by Senator Aldrich in the debates on the Tariff bill. It is that duties must be made high enough to cover any possible difference in cost, with satisfactory profits to the home producer. The other is that the actual duties should promptly be reduced where the best information shows that they more than cover the difference in cost. The former view is that of the extreme protectionist who wants to extend the range of protection. The latter is that of the rational observer who wants to rid the tariff of its worst and most oppressive features. There is no room for doubt as to the attitude of the popular mind in the matter. It was defined in the elections of the 8th, and it will be respected in the action of the next Congress.

It is reported that Mr. Taft, discouraged by the disposition of the Democrats as to the Tariff Board, will try to secure an appropriation of $500,000 to enable the board to continue its work during the next two years. He may get it, but he cannot be sure of keeping it. An appropriation made in this Congress can be repealed, or its use restricted in the next. Whether the Democrats will permit the board to go on with its work will probably depend largely on what that work is found to be when the first report is sent in. If the board is to be used as a hindrance to reduction it will not be kindly regarded by the new House. If it shows that it is really useful in the necessary process of reduction with the least disturbance to business it will undoubtedly be allowed to go on. The one thing the President and his advisers must recognize is that the American people are tired of the exactions of the favored industries, tired of supporting privilege as ruthless and extravagant as those of the Tudors, and are bent on putting these privileges in the way of extinction. In satisfying this desire of the people the Tariff Board can undoubtedly be of service. In an effort to defy and to defeat it the board will be helpless and will only invite its own elimination.

THE KILLING OF THE DEER.

Venison will grace the Thanksgiving board in the homes of many citizens of Western Massachusetts, for the occasion follows a three days' slaughter of the deer after a closed season lasting a dozen years. The deer in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, and parts of other New England States have become fat and greasy citizens. They have made inroads on the crops and orchards Like rabbits in New Zealand, they are growing to be public pests. Game Warden Hatch estimates that on Monday, the first day of the week of shooting, fifty deer were killed within twelve miles of the populous City of Springfield.

The deer, like his congeners the sheep and the goat, seems to seek human neighborhoods rather than take chances among his natural enemies in the wilds. The moose is a much shyer animal, and at the first scent of man will take to his heels and keep on for miles without pausing. Of course, the repeal of the game laws so as to cause a continuous "open season" would soon again make mankind the deer's most dreaded enemy. Meanwhile the farmers of Massachusetts who have posted their premises against the hunters, in some cases over wide areas, are acting shortsightedly. The legal effect of the posting may be to interdict them and their sons as well as outsiders from killing the deer during this brief interregnum, which closes at sundown on Saturday night. At any rate, the law permits the shooting of only one deer per hunter, and there are many more than enough to go around. Next Spring and Summer the dog-in-the-manger agriculturists may find that the animal trespassers are more of a nuisance than the sportsmen can be in this season of housed-in crops.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Suffrage Cousins at Odds. Dr. Anna Shaw, President of the National Woman Suffrage Association, must have been voicing a strong and general, as well as a long and well-concealed, emotion when she protested against the sending of any more good American money over to England for use by the suffragists there. But she also made comparisons between the methods of the leaders in the two countries that can hardly fail to chill, and are likely even to imbitter, future relations with those whom she criticised.

It seems that the eloquent English women who had been coming over here, nominally to report what they were doing for "the cause," and to encourage their American sisters, have really been after the dollar, and have rarely had a word to say in public unless they were paid, and well paid, for speaking. And in this there has been no reciprocity, according to Dr. Shaw. When our suffragists have visited England, their large oratorical powers have been gratuitously exercised and they have met their own expenses, on some occasions going hungry because nobody took the trouble to provide them with luncheon and a cup of tea.

These are serious accusations, and it is not easy to see how those against whom they are made can hereafter be on warmly friendly terms either with Dr. Shaw or with those by whose incitement, permission or acquiescence she divulged these dreadful secrets. The situation thus created is painful and regrettable; it will add another to the sufficiently numerous excuses which the English and the Americans already have for snapping at each other. And, after all, why should Dr. Shaw complain of a phenomenon so familiar? Since time out of mind any European with a cause, and especially with a cause which involved aspirations for liberty or resistance to oppression, has headed for these shores to get sympathy and money. This is not a grievance—it is a compliment, and we must not mitigate it by demanding or expecting reciprocal assistance. Our own causes can take care of themselves.

Incidentally, and so far as the money part of it goes, there is no need to worry. Our promoters and financiers know the way to the door of the British capitalist, and what to do, and how, after they enter therein. They have been there before.

Deceived, but So Easily. To see anything pathetic in the present situation of the people who are now lamenting the results of their confidence in the brothers Burr and their associated exponents of rainbow finance, one must carefully refrain from remembering that these sheared ones are the victims of their own folly and ignorance quite as much as of those who took off their scanty fleeces. Indeed, so "easy" were they, so nearly certain did they take pains to make it that somebody or other was going to get their money away from them, that something of an argument could be constructed in support of an indictment holding them responsible for leading astray the members of the Burr aggregation.

When birds will go into nets as clearly visible as were these to birds with any eyes at all, fowlers are subjected to temptations which they cannot reasonably be expected always to withstand. The newspapers and the magazines have issued innumerable warnings of the risk to be run and the fate to be expected by people who hand over their savings in return for promises of profits impossibly high. Small investments have more than once, of course, brought wealth to those who made them, but almost invariably it has been to investors who realized that they were taking large chances, who had to some extent investigated the enterprises on which, in effect, they made their bet, and who, if luck went against them, endured their loss in silence and with composure.

The Burr patrons were not of these. They were incredibly credulous, and it is a laboriously invited misfortune that has come upon them. Probably most of them think that they lost their money "in Wall Street," and that they have many an eminent companion in misery. That is not so, for the wiles and guiles of Wall Street are not of just this sort, nor are its victims of just this class. "Cats and dogs" are dealt in there, too, but usually they are advertised for what they are with some approach to honesty, and the appeal is not to customers utterly unsophisticated. The purchasers of the Burr stocks are not quite in the position of those who have given real money for "green goods," in that they did not intend to swindle other people, but they wanted and expected to get much without working for it, and they have little right to be surprised at what has happened to them.

Plea for Early Shopping. It is time to begin the annual appeal for early Christmas shopping. To all the usual arguments against the postponement of purchases until the last days of the last week is now added the possibility of another express strike, and if that comes there will be trouble indeed for all the procrastinators.

If the giver of presents thinks only of his own interest and convenience he will none the less heed the pleas of those who consider chiefly the strains and sufferings inflicted by belated buying upon the employés who sell and deliver goods for what is called the holiday trade. Selections made now or soon will be in every way more satisfactory, since they will be from larger and fresher stocks, and with the leisure that permits the exercise of judgment. Moreover, there is often economy in buying betimes, since then the present, chosen with careful regard for the recipient's need or taste, can have other and higher merits than mere costliness.

We have always had an impression or suspicion that the purchasing public was inclined to resent any demand that it subordinate its own concenience to that of those to whom its money goes. It will buy late unless convinced that to do so inflicts loss, trouble, and labor upon itself. As that is undoubtedly true, those who have the welfare of the sales people at heart should emphasize it as much as they can, and in that way attain their end obliquely.

JURORS AND NON-VOTERS.

Are Socialists Never Drawn to Serve on Juries?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have followed with great interest the various expressions of opinion in regard to "jurors and non-voters" as printed in your paper. While I do not care to express my personal opinion on the question, I believe the following will be of interest to your readers:

A friend of mine who is American born, highly intelligent, exceptionally well educated, and neither an Anarchist nor a Socialist, has never voted, although he has had the franchise for almost twenty years. The only reason he gives is his occupation. He is a private music teacher and could not afford to lose his pupils on account of service as juror. This man is by no means "unconcerned in the Government," but takes a very lively interest in it. As a matter of fact he agitated quite strongly for Dix during the last campaign, and prides himself for having induced several voters to change from Stimson to the Democratic candidate.

A few days after the last election this gentleman came to my house and told me that he had found a way to vote from now on without being in danger of serving as juror. When asked how he expected to accomplish it, he stated the following: "I have learned that Socialists are not drawn as jurors, and I shall therefore enroll from now on as a Socialist; of course I shall vote as I please anyhow."

Upon learning this I made inquiries among several acquaintances who are confirmed Socialists and enrolled as such and ascertained that they have never been called upon to do jury duty. One of these men has been a voter for the last ten years, has never failed to vote, holds a responsible position, which, however, would not exempt him from serving as juror; has lived in the same borough practically all the time, and in the same Assembly district for four years and a half, and still was immune from acting as juror. This man told me that he would gladly serve if called upon. In fact, every one of these Socialists stated that they would not shirk their duty if drawn as jurors.

It would be interesting to know (1) Whether Socialists (who enroll as such) are ever drawn for jury duty? (2) If not, why not? and (3) What the non-Socialists can do to lighten their burden (?) in the face of the constantly increasing number of Socialist voters?

INDEPENDENT.

The First Bishop Suffragan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg permission to call your attention to the fact that your statement in last Sunday's edition that Dr. Charles S. Burch, elected by the New York convention, was the first Suffragan elected in the American Episcopal Church, was a mistake. I ask leave to correct this statement.

Before there was any canon law upon the subject, I assume, "The Right Rev. James Kemp, S. T. D., was consecrated Bishop Suffragan to Bishop Claggett in Christ Church, New Brunswick, N. J., on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1814."

"Bishop Claggett assigned to his care that portion of the diocese known as 'The Eastern Shore'—now the Diocese of Easton."

"Upon the death of Bishop Claggett, A. D. 1816, he became [by election] the Bishop of Maryland."

JOSHUA KIMBER.

Richmond Hill, Nov. 22, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Public Service Commission is a department of government in which all thinking people undoubtedly take deep interest, but I feel I am right in the belief that it has so far disappointed a large majority of the citizens of the State. It has not by any means done all the things that should have been done, nor have many of the things that have been accomplished been done in such a way as to procure and insure the best possible results.

The personnel of the commission and the commission's working organization should be made up in some considerable degree of those who have had practical experience and training in the lines of industry with the problems of which they are called upon to deal. Without men of such experience and training the best results cannot be attained, and the people of the State do not receive the service to which they are entitled and for which they are paying so highly.

Hitchcock and Sandstone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Postmaster General Hitchcock was born in Amherst, a small village in Northern Ohio. Native inhabitants contend that their municipality is the centre of the largest sandstone industry of the world, and they are watching with pride the efficient "sand" and "grit" displayed by their former townsman.

THE TARIFF ON STEEL.

Admissions That It Is No Longer Necessary.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the first things that the Democrats, when they get a chance, ought to put on the free list, is steel. The reason is because iron and steel are so vitally necessary to all other manufactures, and a reduction of the tariff on these basic elements would pave the way for a substantial reduction upon numberless other items which spring from them. Thus if the present high duties on iron ore, pig iron, bar iron, steel rails, wire nails, barbed wire, tin plate, &c., were removed, it would permit of a radical reduction on agricultural implements, and on carpenters' tools, cash registers, electric, mining, pumping, and textile machinery, sewing machines, typewriters, locomotives, &c. Then again, these reductions in the cost of commodities would lead to a cheapening of those commodities; we should have cheaper wheat, cheaper clothing, and cheaper transportation as a result of lessening the cost of farming, textile manufacturing, and railroading.

The best authorities in the steel trade have admitted, both by their words and their actions, that protection is no longer necessary. Mr. Carnegie said two years ago that "not a ton of steel is produced in the world at as low an outlay for labor as in our own country." Mr. Schwab, President of the Steel Trust, told Mr. Frick in 1899 that steel rails could be made in Pittsburg for $12 a ton and sold at a profit in England for $16 a ton, where they cost $19 to make. And yet the Steel Trust pretends to need continued protection when the fact is that they are parties to an international agreement giving them 25 per cent. of the world's market in steel rails—this 25 per cent. being based upon the ability of American manufacturers to undersell foreign competitors on this continent. It is the fear of the gigantic power to unsettle the market wielded by our Steel Trust that has driven so many British competitors into the protectionist camp. In a report of the British Iron Trade Commission on American Industrial Conditions and Competition, instances are given where American manufacturers have discriminated against their own countrymen and in favor of the foreigner, to the extent of 50 to 90 per cent.

The only reason for the continuance of the steel tariff is to enable the trust to pay 5 per cent. dividends (and earn 14 per cent.) upon its $500,000,000 of common (watered) stock.

A "BUREAU OF FIREARMS."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The constant reports of hold-ups in this and other cities, especially of automobilists and suburban residents, seem to indicate that the plan advocated by Senator Sullivan of making the carrying of concealed arms a felony is too drastic, and will oblige many a decent citizen to commit a serious crime or render himself helpless against the rough and criminal element.

It would seem to me that a far better plan would be as follows:

There should be established by the State a bureau or bureaus to be known generally as the "Bureau of Firearms." It should be a felony for any person to carry a concealed firearm within the State unless he has first procured a license from this bureau. But here is the point: A license to carry a particular weapon or weapons only should be issued to any applicant on filing with the bureau a statement under oath of his correct name and address and a description by name and number of the weapon or weapons he desires to carry.

The statute should contain a co-ordinate provision making it a felony to sell or give away any firearm generally classed as a pistol without filing within ten days a statement under oath with the Bureau of Firearms, showing to the best of the seller's information and belief the name and address of the purchaser.

These provisions would give some clue to probable offenders where the weapon itself is the sole evidence obtainable, as is so frequently the case.

If this plan were found to work, it might be extended to make it a misdemeanor to own a pistol of any sort without filing a similar description.

Probably the above would be held to be valid police regulations and the troublesome question of constitutionality would be avoided.

I will venture to say that very few individuals in this State would apply for a license to carry a pistol, and the plan would remove from the minds of our numerous hold-up men the certainty that the victim is either entirely defenseless or as much of a felon as the robber himself.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read both the New York and the London accounts of the Crippen case, being interested through the fact that I lived for many years within a few minutes' walk from the house where the crime was committed and also passed the house in July, just after Crippen had disappeared.

I am at a total loss to understand why many people on this side of the Atlantic can be so biased at English court methods. Is it because of the contrast to American methods?

One paper in Chicago published an article to the effect that Crippen could not have chosen a worse country than England in which to commit murder. It is not difficult to read between the lines the real meaning of this remark. If I may give my opinion, allow me to say that if I ever contemplated committing a serious crime I would choose America in preference to England in which to carry out the deed, solely for the fact that the numerous courts of appeal, combined with peculiar methods of construing Blackstone and interpretations of the meaning of the law, would give me a favorable chance of cheating justice and ultimately gaining my freedom.

Will you not, for charity's sake, tell that dear young suffragette who is contemplating going into the smuggling business as a way of protesting against taxation without representation that she is barking up the wrong tree? Under the system of "protection" "the foreigner pays the tax." That is well known. Ask Mr. Payne or Mr. Aldrich. So how can our suffragette evade paying that which she does not pay even when she does pay it? This may sound a bit mixed, but Mr. Lodge will know what I mean. The tariff taxes are paid by the foreigner. Any protectionist can tell you that. And, really, a suffragette ought to have clear ideas on some of the elementary principles before demanding the right to vote! Consider what profound study some Man must have gone through before it was discovered that the foreigner paid the protection taxes! No, bless your suffragette heart, don't smuggle! You will only get into jail for not paying what you wouldn't and couldn't pay anyhow.

THE POOR ALSO GIVE THANKS.

Again we give Thee heartfelt thanks,
dear Lord!
Naught else, save gratitude, can we afford
To offer or to grant. We have not much,
As fortitude, privation to endure!
We thank Thee, Lord, for that we still
are poor!

If we were rich, perhaps, we ne'er had thought
Of giving thanks; perchance we would
kills!
But we are still alive, and gladness fills
Our hearts. In poverty we rest secure!
We thank Thee, Lord, for that we still

INSPECTORS MUST BE POLITE, SAYS GAYNOR

COMPLIMENTS COMMISSIONER

Then Tells the Men to Enforce the Law Strictly, but to be Kind and Courteous to the Public.

Mayor Gaynor addressed the Inspectors of the Tenement House Department in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, yesterday and told them how he expects them to perform their duties. He was lavish also in his praise of the work of Commissioner Murphy.

More than a thousand persons were gathered in the armory outside of the Inspectors and officers of the department when the Mayor arrived at about 11 o'clock. Commissioner Murphy opened the proceedings with a short speech, in which he told of having found the men in the department imbued with a deep sense of duty and impressed with the importance of the law they had to administer.

"Three-quarters of the population of the city live in houses which come under the department's control," said Mr. Murphy. "We share with the Department of Health the credit of keeping the death rate down to the lowest point in years by insisting on sanitary living."

"I am very glad," said the Mayor, "to hear what the Commissioner of the Tenement House Department said. It is very gratifying to me, indeed. I am not altogether certain that many of you men can hear me, but I will try to make myself heard. During the campaign last Fall, when all sorts of complaints were sent to those who were running for office, I received more complaints against the Tenement House Department than against all the other departments put together.

"I say that without wishing to say anything injurious to anybody, but the complaint was that the Tenement House Department was administered in a way that was unnecessarily offensive to the community. The maxim which the Commissioner just uttered, that the effort now is to administer with the maximum of efficiency and the minimum of friction, did not seem, from the complaints which I got, to prevail at that time.

"The complaints continued after I was elected to office—that embraced the months of November and December—until the pile of complaints was beyond anything that you may imagine. If I told you there were several bushels of them you might think it was incredible, but the several could be increased probably to seven without any exaggeration whatever.

"I therefore looked around with great care and without any regard to political machinery or affiliation with any political organization to pick out a man who would do away with that state of things, and I finally settled on Mr. Murphy, your chief, whom I appointed to that office. And I am very glad to testify that whatever mistakes I have made, and I suppose I have made my share of them since I came into office, I made no mistake in that case. I did what was exactly right.

"Now I am going to give you the reverse of what I have already told you. Since the appointment of the present Tenement House Commissioner I have had almost no complaints with regard to this department, and all that I have had I have sent down to the head of the department, which I have not always done with other departments. I very often investigate them in my own way. But the complaints have practically ceased. I do not get one a month, and that one a month when run down as a rule proves to be rather flimsy.

"Now that is a great testimony to the Commissioner. But I want to go further than that, it is a great testimony to you gentlemen who carry out the instructions of the Commissioner, and of the law. He testifies that you all understand that the way for anybody in your position or in any public office to carry out his duties is in a polite and nice way with those you have to deal with.

"You know to be a strict man you do not need to be a rough man and insult people. You can be very strict and be very polite at the same time. And that is the best kind of strictness. So that I am satisfied that while all of you Inspectors are carefully observing the law, taking no bribes, doing nothing by favor, that while you are doing that as strictly as the law requires, you are not doing it more strictly than the law requires so as to make yourselves offensive and obnoxious to the community.

"A man in office, your office or mine, or the Commissioner's, who thinks he is above the law and better than the law is just the worst kind of man to put into office. None of us is any better than the law or above the law. So that while you must carry out the law, the way to do it is in a way not to be offensive and to annoy people and to impose conditions on people you have no right to.

"Now I am sure that the department is being administered strictly, and inasmuch as I am getting no complaints I am positive that it is also being administered by men who have got the spirit that we tried to promulgate at the opening of this administration, namely, the spirit of consideration and politeness to our fellow-citizens. We have no right to turn our backs on anybody. We are paid by the citizens of this city and we owe it to them to be considerate of them and polite to them.

"I am very glad to see the fine appearance which you present. I did not know there were so many of you. You present an appearance I am very glad to see. I thought there would be about as many of you as is in that line over there, and when I came in here and saw the armory half full I thought probably the regiment was here drilling also. There are a great many more of you than I had any notion of. Perhaps too many of you. I do not know, but I would not want to discharge any of you who are necessary and who are doing their duty properly."

DROP IN RATS AND PUFFS.

Two Hundred Thousand Koreans Lop Off Topknots, Glutting Hair Market.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—"Rats, puffs, switches, and other such prevalent devices to reinforce nature may become so cheap as to cease to be a distinguishing mark of the up-to-date woman." This is the comment made by United States Consul E. Carleton Baker at Antung, China, on the fact that 200,000 Koreans "have amputated their topknots since the annexation of Korea by Japan." In consequence of this increased supply of human hair the price has fallen considerably.

Modern fashions' impetus to the false hair business is also remarked upon by Vice Consul D. P. De Young at Amsterdam, Holland, who writes that an order for hair in that city is as promptly and accurately filled as an order for groceries or dry goods. "As styles now run in dressing hair," adds Vice Consul De Young, "even those blessed by nature with an abundance of it must resort to some manner of falsifying. Indeed, the international hair market has never fluctuated more than of late, and the business is passing through one of its most thriving periods."

The value of the products of the manufactures of the City of Providence last year was $120,328,000, a growth of 31 per cent. in the five years.

BEST MAN DRAGGED BY WEDDING COACH

W. S. Armstrong Gets Arm Entangled in Springs of Carriage While Fastening Streamer.

HIS HAND SEVERELY CUT

Accident Follows Marriage of S. Howard Armstrong and Miss Catharine M. Le Boutillier—1,000 See Ceremony.

A thrilling incident occurred yesterday afternoon following the wedding of Miss Catharine M. Le Boutillier to S. Howard Armstrong. While the carriage containing the bride and bridegroom was being driven rapidly away from the Le Boutillier residence, 140 East Thirty-sixth Street, after the reception, William S. Armstrong, a brother of the bridegroom, got his arm entangled in the back springs of the carriage and was dragged half a block before he was released. His hand was severely lacerated and he suffered from bruises and shock.

It was about 5 o'clock when a four-wheeler drove up to the house to take the couple away. The bridal party was ranged on the steps under the awning, and as the bride and bridegroom hurried down to the carriage they were pelted with rice. Several of the ushers, including young Armstrong, who acted as best man at the wedding, followed the carriage up Thirty-sixth Street toward Fifth Avenue. Mr. Armstrong was running behind the carriage and trying to attach a white satin streamer to the springs when he stumbled and fell. The horses were now going almost at a gallop.

His arm in some manner got caught in the springs. As he lost his footing he tried to catch hold with the other hand, but failed. To the consternation of the crowd which had been attracted by the long line of carriages, the young man was dragged along in his wedding clothes and only succeeded in freeing himself as the carriage neared Madison Avenue. His friends, who were running behind, reached him in time to assist him to his feet. Meantime the coachman was driving away, ignoring the efforts of pedestrians to stop the carriage. The bride and bridegroom did not know what had happened.

Mr. Armstrong returned to the Le Boutillier house, where his hand was treated and bandaged.

The wedding of Miss Le Boutillier, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Le Boutillier, to S. Howard Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sinclair Armstrong of 32 East Sixty-first Street, was celebrated at noon at Calvary Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street. The Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks officiated. More than 1,000 guests attended the church ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with old point lace and a tulle veil caught up with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and wore a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by Miss Isabel Hinton as maid of honor, and four bridesmaids, the Misses Mabel Smith, Nancy Burlingham, Frances Thorne, and Maria Duryee. The bridesmaids wore light pink silk gowns veiled with coral-colored chiffon, large black velvet hats with black plumes and lined with pink, and carried bouquets of pink roses.

The ushers were George W. Welsh, George A. Armstrong, Martin Le Boutillier, J. Dayton Voorhees of Philadelphia, C. Ames Brooks of Plainfield, N. J., and Harold C. Smith of Chicago.

About 200 attended the reception at the Le Boutillier residence, which was decorated with greens and white chrysanthemums. A buffet luncheon was served by Delmonico's and a seated luncheon followed for the bridal party. A Hungarian orchestra furnished the music. The guests included many prominent New Yorkers.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. The bridesmaids were the Misses Florence and Mênere Wardwell, sisters of the bride; the Misses Syliva and Cornelia Wilder, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Martin, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Elsie Jennings, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Jennings. These girls were gowned in pink chiffon over pink satin, the two first in deeper pink, and each two following in lighter pink.

Miss Alice Wardwell, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore white chiffon over pink, and all the attendants wore black velvet picture hats trimmed with pink roses, gardenias, and tulle, and all carried pink roses.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a long robe of white satin, the corsage being entirely of old point applique; her tulle veil was bordered with point applique and held in place with orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley.

Mr. Wilder had Robert Brewster as his best man, and the ushers were Wilbur Wilder, Jr., of Auburn, N. Y.; Donald Ryerson of Chicago, G. E. Hugh Greeff, G. Brette Glaenzer, George W. Martin, and W. Montague Geer, Jr., of New York.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Wardwell residence, 53 East Seventy-seventh Street, and as the house is double the size of the usual New York dwelling, there was no crowding. The house was decorated throughout with roses, smilax, and palms.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder received in the yellow drawing room against a background of palms and roses, and Mrs. Wardwell, who assisted in receiving, wore a gray chiffon over gray satin.

A band was concealed behind a screen of palms and flowers in the hallway between the drawing room and the immense library, the latter having American Beauty roses as a decoration to match its red hangings.

At 6 o'clock a table for the bridal party was laid in the drawing room, after the other guests had gone, and dinner was served. Then Mr. and Mrs. Wilder took their leave. The bride's going-away costume was dark blue cloth. She wore Australian 'possum furs and a black beaver hat, with blue wings. Miss Elsie Jennings caught the bridal bouquet.

After their bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilder will live in this city, at 51 East Seventy-eighth Street. Mr. Wilder, who was graduated from West Point, resigned from the army three years ago to go into business in this city.

The guests included Col. W. E. Wilder, U. S. A., the father of the bridegroom, who came from Denver, where he is now stationed, to attend the wedding. Mrs. Wilder, being an invalid, was unable to attend, but the Misses Wilder were among the attendants. Other guests invited were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. J. Alden Weir, Mrs. James Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. "LA GIOCONDA" GIVEN.

Laura Adorno	Louise Homer
Alvise Badoero	Andrea De Segurola
La Cieca	Maria Claessens
Enzo Grimaldo	Enrico Caruso
Barnaba	Pasquale Amato
Zuane	Bernard Begue
Un Cantore	Edoardo Missiano
Isepo	Pietro Audisio

Conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

There are good reasons from the operatic manager's point of view, doubtless, why Ponchielli's sultry melodramatic opera of "La Gioconda" should keep its place in the repertory of the Metropolitan Opera House. They were summed up by the crowded aspect of the house last evening. An opportunity for a quartet of the best singers in the company to display their powers in effective airs and ensemble pieces, brilliant and sonorous choruses, some of the most tuneful and rhythmically stirring ballet music—even though it verges sometimes upon vulgarity—a stage peopled with moving and glittering throngs of gay Venetians, and stage pictures of sumptuous and artistic setting; these are some of the reasons why the opera has been largely in evidence in recent seasons. A final one may be given in that Mr. Caruso finds in it one of his most successful parts.

So "La Gioconda," with its accumulation of horrors in Victor Hugo's most lurid manner, came early into the present operatic season, and was given for the first time last evening. There was a large audience and plenty of enthusiasm over an admirable performance conducted by Mr. Toscanini. It is not an opera that can arouse much sympathetic interest in and of itself because of the unrelieved wickedness that holds sway through its course and the moral obliquity of every one of its characters except that of the old blind mother, who is not so much one of the motive forces of the action as a point around which other forces revolve. But these things count for little in the face of the others previously mentioned.

The performance was in very few respects different from performances of the opera that have been heard in recent years. Mr. Caruso as Enzo, Mme. Destinn as La Gioconda, Mr. Amato as Barnaba, Mr. Segurola as Alvise Badoero, and Mme. Homer as Laura Adorno were the singers in the principal parts, and admirable in them as they have been in past years. The only new participant in the performance was Maria Claessens, who took the part of La Cieca, a newcomer, whose voice is powerful and serviceable, though not of great beauty of quality when it gets beyond the limit of mezzo voce, being of a somewhat reedy tone, hard in its upper ranges. Mme. Claessens knows the routine of the stage, as it seemed, so far as she has independence of action in this part, and presented a sympathetic figure in almost the only character of the opera that can compel sympathy. The chorus acquitted itself honorably, and the ballets, of which much is made in "La Gioconda," were a striking feature of the performance, which was one of superb ensemble effects throughout.

THE OLIVE MEAD QUARTET.

Opening of the Young Ladies' Series of Chamber Concerts.

The Olive Mead Quartet, which has deservedly earned a place for itself among the best chamber music organizations in New York, began its series of three concerts last evening in Mendelssohn Hall. The membership of the organization is the same as it has been in recent years—Miss Olive Mead, Mme. Vera Fonaroff, and the Misses Gladys North and Lillian Littlehales. Their sincerity, ability, and devotion to high ideals in quartet playing are consistently maintained and give results that are delightful to lovers of this form of art.

The programme last evening comprised Haydn's quartet in G major, two movements, the larghetto and scherzo from César Franck's in D minor and Beethoven's in E flat, Opus 74. Excellent finish in ensemble, tonal beauty, and a thoroughly musical and deeply studied treatment of the music they undertook marked their playing.

RUSSIAN ORCHESTRA ARRIVES

The Balalaika Players Use Some Strange Instruments.

The Imperial Russian Balalaika Court Orchestra, twenty-eight strong, arrived yesterday on the White Star Liner Oceanic. The Russian players have been heard recently in the Coliseum, London. According to W. W. Andréeff, the leader, the orchestra had to obtain permission from its Government to visit this country. M. Andréeff has spent much of his life and wealth in rescuing old native instruments from obscurity. He has developed and improved them, and now comes here with his players to create harmonies new, he believes, to America. The orchestra will be heard in Carnegie Hall.

Some of the strange instruments carried are the balalaika and the domra, string instruments; those of reeds, the shepherd's reed and reed pipe. There are also the kettledrum, tambourine, and "wooden spoons" for special effects.

Kathleen Parlow, Violinist, Coming.

Kathleen Parlow, a violinist, is among the passengers of the incoming Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, and will make her American début at Carnegie Hall on Dec. 1 in the Russian Symphony Orchestra. Miss Parlow gave her first recital in London five years ago, and during the same year received a royal command to play before the Queen of England. This Winter she will tour in Canada, where she was born, and in this country as well.

Circus Effect for the Manhattan.

William Hammerstein has planned a sort of 3-ring circus effect for vaudeville at the Manhattan Opera House. He intends to make use of the mechanical facilities of the stage so that two or more "mute" acts can go on at the same time, one above the other and without interfering with each other. "Mute" acts in vaudeville are such as strong men, jugglers, acrobats and some animal acts.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Russ Whytall has been engaged by Henry W. Savage for the company to support Henry Kolker in "The Great Name." Mr. Whytal was last seen in New York as the old musician in "The Climax," and previously as Judge Prentice in "The Witching Hour."

Ernest Lawford, who went to London as a member of the "Decorating Clementine" company will return to New York in January to begin rehearsals with Maude Adams in "Chanteclere." He will play the Blackbird.

Marie Doro will sail for Paris this week to hear a new play, which is to be adapted for her use by Gladys Unger, and in which she is to appear in New York in the Spring.

Beginning next Wednesday, mid-week matinees will be given at the Casino Theatre by Sam Bernard in "He Came from Milwaukee." The one hundredth performance of the play will be observed on Wednesday, Dec. 7.

Paul Armstrong, author of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "Salomy Jane," and other plays, has just completed a one-act play for vaudeville, to be called "The Three Thieves." The characters are a burglar, a blackmailer, and a broker who has yielded to the temptation to embezzle his firm's money. Frank Deshon will play the principal role.

Three newly announced offerings in vaudeville houses are the "Silhouette Girl," a dancer, who will appear at Hammerstein's Victoria; Ende Mollon of the Folies Bergere, Paris, who will appear at the American Music Hall in the playlet, "Ma Gosse," and Gertrude Hoffmann, making a vaudeville farewell at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre in a revised "Revue."

CHANUTE DEAD AT 78; AEROPLANE EXPERT

FIRST TESTS WITH KITES

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Octave Chanute, the "father of the aeroplane," died at his home in Chicago to-day, after an illness of several weeks. His death was not unexpected, as he had been for several weeks in feeble health.

Though widely known as an engineer of many accomplishments, Mr. Chanute was more generally recalled as the originator of heavier-than-air craft. When, several years ago, he began experiments with "horizontal kites," as they were ironically referred to, he was considered eccentric. His persistence in trying out his ideas resulted, however, in the Chanute glider, which was nothing more nor less than the modern biplane without the engine. With it Mr. Chanute was able to glide several hundred yards in a strong wind by manipulation of its wings. An engine mounted in this and given a principle of warping wings for equilibrium, gave the Wrights their machine, and others followed.

Octave Chanute was born in Paris, Feb. 18, 1832, arriving in America with his parents in 1838. He was once Chief Engineer of the Erie Railroad, and had been an officer or honorable member of the British Institute of Civil Engineers, Canadian Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, and the Western Society of Engineers.

His scientific researches into methods for improving railroad service made him one of the distinguished engineers of his day, a plan to preserve railroad ties by soaking them in creosote having been one of his latest contributions to his favorite field of engineering. He was the builder of the Kansas Pacific Railway, the Union Stock Yards of Chicago, and the Missouri River Bridge.

In the field of aeronautics his ideas were only recognized as sane after the Wrights had made their first flights and had acknowledged that it was Chanute's book, "Progress in Flying Machines" published in 1894, which had turned their attention toward the heavier-than-air experiments. The Wrights gave him credit for working out the engineering problems involved in building successful aeroplanes and in blazing the trail toward a practicable machine.

In Europe his prestige as an advocate of correct ideas for building heavier-than-air machines is greater even than it is in this country. While lecturing in Paris just prior to the World's Fair at St. Louis, he showed pictures of the Wrights in flight, and described in detail the mechanics of their craft. Two men who heard the lecture—the Voisin Brothers, who were engineers—tried to build a machine along similar lines, and the Voisin biplane was the result. It flew, but having no "warping" principle to the wings, was powerless to combat any kind of a wind.

Later, when Wilbur Wright visited France and his warping wings were seen in action, a controversy at once sprang up as to whether the French theory of "stable planes," developed from the Chanute pictures, was better than the Wright "unstable theory."

Until feeble health compelled him to abandon the work Mr. Chanute often lectured before the Aeronautic Society in this city on aerial experimentation before the days of actual flying. He described his own experiments as a working away from the Lillienthal type of glider and the evolving of the "bridge truss form" which is the standard for both the Wright and Curtiss types. A. M. Herring, who was associated with Curtiss in bringing out the Curtiss biplane, was a student of Chanute's, who first came into public notice at the St. Louis Fair, where a series of gliding experiments were made under the direction of Mr. Chanute.

Elkins May Be Able to Take Seat.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—United States Senator Elkins may be able to appear in his seat the coming session of Congress, according to a statement relating to his condition given out at his Washington residence to-day. Though Senator Elkins will not attempt to be present at the opening of Congress, his friends expect that he will be able to appear and take up his work after Christmas.

GRACE LA RUE IN 'SIX MONTHS'

Will Appear Under Her Husband's Management in a New Play.

Byron Chandler, husband and manager of Grace La Rue, who has been singing the principal rôle in "Madame Troubadour," announced yesterday that Miss La Rue had canceled her contract for further appearances under the Shubert management and that she would not again appear in "Madame Troubadour" or in "The Barefoot Dancer," for which she had been announced. Mr. Chandler said that Miss La Rue had been dissatisfied with her rôle in "Madame Troubadour" since the play opened in New York.

Her next appearance will be in a new play with music entitled "Six Months," preparations for which are now being made under Mr. Chandler's direction.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull and Most Changes Unimportant — Call Money Rates 2¼@2¾ Per Cent.

KNAPP ADDRESS WELL TAKEN

Money Market Trend Also Favorable —Sharp Drop in Lackawanna and Other Inactive Issues.

The influence of the approaching holiday was manifested in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange not only in the volume of trading, which was much below the previous day's total, but also in the lack in all but a very few cases of any material change in prices as a result of the day's operations. Starting at a level slightly under Tuesday's close the majority of stocks succeeded, despite the apathy which was apparent in the market, to show net gains, but these for the most part were confined to small fractions, and were partially offset by declines in other quarters of the list. As it were by way of contrast with the unimportance of the price variations in the more active issues the final count of the day's operations showed several unusually large declines in inactive issues. Among these was a loss of 55 points in Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, despite the announcement yesterday of the usual extra 10 per cent. dividend and the loss of 10½ points in New York Dock preferred on the sale of a single hundred shares. On the other hand gains exceeding a point were made by General Electric and Canadian Pacific. So far as operations on the Stock Exchange reflected influences other than those of a purely technical nature, they showed satisfaction at the favorable course of affairs in the money market, in which the indications were that the banks are again gaining cash this week, despite the renewal yesterday to the extent of $500,000 of the gold movement to Canada, the receipt of more favorable advices from Mexico, and the favorable impression created by the address delivered on Tuesday night by Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. It is true that some professed disappointment at Mr. Knapp's failure to announce himself as in favor of the proposed increase in freight rates, but it had been clear to all who had given second thought to the matter that no such statement of his attitude on the rate question could be expected from Mr. Knapp at this juncture. The Iron Age, in its weekly review, again discussed the probable volume of forthcoming steel rail orders, but recorded that these orders and those for equipment are coming out slowly.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.
Wednesday.

Arbitraging between New York and Philadelphia in Lehigh Valley stock was a feature of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Two hundred shares sold early in the day at 189½. This is the equivalent of a price of 94¾ in the Philadelphia market, where the stock sells dollars per share. In the New York market it will be traded in on a percentage basis, the same as Reading. Later in the day twenty shares sold at 188¾. An active market in the stock is expected to develop on the exchange. Sales aggregated 46,840 shares, with the list comprising thirty-eight different stocks.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—United States Smelting was the feature in the local market to-day. The common stock was heavily pressed for sale and declined nearly 3 points, to 34, while the preferred sold down to 45¾. The heavy selling was said to have been induced by reports of rioting in Mexico, where a considerable part of this property is located. The balance of the list is generally fractionally lower.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—A noteworthy diminution in the volume of transactions in the local Stock Exchange was about the only feature of the day's dealings and was doubtless due to the Thanksgiving holiday to-morrow and to the contraction in the trading in Wall Street as well.

Union Traction advanced 2 points. Rapid Transit went well above 18. Lehigh Valley moved in a normal manner, while activity subsided, for the time being at least, in Philadelphia Electric, United Gas Improvement, and Storage Battery. The arbitrage issues moved irregularly. Both Reading and United States Steel eased off for a time and then hardened, but in these, as in everything else, there was a noteworthy falling off in volume of transactions.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Railroad Problem Not Political.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, who came here to attend the Railway Business Association's dinner on Tuesday, said yesterday before his return to Chicago that in the last analysis the railroads are in the hands of the public, and that the public should learn not to hurt the goose which lays the golden egg. The railroads, he said, should not be content to leave their lines in the same condition at the end as at the beginning of a year, but it seemed, in view of the conditions now confronting the railroads, that the only way for them to keep on an even keel in the matter of net earnings was to reduce maintenance charges. Referring to the possible effect of the recent election upon the railroad situation, about which he was questioned, Mr. Ripley said that the railroad problem is one of economics and not of politics, and that what the railroads want of the law makers is to be let alone for a time. So far as the freight-rate increases for which the railroads have asked are concerned, he said that even if all the proposed increases are allowed they would be offset by the effects of the ruling of the Inter-State Commerce Commission in the last twelve months.

Chairman Knapp's Speech.

The address made before the Railway Business Association by Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, was favorably commented upon by many railroad men yesterday, and by the Street generally. In view, however, of the fact that rumor had imputed to Mr. Knapp the purpose to declare himself on this occasion in the matter of the proposed freight rate increases, some expressions of disappointment were heard over his failure to commit himself as in favor of granting an increase in rates. Those who had stopped to give a moment's thought to the position in which Mr. Knapp and the other members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission find themselves, felt certain that no announcement regarding his position on the rate question would be made by Mr. Knapp, and these had no reason to be disappointed. The Street would have liked a statement from him that the railroads were entitled to the increases for which they are asking, and it allowed itself to hope for some such announcement, preposterous as the hope seemed to the more sober-minded in the financial community.

Big Drop in Lackawanna.

If the member of the financial community who once said that Delaware, Lackawanna & Western was a mighty good stock to own but a mighty poor stock to sell was on the scene yesterday he doubtless called the attention of his friends to the 55-point decline which occurred in the stock yesterday as proof of his contention. The trading in the stock yesterday amounted to a total of 190 shares of a par value of less than $10,000. The single one-hundred-share lot which sold brought 520, and later two odd lots aggregating ninety shares were sold at 519. The last previous sale of Lackawanna was made at 575 on Oct. 17. Yesterday's drop in this stock is equivalent to a loss of $2,750 on each hundred-share lot of the company's stock, or a total loss if applied to the entire capitalization of $16,652,350. As a matter of fact, Lackawanna on occasion advances as rapidly as it declines on others, and the comment of the contented holders of the stock on such incidents as that of yesterday is that they bought their stock to keep and not to sell. When any one shows anxiety to get the stock it frequently happens that he has as hard a time finding a seller as the seller of yesterday's stock had in finding a buyer.

Equipment and Rail Orders.

The New York Central, it was made known yesterday, has increased its orders for locomotives for delivery this coming year from 120 to 323. These engines will be required for the several lines in the New York Central system, the New York Central itself taking 137, and the balance of the number being divided among the Lake Shore, the Michigan Central, the Big Four, and the other lines in the system. Some further orders for steel rails have been placed, including one for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western for new construction which that road has under way. This road's requirements for next year's renewals have not yet been made known.

EQUITABLE LIFE STOCK AT $300 A SHARE

MORGAN PAID 20 TIMES THAT

$6,000 a Share Was Ryan's Price to the Financier for Control—Nothing Done to Replace Trustees.

Five shares of the stock of the Equitable Life Assurance Society were sold at auction yesterday at $300 a share. The stock was advertised for sale at the regular Wednesday offering of securities at the Real Estate Auction Room in Vesey Street. There have been no transactions in the stock since J. P. Morgan took over Thomas F. Ryan's controlling interest a year ago, at a valuation of close to $6,000 a share. Naturally the price of a few shares of the stock was not compared seriously with the average price of shares in the purchase of control of such an institution.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society is capitalized at $100,000, and the stock bears 7 per cent. interest. The price has never in recent years borne any relation to its investment value, and although control has always rested with the majority of the shares sold by James Hazen Hyde to Thomas F. Ryan in the midst of the insurance war of 1905, the shares have sold in small lots at about $2,000 or a little over at various times since.

Paul Morton, President of the company, paid $2,000 a share for the five shares which he purchased in order to qualify as a Director when he went into office. J. P. Morgan paid about $3,000,000, it has always been understood, for the 502 shares, constituting the majority which he purchased from Thomas F. Ryan. Mr. Ryan had in his turn paid $2,500,000 for the stock. He had previously offered to sell it to the Equitable Society itself for the original cost, plus 4 per cent. interest, and it was generally stated that Mr. Morgan took it over on these terms.

Yesterday's offering of five shares was understood in the auction room to have been made by a Stock Exchange house, but the identity of seller and purchaser could not be established.

At the time of the transfer of the control to J. P. Morgan the two surviving Trustees, ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien and George Westinghouse, still had nearly a year to serve of their five-year term. Mr. Morgan was then in Europe, but it was generally believed by his associates that as soon as he returned he would perfect a plan for trusteeing the stock or mutualizing the company.

No Trustees have ever been elected to succeed Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Westinghouse. At the meeting of the company on Dec. 7 it would have been the duty of the Trustees, were they still in office, to nominate Directors.

WOULD KEEP THEIR STOCKS.

Equitable and Mutual Companies to Ask for Insurance Law Repeal.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, it was learned yesterday, has decided to address an appeal to the New York State Legislature for the repeal of the clause in the Armstrong Insurance law which calls for the sale by Dec. 31, 1911, of all the stocks held by the life insurance companies in this State. A similar memorial is to be addressed to the Legislature by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, whose purpose to request the repeal of this clause of the law was made known some weeks ago.

The attitude of the insurance companies in this matter is that the forced sale of their stockholdings will almost necessarily result in a very considerable financial sacrifice, which they wish to avoid. The Mutual Life, in its appeal to the Legislature, points out that whatever ground may have existed for the fear that the right of insurance companies to invest in stocks would lead to abuses there is now no reason for entertaining this fear. It urges, therefore, that the Legislature by repealing this clause of the law leave the way open to the retention of stockholdings, which have in the past proved very profitable to the life insurance companies, but which cannot be sold except at a disadvantage, so long as the law compelling the sale before a fixed date remains in force.

To Reorganize Soda Fountain Co.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—A reorganization of the America Soda Fountain Company has been decided upon, according to a statement made to-day at the head offices of the corporation in this city. Isaac F. North, Treasurer and General Manager of the company, said that a plan of reorganization will be taken up at a special meeting of stockholders to be called at a later date. Reorganization was necessary, he said, to enable the company to pay dividends from future earnings.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The market was extremely nervous during yesterday's session, with Argentine advices dominating influence. The power of the bull party was also respected, however, and as a result there was but little pressure, with a general tendency to ignore bearish news factors. Prices started at substantial declines, reflecting disappointment over Liverpool advices, which market utterly failed to respond to our advance on Tuesday. It was said that liquidation abroad was quite heavy, owing to prospects of rains in Southern Argentine, and that the foreigners were also influenced by the weakness in the Buenos Ayres market, which tended to reflect less apprehension over conditions in Argentine. The decline, however, was only temporary, and, as Western bull interests were buying, shorts became nervous and covered rather freely. The advance in values was in the face of discouraging flour advices from the Northwest, more liberal receipts there, and with the cash demand slack. The overshadowing influence seemed to be the batch of private Argentine advices received, some of which were sensationally bullish. An estimate relative to the exportable surplus of that country was given at 60,000,000 bushels, while another guess received by The Northwestern Miller from its correspondent was for 84,000,000 bushels, which attracted a great deal of attention. Broomhall stated that the wheat through the southeastern part of Argentine was practically lost beyond repair, but this assertion was followed by criticism, especially from the bears, who claimed that the report was indefinite. It is evident, however, that more or less damage has occurred, as there were many insistent reports received no less bullish. It also continues dry through the American Winter wheat belt, with little indication of moisture over the holiday, and, while apprehension is not yet at a high pitch, the rains would undoubtedly be beneficial. The close of the market was near the high point of the session, representing gains of nearly 1 cent a bushel, but there are still many traders who are skeptical toward following the advance, fearing bull liquidation, and who refuse to lose sight of the large stocks the world over. Export business was rather quiet, although there was good demand reported for Manitoba wheat. Sales were given at 96,000 bushels. Cash No. 2 red Winter quoted at 98c, elevator, and also 98c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.03¼; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.18¾; No. 1 Northern, $1.06.

CORN.—Following pressure at the outset, the result of commission house selling, which reflected good weather in the belt, and free offerings from the country, the corn market developed a decidedly firm undertone. The bearish news was ignored, as influential interests were buying heavily, and conservative operators were also disposed to cover shorts, owing to the knowledge that the technical position was very firm. A rumor to the effect that the French import duty was going to be abolished had some effect, although upon careful investigation it was shown that exports to that country have never exceeded more than 10,000,000 bushels for any one year during the last five years. Cash markets continue heavy, which had some effect late, but offerings were well absorbed, with the market helped by export business. This amounted to 176,000 bushels of No. 2 corn. Cash No. 2, afloat for export, free on board, quoted at 52½c.

OATS.—The market was easier at the outset with other grain, but on short covering and reports of an improved cash situation a firmer tone developed. While there were predictions of freer receipts, shorts were also disposed to take profits in this market, with the close firm. Cash standard quoted at 37½c; No. 2 white, 38c; No. 3 white, 37c.

PROVISIONS.—An irregular tendency prevailed during the day, with steadiness displayed in the initial trading on lighter receipts than expected, and on a better live-hog situation. Offerings increased, however, on the bulge, with considerable selling credited to packers, and with best support coming from shorts.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Good advances were recorded in the oil market during yesterday's session, with a great deal of stuff taken by commission houses. Speculative buying was heavy, a part of which was credited to Southern interests, while the demand was supplied on a scale up by recent purchasers who were disposed to take profits. There was no important news at hand accounting for the advance, and it seemed to be the general opinion that the market had been quite thoroughly sold out, while the technical position was undoubtedly improved. There is still a long interest existing, but it is evidently more concentrated and a short interest seems to have accumulated as prices declined. Crude oil was slightly firmer, and the modified crop ideas coming to hand seems to have induced cautiousness on the part of bears, although these interests still maintain that the consuming demand is too quiet to permit of a sustained advance. COTTON.

There was little animation displayed in the cotton market during yesterday's session when a comparison is made with trading of the preceding day. The undertone, however, continued firm with realizing sales readily absorbed and a disposition shown by operators to even up over the holiday. A slight decline was registered at the opening on Liverpool advices, which were not quite up to expectations, with quite a little selling by local operators prompted by reports stating that the South was offering more freely abroad. Spot concerns were also liquidating in a small way, but these sales were gradually absorbed by large commission houses, with bull interests buying both here and in the New Orleans market. There were persistent rumors to the effect that a large slumbering short interest was becoming nervous, and that the undertone of the market would be kept firm until these people were forced to cover. When prices advanced through the previous high records for the movement there was quite active covering on the part of ring traders, who were hammering values early, but selling by longs on the scale up checked the advance. Further crop guesses were received and there is a general disposition on the part of Southern interests to modify their early figures toward a lower basis. The average guess of over 170 members of the Cotton Exchange was for a probable crop of 11,927,000 bales, which was just about in line with the prediction of Southern Exchanges. Trade conditions are very much mixed, and while Manchester continues to report encouragingly, German and Spanish centres were less optimistic, stating that the advance had restricted buying by spinners. At home advices are also contradictory, and while curtailment talk is heard in parts of the South, other centres send word of different mills reopening. Receipts continue in liberal volume, but little pressure is being evinced. What hedging is being done has caused but small declines, and it is this absorbing power which tends to make many interests bullish, although there is a belief already forming that the next important impetus to prices will be received from th Government report. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ⅛ advance, with New York spot cotton quiet, 5 advance from the previous close. Middling uplands, 14.85, and Gulf 15.10.

The volume of trading was the largest for many months, amounting to 201,500 bags. Late advices were reassuring, and the market closed steady at sharp advance, net unchanged to 10 points lower. THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Money was dear and scarce and discount rates were harder to-day.

The stock market was generally quiet. Politics check speculation, but good investment buying is progressing in Indian and foreign securities. Reports of riots depressed Mexican shares, and fears of gold exports caused a loss of a quarter of a point in Consols.

American securities opened steady and advanced a fraction on light support during the forenoon. The market was without feature in the afternoon. Wall Street only sent a few orders, and the closing was dull.

Bar silver steady at 25 9-16d per ounce. Money, 4¾@5 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4⅞ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 4 7-16@4½ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

At closing, 3 per cent. rentes were 97 francs 27½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Prices generally were weaker on the Boerse to-day. A few shares showed advances.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Commenting on conditions in the trade, The Iron Age says:

Current developments in the iron trade are of small importance and little change is looked for in the remainder of the year. In pig iron production there is a slight falling off, but even so, stocks are still increasing. The United States Steel Corporation has made a further reduction in active blast furnace capacity to prevent holiday accumulations.

In addition to rail orders already announced, the Lackawanna recently bought 9,400 tons for new work, the order being divided between two mills. Its requirements for replacements have not yet been made up. The Lehigh Valley has placed 3,400 tons, but its total purchases for 1911 are expected to be 20,000 tons. The Pennsylvania and New York Central orders, which together are put at 240,000 tons, are delayed by changes in specifications which have already had consideration at a meeting of rail company Presidents.

Some of the railroads are figuring on bridge work, but car orders are coming out slowly. Chicago finds some indications of a more liberal buying policy by railroad car and repair shops.

The leading fabricating interest has five months' work ahead, and there is little better prospect in structural lines.

Pig iron markets are quieter, though Chicago reports some fair sales, in which Southern furnaces have shared to a greater extent than for some time. The Southern situation is weaker, though the principal interests there still hold aloof, their $11.50 basis being below the competitive level fixed by Northern furnaces.

SHULTS HORSES GO AT TOP PRICES

Prices took a big bound upward at Madison Square Garden yesterday in the third day's session of the Fasig-Tipton Old Glory horse sale. The best figure of the two previous days was more than doubled twice and several prices were recorded far in advance of those given before. The horses put on sale were far superior, and the crowd was much larger than at either of the previous days' sales. The record price so far recorded is $4,000 for Morgan Axworthy, paid by Senator J. W. Bailey of Texas. Prices will undoubtedly take another jump to-day, which is likely to be the biggest of the sale. Principal interest centers in the sale of The Bondsman, but there are several other notable performers to go under the hammer, the list for to-day including Alice Roosevelt, Silent Brigade, and others almost as well known.

A total of 137 head were sold yesterday for an aggregate price of $72,260, or about $1,100 more than was taken in on the two preceding days. The average price yesterday was $527, which is far ahead of the two previous figures. Up to date a total of 395 head have been disposed of, and the total receipts are $143,425, an average of $363 per head for the three days. The high average yesterday was due to the consignment from the Shults farm at Port Chester, N. Y., which was regarded by close followers of the Old Glory Sale as one of the finest ever turned over for auction. The evening sales did not show above the ordinary.

Prominent horsemen at the sale were William Russell Allen of Pittsfield, Mass., President of the Trotting Register Association; Capt. David Shaw of Cleveland, Ohio, the leading money winning owner of the year; A. C. Pennock of England, manager of the Winans estate horses; Frank Caton, a well-known trotting driver of Russia; Ben White of East Aurora, N. Y., driver and owner of Ess H. K.; E. H. Knox of East Aurora, Fred Hyde of Hartford, Conn.; Vance Knuckles of Hartford, Conn.; Worth Ballow of Washington Court House, Ohio, driver of Major Mallow, champion half-mile pacer of the world; Ben Walker of Boston, Dan Kane of Cleveland, Ohio; W. Payne of Syracuse, N. Y.; James Benyon of Memphis, Tenn., the youngest trotting driver in this country; Gen. C. C. Watts of Charleston, West Va., and F. H. Youngs of Tusla, Okla., a noted Western breeder.

During the afternoon the consignment of John H. Shults, the noted horse breeder of Port Chester, N. Y., was placed on sale. The consignment consisted of sixty-one head and was practically a dispersal sale, as Mr. Shults has announced his retirement from the breeding ranks. Mr. Shults has been a prominent figure in the horse business for years, and he built up a stock farm which ranked second to none for the quality of its product. This sale brought out a crowd even larger than that which had attended the sale on Tuesday. Mr. Shults himself was present early.

Almost forty head had been disposed of before the Shults consignment was reached, but the highest price was only $775, paid for Lou Bingen. As soon as the Shults horses were put on sale prices began to boom and the bidding became very spirited. Prominent among the bidders was Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, and he succeeded in getting the best of the fine stock for his Fairland Stock Farm at Lexington, Ky. Seven horses were bid in for this farm for a total of $12,000.

Sixty-one horses, consigned from the Port Chester Farm, were sold during the afternoon and they brought a total of $45,015, an average of $738 per head. The top price of the day was $4,000, paid by Senator Bailey for Morgan Axworthy, the three-year-old bay colt by Axworthy and Kinglyne. This trotter was sold twice during the afternoon. When offered first the colt was bid in by F. H. Jackson of Narbeth, Penn., for $4,100. Senator Bailey was a strong bidder and his figure of $4,000 was bettered by Mr. Jackson. A minute later it became known that Mr. Jackson had bid the colt in on what he supposed was the advice of a friend, who apparently desired to own the colt. The bidder did not care to buy and neither did the friend, and it was decided to again offer the colt for sale. Senator Bailey then succeeded in winning out at the same bid he had made previously, $4,000.

There were several sales among the Shults consignment of $1,000 or more. The surprise of the afternoon was in the low price at which Prince McKinney, the black stallion, by McKinney and Extasy, was bid in. Mr. Shults paid $6,000 for the stallion only two years ago, and although he is now only six years old and of excellent breeding, he brought only $1,750. Senator Bailey also bid this horse in. The best sales yesterday were:

OPPOSE INDO-EUROPEAN ROAD

MOSCOW, Nov. 23.—A conference of Moscow industrial and financial leaders to-day pronounced against the proposed Indo-European railroad on the ground that the advantages to be gained by such a line would not compensate for the loss through foreign competition to Russian trade in Persia.

According to the Transcaspian plan the Russian and Indian lines would be connected through the financing of an international company in which Russia, Great Britain and Persia had a predominant interest.

The conference is considered of such importance financially and politically that the decision reached probably will be a death blow to the enterprise.

MANHATTAN TRANSIT.

No Stockholders' Meeting Since 1907—Information Scanty.

Stockholders of the Manhattan Transit Company, once a favorite speculative tip among politicians with a taste for "fliers" in cheap stocks, have been having difficulties in the last two years to obtain information about the concern's standing. The annual meeting was set for Nov. 15, but has been twice adjourned, this time until Dec. 15.

When the stockholders convened on Tuesday, hoping that the meeting would be called, a motion to read the minutes of the last annual meeting brought out the admission that there had been no meeting and regular election of Directors since Nov. 22, 1907. The adjournment was taken for lack of a quorum, the by-laws providing that 250,000 shares of the company's $20 par stock constitute a quorum. The authorized capitalization is $10,000,000, but there is some disagreement as to how much is outstanding.

The Manhattan Transit Company is the successor of the old General Carriage Company, the stock of which was once cornered. The last time interest was general in the fortunes of the company was when a decision was handed down by the courts five years ago giving the Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company, one of its subsidiaries, the right to enter the conduits used by the established electric companies. The shares then sold up around 8 on a temporary boom. They now appear on the Curb occasionally at 1¼.

GENERAL MOTORS CHANGES.

Five New Directors and J. J. Storrow Becomes President.

The General Motors Company, which recently made sweeping changes in its directorate following the successful floatation of a $15,000,000 note issue, elected five new Directors yesterday to succeed men who were put in the board temporarily last week. The new men are E. W. Clark, M. J. Murphy, Thomas Neal, and A. H. Green, Jr., all of Detroit, and J. N. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company.

Following the completion of the board the Directors elected J. J. Storrow President and W. C. Durant and W. J. Mead Vice Presidents. C. P. Hathaway was reelected Secretary and Treasurer. An Executive Committee was elected consisting of W. C. Durant, E. W. Clark, M. J. Murphy, Thomas Neal, A. H. Green, J. J. Storrow, and Albert Strauss.

Agricultural Trust Stock Sale.

Announcement was made yesterday that the International Agricultural Corporation had sold to the banking house of White, Weld & Co. and their associates, 54,000 shares in voting trust certificates of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. The company, besides its chemical fertilizer plants and phosphate properties in this country, has a large ownership in German potash mines. The proceeds of the sale of stock, which represents $5,400,000 in par value, will be used on account of payment for properties, for improvements, and for working capital.

CAN PAY ONLY 15 PER CENT.

Ennis & Stoppani Cannot Meet the Notes They Gave to Their Creditors.

The creditors of the former Consolidated Exchange firm of Ennis & Stoppani, who since their failure have been refused reinstatement on the Exchange, are not likely to receive more for their claims than the 15 per cent., which was paid them in cash several months ago, according to a statement made yesterday by a representative of Lindsay Russell, receiver for the firm.

When the settlement was effected upon the basis of 15 per cent. in cash and the balance in notes, extending over a period of eighteen months, the members of the firm counted upon being reinstated on the Consolidated Exchange, and hoped through the resumpton of their exchange business to be able to pay the notes as they fell due.

The 15 per cent. cash payment called for the distribution among the creditors of $220,000, and the funds in the hands of the Receiver at that time fell short by about $30,000 of this amount. The members of the firm borrowed enough money to make up this difference, and in addition they gave their notes for the balance, amounting to about $1,500,000. This amount, if the view of the firm's affairs held by Mr. Russell is borne out, will represent the amount of the loss incurred by the creditors of the firm.

CHILDS UP TO 10 PER CENT.

Common Stock of the Restaurant Company Now on That Dividend Basis.

The Childs Company which operates a chain of "white-tile" restaurants in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, Baltimore and other cities has placed its common stock on a 10 per cent. basis by the declaration yesterday of a dividend of 2½ per cent. for the quarter.

The company is capitalized at $6,000,000 of which half is common and one-half 7 per cent cumulative preferred. Last year the company's gross profits were $584,417.

Investment buying of new apartment houses on the upper west side was the feature of the realty market yesterday. Louise C. Livingston of Bar Harbor was the buyer of the Bellerose, a five-story building at 706 and 708 West 179th Street, on plot 50 by 92.6, between Broadway and Fort Washington Avenue. It is one of three similar structures erected in that locality by Harry Goodstein and finished a few months ago. The others are the Hargood and the Colonial, and all are fully rented. The sale of the Bellerose was made for Mr. Goodstein by W. D. Morgan and J. Romaine Brown & Co. On the northeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street, is the plot purchased some time ago for the new Holyrood Church, which has just sold its present site at Broadway and 181st Street.

A little further south in the Harlem district the Kane Construction Company, Patrick J. Kane, President, sold to John Kaiser, an investor, two six-story apartment houses on the south side of 142d Street, 225 feet east of Lenox Avenue, on plot 75 by 99.11. The houses were completed about a year ago.

He is understood to be acting for the same interests which have acquired 210 and 214. The entire plot measures 82 by 98.9, and is located 84.6 feet west of Seventh Avenue.

THREE YEARS AGO—A BARREN STRETCH OF BREEZE-SWEPT SAND.
TO-DAY—THE SEASIDE CAPITAL OF GOTHAM'S MILLIONS.

Look through any newspaper and study the various investment opportunities offered in the real-estate advertisements. Investigate them. Run them down. In not one case will you find anything which can actually compare with the remarkable real-estate opportunity offered the shrewd investor at Long Beach.

This is not an idle statement, but an actual fact. Right now there are 42 residences under construction.

All the world has been watching LONG BEACH'S marvelous growth and its remarkable development from a ten-mile barren stretch of beach three years ago to an Ocean City beautiful, destined to be the Seaside Capital of America. Its miraculous transformation has aroused widespread wonder and intense interest.

LONG BEACH to-day offers the cautious investor the golden opportunity of his lifetime.

LONG BEACH possesses the finest, cleanest beach on the Atlantic Seaboard. On the authority of the Weather Bureau, it is the coolest spot on the coast from Nantucket to Florida in the summer, and ten degrees warmer than New York City in the winter. It is only twenty-four miles from Manhattan, reached in forty minutes from Herald Square by third rail electric trains, the last remaining ocean frontage accessible to New York City. It is controlled by one Company, carrying out one idea, and with plenty of capital to do it right. It is directed by men of energy and experience who have never failed in their undertakings.

LONG BEACH is indeed a second Atlantic City in the making, although on a larger, cleaner and more magnificent scale. The history of Atlantic City's 800 per cent. increase in realty values will be duplicated, probably more than duplicated, at LONG BEACH.

LONG BEACH has no competitor, it has a monopoly of New York's last available ocean frontage.

The demand for ocean frontage is greater at this time than the demand for any other kind of real-estate, but the supply of it can never be increased, assuring enormous profits to the early buyer.

See LONG BEACH with your eyes open. Take the easy trip down and investigate for yourself what a marvelous development is going on. If you choose, we will provide you with free transportation, and will place at your disposal every facility at our command to help you to investigate on the ground and judge for yourself concerning the opportunity at Long Beach.

HOLDS WHOLE TOWN AT BAY.

After Killing One and Wounding Two, Saloon Keeper Barricades Himself.

NEWCASTLE, Col., Nov. 23.—William Griffith, a saloon keeper, enraged at his conviction for assault, ran amuck on the streets here this evening, shot and killed one man and badly wounded two others.

William Davis, a bystander, is the man killed, and City Marshal Remmix, one of those wounded. Philip Carpenter, a pioneer of the town, who was passing along the street at the time of the shooting, was shot in the neck, and will die.

Griffith was convicted in the district court at Glenwood Springs yesterday on a charge of assault, the complainant being J. T. Sample. Pending an appeal, Griffith was released on bond. He returned to Newcastle, and Sample was the first person he saw after alighting from the car. He immediately opened fire on Sample, who fled with Griffith in pursuit. Marshal Remmix, who tried to intercept the prisoner, was shot down, after which Griffith fired into a crowd of spectators.

Griffith then fled to the bank block. The Sheriff has been summoned from Glenwood and is hurrying to the scene with a posse. Griffith is barricaded in a room and is shooting through a window at all who approach.

CHAUFFEURS DRIFT BACK.

Many Return to Old Jobs, Though Leaders Declare Strike Will Continue.

Though the striking chauffeurs are still standing firm for the closed shop, according to their leaders, at the garage of the Mason-Seaman Cab Company it was reported yesterday that fifteen more of the strikers had returned to work in its West Fiftieth Street garage, and it had so many strike breakers that it would soon need no more men.

The police returns showed that thirty-four strikers had returned to work up to noon yesterday at the garage of the different companies, and all reported doing more business. The New York Taxicab Company was running its machines with returned strikers alone, and up to noon yesterday had 104 of its old men at work.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duty on Olive Oil in Tins Is Settled at the Higher Rates.

The Acker, Merrall & Condit Company and other importers met with defeat yesterday when the Board of United States General Appraisers handed down a decision involving the rate of duty applicable to olive oil in tins. The question at issue was whether duty at the rate of 50 cents a gallon or at 40 cents a gallon should have been assessed on olive oil in tins under Paragraph 38 of the Tariff act of 1909.

The cases were submitted for decision under the following stipulation:

"It is conceded by the Government that the aggregate contents of each outer case containing the oil contents of such case equals or exceeds five gallons. It is conceded by counsel for the importers that the contents of each individual tin are not more than one gallon." General Appraiser McClelland, who writes the decision for the board, makes reference to the La Manna case which, however, he does not hold controlling in the case at bar.

"It was held in the La Manna case," says the General Appraiser, "that olive oil in five-gallon tins was subject to duty at only 40 cents per gallon, but in this case the tins containing the oil are only of one-gallon capacity. The claim for duty at the rate of 40 cents per gallon is based upon the theory that because five tins are packed together in a case, the aggregate of the tins should be made the basis of the assessment of duty. This claim, we think, is untenable and the protests are overruled."

VAIL NEW PRESIDENT OF WESTERN UNION

Col. Clowry Retires from Office, but Will Continue as a Director.

FIFTY YEARS IN SERVICE

New Executive as Head of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Did Much to Build Up Its Business.

After more than fifty years' service for the Western Union Telegraph Company and its predecessors Robert C. Clowry retired yesterday from the Presidency of that company. He was succeeded by Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which early this year acquired control of the Western Union.

The election of Mr. Vail emphasizes the dominant position he is assuming in the telegraph and telephone field in this country and is particularly interesting at this time in view of the reports of his activities toward strengthening the Western Union's relations with foreign companies.

Col. Clowry's retirement fulfills a desire he expressed when the control of the company passed early this year to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Besides electing a new President, the Directors named Newcomb Carlton, Vice President of the British Westinghouse Company, a Vice President of the Western Union to fill the place until recently held by George J. Gould. Mr. Carlton will be in charge of the engineering and construction work of the company.

The Western Union Telegraph Company, of which Mr. Vail assumes personal direction, operates 24,000 offices in the United States, exclusive of more than 25,000 stations with which the company is in communication by telephone or telegraph, a total of about 50,000 places reached by the company. The company controls seven cables, bringing this country into direct communication with all points in Europe, Cuba, and Central and South America. Besides these the Western Union connects at San Francisco with the Pacific cable line to the Far East and at Seattle with lines into Alaska. The foreign lines with which it works in close alliance extend to all parts of the world. This vast system is now under the direction of the man who also is at the head of the vast Bell telephone system, reaching all over the United States.

The Western Union Telegraph Company last year transmitted more than 68,000,000 messages, while the American Telephone and Telegraph Company handled 5,956,800,000. The lines of the telegraph company include 1,382,509 miles of wire and those of the telephone company 8,098,679 miles, a total of close to 9,500,000 miles under single control. The combined capitalization of the companies is almost $700,000,000 and their gross earnings last year exceeded $170,000,000.

Col. Clowry will remain a Director and a member of the Executive Committee, his withdrawal from the Presidency being explained in the correspondence which passed between him and Mr. Vail as due to his desire for rest. A similar explanation was made to the officers and employes. Col. Clowry was brevetted Lieutenant Colonel by President Johnson in 1865 for meritorious service as Superintendent of the Southwestern telegraph lines during the civil war. He had begun his apprenticeship as a telegrapher with the Illinois & Missouri Telegraph Company in 1852, and became manager of one of that company's offices. When he was 21 he was Superintendent of the St. Louis & Missouri River Telegraph Company. After the war Col. Clowry rose rapidly in the Western Union Telegraph Company, holding one official post after another until in 1902 he was promoted to the Presidency.

Mr. Vail, the new President, inherited his interest in telegraphy from his father, who was a friend of Morse. Alfred Vail, an uncle, was the partner of Morse who received the first message sent over the first telegraph line. This uncle invented many accessories which made the Morse telegraph system practical. Educated for a career as a doctor, Theodore N. Vail chose to become a telegrapher and his first work was done at Morristown, N. J., near the home of his parents. Later he became a telegrapher on the Union Pacific and from that road he entered the Government service and became general superindent of the railway mail service.

In 1878 Vail entered the telephone field and did for the Bell invention much the same work his uncle had done forty years earlier for the Morse invention. It was by this road he traveled to the Presidency of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, retiring from active service only to be recalled by the stockholders about four years ago, to reassume his post as President. Now as head of both the American Telephone and Telegraph and Western Union Telegraph Companies Mr. Vail is mapping out a still broader field of work. The financial district credits Mr. Vail with the purpose of developing the Western Union Telegraph system in the same aggressive manner in which the American Telephone and Telegraph has extended its system. Wall Street is disposed therefore to attribute a good deal of significance to his assumption of the Presidency of both companies.

PRINZ JOACHIM TRIP LIVELY.

Passengers See Man Overboard Rescue, Schooner Assisted, and Taft at Colon.

The Hamburg-American liner Prinz Joachim, returning to this port from her fifty-one-day tour of the West Indies, has had an interesting time, according to wireless messages received yesterday in the offices of the line. Soon after leaving Fortune Island on the night of Nov. 9 Emil Volta, a seaman, fell overboard while fixing a deck awning. An acetylene gas buoy was thrown to him, and the passengers saw the man swim to it. A boat was lowered, and in less than eleven minutes Volta was back on board.

A few hours later the Prinz Joachim fell in with the schooner Cornwell flying signals of distress. Capt. Clark, her skipper, said that he had been seven weeks trying to go from Nassau to Inagua. The Captain asked for provisions and water, and these were given.

The Prinz Joachim reached Colon at the same time as the American squadron with President Taft on board. The steamer took part in the parade of steamers in his honor. A great electric sign "Welcome Taft" made up of more than 2,000 lights made of her the best-decorated merchant ship in port.

SUFFRAGISTS SERVING LUNCH

The Political Equality Association has opened a branch at 140 East Thirty-fourth Street, to be known as the Fourteenth Assembly District Club of the Political Equality Association, for the purpose of extending its work for woman suffrage in the district.

It is intended to use the clubroom from 11:30 to 2 o'clock each day as a luncheon room for both men and women employed in the district.

Supplies are expected from tradesmen whose names are to be displayed in the rooms of the club as an advertisement in return.

Three Girls Successfully Defeat a Gang of Telephone Pole Workmen.

"Please, nice obliging gentlemen, come within arm's reach of one of us so that we may run you through with these nice long hatpins," requested Ida Levine of 211 Thatford Avenue, Brownsville, Brooklyn, yesterday, smilingly as she stood beside a four-foot hole in front of her home, flanked on either side by one of her equally determined looking sisters, Bessie and Annie.

Before them stood seven workmen of the New York Telephone Company. They wanted to plant a big wooden pole. The girls invited them to "come on and plant it," but the workmen made no effort to plant it, and they also, ungallantly perhaps, failed to comply with the young woman's pleasant request to "please step up and be run through."

"Please let me stab you just once," came a further request, and suddenly starting forward, the girl made a movement which caused the most belligerent of the workmen to leap backward. The workmen threatened, protested, and then pleaded. They also called on the police of the Brownsville Station for aid in erecting the pole, but the girls and their neighbors stood firm, and not a pole had been planted along the block up to a late hour last night.

WANTS TO SELL ITS HOSPITAL

The New York Society for the Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled applied to Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday for permission to sell its property at Forty-secnd Street and Lexington Avenue for $1,350,000 to the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, representing the New York Central. Part of the property would have to be condemned for the terminal improvement now under way, and the offer to buy the entire area and building is an alternative which the hospital authorities desire to accept.

Vice President S. Sidney Smith explained that with the proceeds of the proposed sale the society hoped to build a new main building in the city and a country annex for convalescent patients.

MUST PROTECT PASSENGERS.

Legal Principle Laid Down by Court in Case of Assault on a Train.

In granting a new trial in the case of Charles Wachser against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, Justice Page, in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, handed down an opinion yesterday which holds that common carriers have a duty to protect passengers from injury by those of their fellows who may be drunken or violent.

"I cannot assent to the doctrine that decent law-abiding passengers are compelled to flee from drunken or disorderly passengers or be deemed guilty of contributory negligence," he said.

Wachser had the misfortune to take a seat in an elevated train opposite a large and intoxicated person who said unpleasant things to him, kicked him, and finally knocked him down, during which ordeal the conductor paid no attention to his repeated appeals for protection. The Municipal Court Justice, in dismissing the case, held that "it was the duty of the passenger to use care and sense and not voluntarily place himself in a position of expected danger."

Justice Page held that it was the duty of the conductor to persuade the offender to desist and to eject him if persuasion failed.

SISTERS IN SAME ASYLUM.

The Misses Thackeray, in Bloomingdale for Years, Have Never Met.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Testimony before a Sheriff's jury, with Benoni Platt as commissioner, to inquire into the sanity of Emily Augusta Thackeray, disclosed that her sister, Clara Helen Thackeray, as well as herself, are inmates of Bloomingdale Asylum.

Although they are in the same institution, they don't know that they have been so near each other for several years. Miss Emily Augusta Thackeray, who was declared insane and incompetent by the jury to-day, is 57 years old. She has been in Bloomingdale since 1907. Her sister Clara has been there some years longer.

Dr. Samuel B. Lyon and Dr. Theodore Irving Townsend each testified that Emily was suffering fram maniacal insanity and that she had to be watched constantly.

The petition for the appointment of the commission was made by Fred M. Burrell of 1,409 Albermarle Road, Brooklyn, a brother-in-law of the incompetent.

Real Estate Broker a Suicide.

Samuel C. C. Woodward, a well-to-do retired real estate broker of 6,406 Fifteenth Avenue, Borough Park, Brooklyn, was found dead on the floor of his kitchen at noon yesterday by Allen Thornton, his eleven-year-old nephew, who had just returned from school. There was a bullet wound in his right temple. Beside him lay a revolver with one chamber empty, and not far away a brief note in which he bade his family goodbye. His wife and daughter had left the house to do some shopping. Neither of them could account for his act, saying he had seemed in good health and spirits when they left him.

PHYSICIAN FINDS MRS. MARTIN SANE

PRISONER MAKES A SCENE

Ordered from the Courtroom, but the Judge Relents on Her Promise to be Quiet.

State witnesses gave testimony yesterday in the proceedings to determine the sanity of Mrs. Caroline B. Martin in the Essex County Court House in Newark. Dr. C. C. Beling, one of the State experts, testified that the death of Ocey W. M. Snead was the result of morphine, self-administered. This information he had obtained from the prisoner in an interview, and concluded by saying that the accused woman was perfectly sane in all that she says and does.

"My daughter died from an overdose of morphine," the physician testified Mrs. Martin told him. "She took too much, went into the bath, and died."

Dr. Beling said that Mrs. Martin related to him that Ocey Snead had been talking on the subject of morphine for a year. She was humored and temporized, and it was thought when they moved out to East Orange she had lost the idea.

The physician had previously testified that Mrs. Martin told him that both her daughter, Ocey W. M. Snead, and Miss Virginia O. Wardlaw, her sister, had been addicted to the use of the drug. Ocey took it for illness following the birth of her first child. She declared, the doctor explained, that Miss Wardlaw took it for neuralgia. The morphine, the witness testified, was kept on a stand, "as other people keep cologne."

While Dr. Beling was testifying Mrs. Martin became agitated and declared that the physician got his information from her by flattering her. Her hostility toward the physician was such that Judge Ten Eyck asked Mrs. Martin if she wanted the witness to testify she was crazy.

"No!" she cried in a much excited manner, "I want him to tell only the truth."

Mrs. Martin then began one of her tirades that have characterized her actions since the proceedings began, twelve days ago. She shouted and sobbed and was beside herself with rage. Judge Ten Eyck rapped his gavel heavily, but Mrs. Martin did not pay the least attention to him. Then, for the first time during the hearing, the court ordered Mrs. Martin taken from the courtroom, and a recess was declared to accomplish this.

As the constable approached her the prisoner fought furiously and screamed. Her condition was such that the Judge rescinded his order, as he did not want to use too much force against her. She partly collapsed and when she recovered she promised to refrain from disturbing the court. Upon this promise Judge Ten Eyck granted her permission to remain in the court room.

Just before the opening of the proceedings yesterday morning Mrs. Martin made a direct appeal to the court to indulge her interruptions, saying that she was neither insane nor guilty.

"Judge Ten Eyck," she addressed the court, "I am here without a lawyer, a jury, a friend, or money. I am being crushed under the gigantic machine of men, men and lies. Can't I tell you when they lie?

"Dr. Beling said that I told him Prosecutor Mott couldn't give me a character. I don't have to take my character from Mr. Mott. I had it before I ever knew him. What I said was that he couldn't restore the spotless character that had been taken from me by this case."

Mrs. Martin described her own mental condition, the physician testified, as due to an unusual physical condition, and said that her peculiarities were due to teaching and lecturing.

WHO SENT POLICE TURKEYS?

Well, the Express Employes Go Without Their Usual Gifts This Year.

"Who sent 'em?" That momentous question, which has been agitating every member of the police force in Manhattan ever since it was announced that some anonymous donor had showered more than 5,000 free turkeys upon the Manhattan police for Thanksgiving, gave rise to a new answering theory last night. A Harlem policeman seeking warmth and shelter and a bit of neighborly gossip dropped in at the stables of an uptown branch of an express company.

"Sure," mused the policeman to the expressman, "I'd like to know who did send us thim turkeys."

Still the stableman perused the sympathetic stars.

"You men, of course, get a free turkey from the express company," continued the policeman, pleasantly. "I remember last year and the year before—"

"We don't expect none this year," blurted the expressman impatiently, abandoning the stars and chewing viciously at his cud. Then he explained curtly: "The strike."

Half an hour later all the Harlem precincts were gossiping that the police turkeys were originally destined as gifts for the employes of the express companies, and as such were ordered by the companies weeks in advance, as is customary at Thanksgiving and New Year's time. Then came the strike and with it a problem as to what should be done with the turkeys left on the companies' hands. Some of the policemen commented that "it's an ill wind," &c.

However, only Commissioner Cropsey knows who really sent them, and he won't tell.

TO CLOSE GAYNOR FUND SOON

One thousand dollars a day continues to be the rate of subscription to the Gaynor hospital fund, which now, including the Brooklyn fund, is between $11,000 and $12,000. John D. Crimmins, Chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that a meeting of the committee would be held on Friday to determine the date for closing the subscription list. It is probable that checks will be received as late as Saturday of this week, so that those who desire to contribute, but have not yet done so, have a few days more.

Yesterday's subscribers included R. F. Almirall, $50; Charles W. Culkin, $25; John D. Ryan, $50; Edward M. Shepard, $50; A. Heckscher, $100; Brown Brothers, $100; George R. Sheldon, $100; Frank J. Goodwin, $25; W. H. Porter, $50; W. H. Edwards, $100; F. K. Pendleton, $25; C. K. G. Billings, $100; John B. Shanahan, $25; George B. Cortelyou, $50; Adolphe de Bary, $25; Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, $100; Samuel Adams, $25; Gen. Howard Carroll, $50, and E. H. Litchfield, $100.

Lackawanna Employes Give a Watch.

The employes of the Treasurer's office of the Lackawanna Railroad Company presented a fine gold watch yesterday to Miss Edith Crogan, stenographer, who has resigned after years of efficient service to become a trained nurse. The presentation was made after office hours as a Thanksgiving offering and as a pleasant reminder of the years spent in the Lackawanna service.

NAVY WANTS AVIATION FUNDS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Eugene B. Ely's successful flight from the deck of the cruiser Birmingham to the shore some miles distant has aroused the interest of the Navy Department in aviation. Now navy officials are trying to get some one to attempt a flight from the shore to the deck of a moving craft. Ely himself has declared the feat perfectly feasible, and naval experts are of the same opinion.

The Navy Department is chiefly embarrassed in its aviation experiments by the lack of funds. The department has not one cent which it can spend in experimental or practical aeronautics. Any aviator who performs the proposed test will have to do so out of patriotism, or else depend on some private interest to offer a prize. Ely did not receive any money from the Navy Department for the flight.

He won by the feat the sum of $500 offered by John Barry Ryan to the first member of the aeronautical reserve making such a flight, but it was not until several hours after his feat that Ely learned he had won the prize.

While arrangements are not complete, officials of the department are confident that some means can be devised for making the proposed attempt financially remunerative.

SALT MADE MIDDIES ILL.

Had Been Accidentally, Not Purposely, Mixed with Sugar, Officials Assert.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Ordinary table salt in the sugar which they used was responsible for the illness of the midshipmen at the Naval Academy at Annapolis who were supposed to have been the victims of a spiteful plot conceived and executed in the culinary department of the institution. Such was the conclusion reached following a chemical analysis of a sample of the sugar made here to-day in the laboratory of the Surgeon-General of the Navy. Officials of the Navy Department are inclined to the belief that the salt found its way into the sugar through accident, and that there was no plot at all.

There are now twenty-three cases of typhoid fever at the academy, one new case having developed to-day, and four of the patients are in a serious condition, according to reports received by Surgeon General Stokes. The typhoid endemic, of course, has no relation to the contaminated sugar. The Surgeon General expects that a few more cases of the fever may develop in the next week as a result of drinking milk supposed to have contained the germs, but he believes that by the end of the current month the period of incubation and consequently all danger will have passed.

FIGHT DRIVERS' LICENSE FEES

On the application of the United States Express Company and the Wells Fargo Express Company, Justice Joseph Cross granted yesterday in the United States District Circuit Court at Trenton a temporary injunction against the Mayor, Police Commissioners, and Chief of Police of Jersey City, ordering them to show cause why they should not be restrained permanently from enforcing an ordinance, passed during the recent strike, requiring all express drivers to pay $1 for a license and to live three months in the city before operating vehicles.

The express companies argued that the license fee constitutes a tax of interstate commerce in violation of the Federal Constitution. Likewise, they contend that the provision demanding three months' residence in the city is unlawful discrimination, violating the Fourteenth Constitutional Amendment.

The temporary injunction was served on the Police Commissioners of Jersey City last night, and they ordered a temporary suspension of the ordinance, pending the argument on the injunction on Dec. 5.

CONFESSED BIGAMY.

Whereupon the Court Stopped the Action and Summoned District Attorney.

Charles W. Harrer, crack billiard player and defendant in a suit to annul their marriage which Edna Harrer brought in the Supreme Court, yesterday went on the witness stand and testified with great candor that he had married her five years ago, with a wife by an earlier union still living. He had done it to save her reputation, he explained to the court.

Justice Goff had the proceedings stopped right there. Word was telephoned to District Attorney Whitman, who sent his assistant, Mr. Bostwick, and Detective Thomas hurrying to the County Court House. Harrer was taken to the Criminal Courts Building, where the plaintiff in the action also went, accompanied by her lawyer. She explained that she did not learn of Harrer's previous marriage until some months after her wedding, but that she continued to live with him.

Justice Goff did not let the matter drop until he had questioned E. Hertz, the woman's lawyer, who explained that he had never seen the parties to the action until yesterday, when they appeared in court. A clerk in his office, he said, had drawn up the complaint. Justice Goff declared his intention of referring the matter to the Appellate Division.

CIVIL SERVICE LISTS VOID IN NEWARK

SCHOOL EMPLOYES EXEMPT

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 23.—Assistant Attorney General Gaskill gave to-day two opinions concerning the enforcement of the civil service law that are especially important in view of the fact that the Democrats are soon to succeed Republicans in the administration of the State and of many cities.

In one opinion Mr. Gaskill holds that the eligible lists in Essex County and the City of Newark, resulting from examinations held prior to the adoption of the law by the voters, are obsolete. Consequently new eligible lists will have to be prepared.

Mr. Gaskill takes the position that the adoption of the civil service law by ordinance having been set aside by the courts, the validity of the lists prepared while the cities and counties were presumably under civil service regulations necessarily falls also. The practical result of this decision will be to make nugatory lists containing approximately 500 names. The commission will begin about the beginning of the year to hold a series of examinations to make up new lists.

The other opinion of Mr. Gaskill holds that the adoption of the civil service law by a municipality does not make it applicable to employes of a Board of Education. This decision is based upon the ruling of the courts that a Board of Education is an independent municipal organization and is not a department of any city nor of the State.

Mr. Gaskill suggests that in order to bring the employes of the Board of Education within the provisions of the act it would be necessary to submit a special referendum to voters of the school district. A simpler plan, he thinks, would be to amend the civil service law by adding a distinct provision which would fee the situation from doubt.

WENT ON AFTER CAB WRECK.

The police were asked last night to look out for the chauffeur of an automobile who, after upsetting a hansom cab, injuring the driver and leaving him in the wreckage of his overturned cab, stopped his car only long enough to examine damages, and then violated the new automobile law by fleeing from the scene of the accident.

This happened shortly before 10 o'clock last night in Fifth Avenue, near Fifty-sixth Street. Charles Burch of 535 East Seventy-eighth Street, who witnessed the accident, took down the number of the automobile and gave it to Policeman Schoenholz of the East Fifty-first Street Station. The number as given to the police is 42823 N. Y. The car corresponding to this number, they say, belongs to Alfred Chester Beatty, consulting engineer, of 71 Broadway, living at 76 East Seventy-third Street. At Mr. Beatty's home nothing was known of the accident, but it was said that Mr. Beatty had gone to the opera and his chauffeur had orders to go there for him.

Dennis Smith of 978 Third Avenue was jogging south in Fifth Avenue, looking for a fare. He was opposite 728 Fifth Avenue, where Charles W. Morse used to live, when an open touring car came south, going at a fair rate of speed. There was no one in the car except the chauffeur. The automobile struck the rear of the cab, sending it careening to one side of the street. The harness broke and it overturned.

Smith, the driver, was thrown out and the cab fell over on its side, pinning him beneath it. The automobile came to a sudden stop and the chauffeur reversed and backed out from the overturned cab. Still backing, he turned his car about until it faced north.

The chauffeur got out and examined the machine. The right front tire was burst, but beyond that it had apparently suffered no damage. After ascertaining this, the chauffeur jumped in again and started north away from the scene. It is said he paid no attention to Smith, who lay pinned down by the overturned cab.

Burch, with another man, James Tower, righted the cab. Smith was assisted to his feet. He was apparently not much hurt, but complained of pains in his back. Policeman Schoenholz sent him in an ambulance to Flower Hospital.

The New York Times is not returnable. Newsdealers must buy it outright, and many limit their supplies to actual orders. They are therefore frequently embarrassed by a demand which they cannot supply. To be absolutely sure of getting a copy of The Times when you call for it make some definite arrangement with your newsdealer, and you will have your Times every day.
